'New breed' of arsonists cost state millions

By BILL DUNCAN
Staff Writer

An arsonist?

A mentally unbalanced person who gets his kicks out of setting fires.

A greedy person seeking financial gain by defrauding an insurance company.

A few years ago you could safely bet an arsonist was one or the other.

But not today.

He could be almost anyone with a match.

" . . . and almost everyone has a match," said the Governor's Arson Information Study—a study called to determine why arson, deliberately set fires, had increased at such an alarming rate in California.

The study found that arson had increased 87 per cent in the past three years and was costing more than $60 million in fire damages. If this pyromania isn't extinguished, the present rate of arson increase could produce a loss range of $180 million a year.

WHY THIS sudden fascination with burning things down?

"It is hard to pinpoint. I wish we knew the answer but frankly we don't. We do know the symptoms," said Long Beach Fire Marshall Robert E. Leslie.

Long Beach, like the rest of the state, is having its own problems with an increase in deliberately set fires. Proven arson cases jumped from 140 in 1970 to 185 in 1971. Additionally, Leslie said, there were 409 other fires which were described as possibly arson.

The old firebug—the pyromaniac who gets sexual gratification from setting fires—figured in some of Long Beach's fires.

So did insurance fraud. "Mostly car fires set to collect insurance," Leslie said.

But far too many are being set maliciously with no gain other than destruction.

THERE WERE grudge fires, set to get even with some individual.

And that kind that is described as "political arson," the firebombing of banks, school buildings, ROTC facilities, police cars, government buildings—property symbolic of the establishment.

School fires are not a great problem in Long Beach, Leslie said.

There have been several but not on a par with Los Angeles, where two school fires occur every day costing the Los Angeles City School District more than $1 million annually in damages.

Orange County cities also have a high incidence of school fires.

"Involved in this is the traditional spite fire where the student is angry at a particular teacher, or just hates to go to school," Leslie said. "We had one at a local school in which the records office was destroyed and the only thing missing in the entire school was a file box containing the records of students with disciplinary problems."

SPITE FIRES no doubt contribute to school fires in Los Angeles and Orange County cities but John Byrne, a fire investigator in Los Angeles, believes there is another reason:

" . . . a permissive almosphere of civil disobedience in which arson has become an acceptable form of behavior, has been fostered in the community by militant factions."

This is political arson, according to Capt. Robert T. Dove, Los Angeles City Fire Department security officer, and he expects more of it this summer.

"We are in a real lull at this particular time," Capt. Dove said. "We do expect trouble in the summer."

Leslie doesn't agree, at least not so far as Long Beach is concerned.

"We are always prepared for such incidents but we see a decline in the politically motivated fire, not only in Long Beach but elsewhere," he said.

What worries him most is the malicious fire-setting spree that has driven up the number of arsons in Long Beach.

"There is a decline in arson for insurance cases. There is a decline

U.S. may hike meat imports to trim prices

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The administration may ease quota restrictions to allow more imported meat to enter the country as a means of slowing down the rising spiral of meat prices to the consumer, Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, disclosed Saturday.

At a news conference to present the quarterly report of the President's economic stabilization program, Rumsfeld said that the administration is concerned about rising food prices and that the Cost of Living Council is considering doing something about them. The news conference was held Friday under an embargo that withheld disclosure of the information until Saturday.

Raw agricultural prices, which had been exempted by the council from price controls, were 13 per cent higher in January compared to January 1971. The rise has been reflected in some higher retail food prices, particularly meats.

Rumsfeld declined to discuss the possibility of placing argicultural products under controls, however. The only "likely possibility" he referred to was a widening of the quota restricting the entry of meat — largely beef and mutton — into the country.

Negotiations between the United States and principal exporting countries, including Australia and New Zealand, are now in progress on the quota for 1972. An official of the Price Commission said that the administration would announce its decision on meat imports within the next two weeks.

Last year the quota restricted meat imports into this country to 1,160 million pounds, although only about 1,130 million pounds actually came into the country.

The quota affects chiefly "manufactured meat" of the kind that is usually sold as commercial hamburger meat. However, the council official asserted that higher imports of this meat would also exert downward pressure on the price of steaks and other cuts of meat.

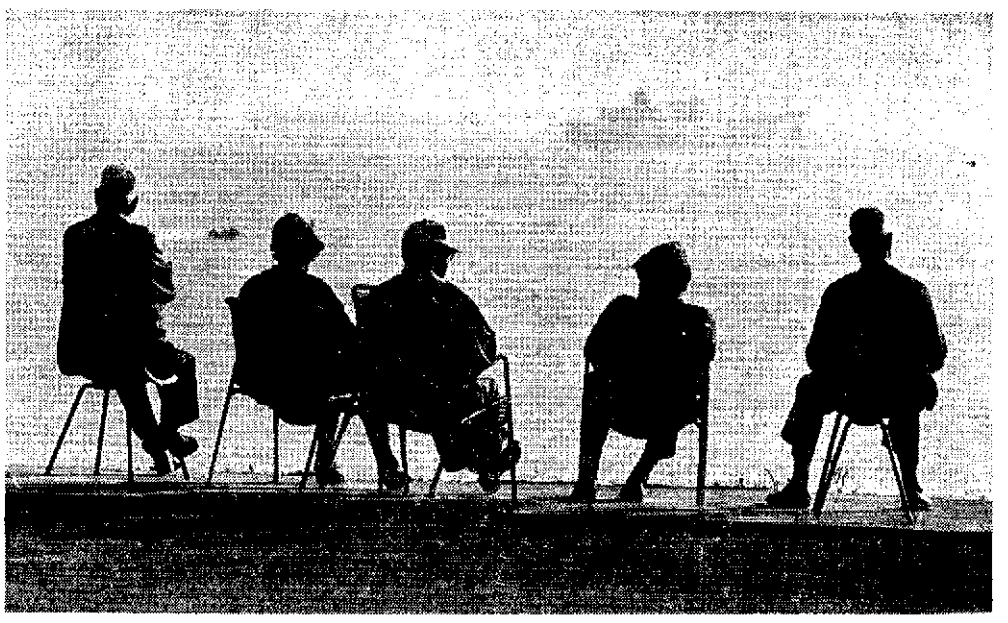

The Department of Agriculture reported Thursday that it expects a rise of "close to 4 per cent" in retail food prices this year. Meat ac-

WEATHER TO UN-WORK BY

A three-day break in a long, hard winter this weekend brought deck chairs, idle time and 80 degrees' worth of good day sunshine (with nightly lows of 45) to Long Beach shores with more of the same predicted until a cooler and windy Tuesday. Oh well, it's 37 degrees in Tokyo . . . and raining.

Muskie, McGovern lead in Demo caucus turnout

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and George M. McGovern drew the largest turnouts among some 25,000 California Democrats attending 387 congressional district caucuses Saturday to elect nominees for the convention slates of nine presidential hopefuls.

Most elated were McGovern backers who read the attraction to their man's meetings as repudiation of his poor showings in the polls. Muskie, as reputed front-runner, was expected to draw well.

BOTH CAMPS estimated the final figures would show between 8,000 and 9,000 total attendance, fairly evenly divided between them. Sen. Hubert Humphrey appeared to have placed third.

National political stories on Pages A-6 and 7.

Trailing those three were New York Major John V. Lindsay, New York Rep. Shirley Chisholm, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, former Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy and Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind.

Each caucus for each candidate was entitled to nominate from eight to 20 recommendations for inclusion on the candidate's Democratic National Convention delegation. State steering committees for each of the nine presidential contenders will meet next week to boil down the approximately 4,000-name list to a slate of 238, or 88 per cent of the full delegation entitlement of 271. The 238-name slate will run in the June 6 primary.

THE SLATE that wins will meet after the primary to add 33 names, possibly taking some names from losing delegations in a unity gesture.

Each caucus was instructed to follow national Democratic Party guidelines to make the 1972 slate representative of the population. Thus, ideally, the slate would be about half women, 30 per cent under 30 and 10 to 15 per cent minority groups.

State Democratic Chairman Charles T. Manatt echoed the claims of some of the low-turnout caucuses that attendance figures do not necessarily indicate a candidate's strength. Organizational effort could be credited with the better turnouts, they pointed out.

In the Long Beach-Orange County area of the 32nd and 34th Congressional Districts Muskie and McGovern also led. Figures represent the number of pledges which each Democrat signed upon arrival at the caucus pledging loyally to the candidate.

There were 162 Muskie pledges at the 32nd District caucus, 72 in the 34th District. McGovern had 143 in the 32nd and 65 in the 34th. Shirley Chisholm placed third in these two areas with 59 in the 32nd and 10 in the 34th. Humphrey had 28 in the 32nd and 20 in the 34th.

GUIDELINES for the broadly representative selection of convention delegates were an outgrowth of the dissent-ridden 1968 convention. In the words of Joseph Wyatt, coordinator for the whole caucus operation in California, the system is designed so there will be fewer old, white, fat men at the Miami Beach sessions.

Exact figures on the nine candidates' caucus attendance will be revealed at a Monday news conference by Chairman Manatt.

Britain shivers as coal strike disrupts power

LONDON (AP) — Britons shivered in theaters, cooked at odd hours and worked extra weekend shifts Saturday as they learned to live with the biggest power blackout since the wartime blitz.

With electricity plants starved for coal fuel because of a mine workers' strike, the nation braced for even worse blackouts that threaten to throw millions out of work.

Many stage and movie theaters were chilly as the government enforced a ban on electric heating in these and other recreation premises.

Housewives hit by the rotating blackouts at mealtime prepared lunch earlier or later than usual. Schoolchildren did their weekend homework by candlelight.

Many husbands gave up the weekend to work extra hours to make up for short shifts going into effect Monday. Under an emergency order cutting power to factories, thousands of plants will be in operation only four days a week.

The cutback order exempts hospitals. But one of every 10 British homes, offices and factories had its electricity cut off for up to four hours at a time.

Irving mystery cracked by L.B. author Phelan

By LOU GODFREY
Staff Writer

Copyright, Independent, Press-Telegram 1972

Long Beach investigative reporter James Phelan said Saturday that parts of Clifford Irving's purported autobiography of Howard Hughes were taken from a manuscript Phelan wrote in the form of a Hughes biography by Noah Dietrich, former chief assistant to the industrialist.

In an exclusive telephone interview with the Independent, Press-Telegram, Phelan said he spotted the similarities in the manuscripts when excerpts of Irving's book were leaked to the press.

PHELAN said that when he read the papers an anecdote concerning a previously undisclosed telephone call from publicist Perry Lieber to Hughes, "this really shook me up. It's a story that to the best of my knowledge I've never told to anyone."

Phelan said he called Frank McCulloch, bureau chief of the Time-Life News Service in New York, and told him what he suspected.

"Frank said, 'I think you've cracked the whole thing. Can you fly to New York?' and I flew here," Phelan said.

Phelan was reached in McCulloch's New York office, where he has been in seclusion, collaborating with McCulloch on a Time magazine cover story unraveling the Hughes-Irving mystery. McCulloch agreed to Phelan's interview with I,P-T reporters.

IN AN EARLIER United Press International news release, McCulloch had told reporters that Phelan was "hidden and would not be sprung until sometime today."

Phelan would not reveal how he convinced McCulloch that Irving's book contained portions of Phelan's manuscript. He said he is under contract with Time magazine for the exclusive cover story.

Phelan said he met with top executives of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. for four hours on Friday, and it was after that meeting that McGraw-Hill announced that Irving's book was a "fake" and the company would not publish it.

When Phelan was asked directly whether he thought the manuscript he wrote for Dietrich had gotten into Irving's hands through Dietrich, he said he would not "point the finger at anyone."

HE ADDED, however, that, "I'm going to nail this down, and somebody is going to go to jail."

McCulloch said the first 100 pages of Phelan's manuscript were compared to Irving's manuscript.

"There were more than 23 separate incidents that contained similar anecdotes, details and vignettes," he said. "The evidence was placed side-by-side and Phelan's material must have contributed substantially to the Irving manuscript, but not totally."

Phelan's manuscript was written last year for Noah Dietrich, who was Hughes' assistant for 32 years.

Phelan said he gave Dietrich the first draft and told him at that time that he wanted to rewrite it, but Dietrich was impatient and wouldn't "give me a free hand with what I wanted." He said Dietrich didn't like the draft.

PHELAN WAS replaced by Associated Press writer Bob Thomas, who rewrote and finished the manuscript. The Dietrich book will be published by Fawcett Publications under the title "Howard: The Amazing Mr. Hughes."

Among the similarities between the two manuscripts was an anecdote concerning a shipment of liquor during prohibition and another about a phone call press agent Lieber made to Hughes from Hedda Hopper's apartment closet.

In extraordinary court session Saturday in the apartment of appellate court Judge Theodore R. Kupferman, Time Inc. successfully appealed an injunction against publishing parts of the Irving manuscript.

McGraw-Hill had sought to prevent Time Inc. from publishing 1,000 words from Irving's book

Sunken hulk thought tanker

FREEPORT, Tex. (UPI) — Delicate sonar Saturday detected a 450-foot hulk thought to be the missing tanker V.A. Fogg resting on the floor of the Gulf of Mexico, the Coast Guard reported.

The Miss Freeport, a 115-foot ship engaged in seismic research, reported locating the hulk on the Gulf floor in water about 130 feet deep, 32 miles south of Freeport.

A spokesman for the owners of the Miss Freeport said the ship was dispatched with six divers to make positive identification.

"I talked with one of the divers and he said they were going to stay out there until they find something," a spokesman for the company which owns the Miss Freeport said.

The Coast Guard temporarily called off its search for the Fogg, missing since Feb. 1 with 39 men aboard, when high winds churned through the Gulf Saturday. But the weather cleared by midafternoon and the Miss Freeport, employed in the search by attorneys for the Fogg's operators, returned to Freeport, picking up the divers and steamed again.

He's king for a day

By ED TUNSTALL

It isn't exactly what he meant when he used to sing "That's what I like about the South." But when Phil Harris reigns as king of the Mardi Gras krewe of Bacchus tonight in New Orleans, he's the first to admit that "man, this is sumpin'."

More on Mardi Gras, Page A-10

Harris will wear the crown of jeweled grapes and toast thousands of spectators when the Bacchus parade winds through the streets of New Orleans. He is the fourth show business personality to reign as Bacchus in the four years of the krewe's existence, following Danny Kaye, Raymond Burr and Jim Nabors.

Krewes are the private social organizations that stage the Carnival.

"You know, I used to walk in Mardi Gras parades years ago," said Harris as he went through a final fitting at the costumers. "But I never thought I'd be up here on top. Imagine that—me as king of a Mardi Gras parade. Now that's going, ain't it."

"Man, look at this costume," Harris said as the dressmaker made final alterations to the gold brocade affair.

'Top feminist'

Jeannette Rankin, the first woman elected to the U.S. Congress, was acclaimed the "world's outstanding living feminist" by the National Organization for Women (NOW) and named the first member of the new "Susan B. Anthony Hall of Fame" in New York ceremonies Saturday.

Miss Rankin, 91, was accorded the honor by NOW during its eastern regional conference, which was attended by women from 11 states and Washington, D.C.

Birthday for Bess

Mrs. Bess Truman, described as feeling fine, celebrates her 87th birthday today in the family's Independence, Mo. home.

Mrs. Truman was hospitalized last June for a checkup and tests, the nature of which was not disclosed.

Sources said she now feels fine.

She goes to the grocery store two or three times a week and is a frequent visitor to the Independence Public Library. She is a voracious reader.

Connally angles

President Nixon and Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally got a big haul of fish on a five-hour fishing expedition in the rain-swept, windy, choppy Atlantic Ocean off Grand Cay Island in the Bahamas Saturday.

Nixon said he wanted to show Connally "how to catch a big one." Connally landed a 30-pound barracuda, but in sportsmanlike tradition, they threw the big one back.

The presidential party, aboard a 42-foot sports fishing boat, caught a sizable quantity of other fish including yellow tail, snapper and Spanish mackerel, on the cruise about five miles off the island.

They brought some of the fish back to Key Biscayne, Fla., for a Saturday night fish dinner.

Royal tourists

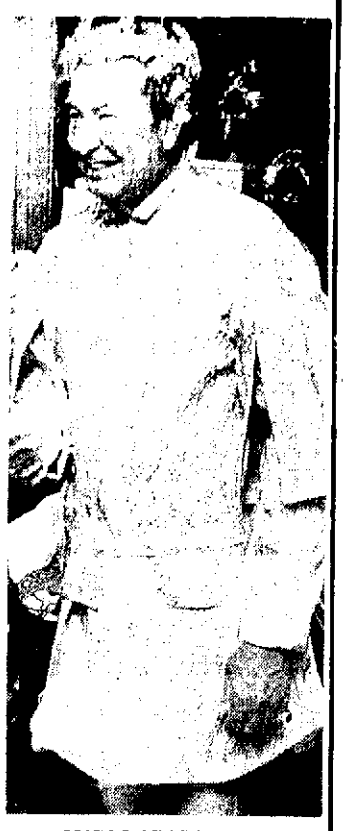

Queen Elizabeth II of England Saturday visited the ancient ruins of Ayuthaya, once the capital of Siam, and was serenaded by boatmen who wished her "all the blessings of life."

The queen, accompanied by Prince Philip and their 21-year-old daughter, Princess Anne, was driven 52 miles north from Bangkok to the ancient capital, passing historic Buddhist temples and monasteries.

Ayuthaya was destroyed in 1767 during a war with Burma. It had been the Thai capital since 1350.

King Bhumibol Adulyadej and Queen Sirikit of Thailand did not accompany the British royal family.

On Tuesday, the British royal family will sail to Singapore in the 413-foot Britannia, continuing a six-week world tour which will take them also to Malaysia, Brunei, the Maldive and Seychelles Islands, Mauritius and Kenya.

26½-pound baby

The Tehran newspaper Kayhan reported Saturday an Iranian woman has given birth to a 26½-pound boy, the largest normal newborn on record.

The paper said the baby was delivered by Caesarean section after a 10-month pregnancy. The mother was identified as Mrs. Massoumeh Valizadeh, 32.

The Guinness Book of World Records says the largest normal newborn child record in modern times was a boy weighing 24 lbs., 4 oz., born in 1961 to a woman in southern Turkey.

He/she puzzler

The question before the Seattle court March 16 will be: what is the sex of Verissa Marie Trifari in the eyes of the law?

Verissa, 23, is a topless go-go dancer at a Pike Street honky tonk. Twice Thursday night Verissa and the cabaret owner, James Williamson, were arrested by vice squad police on charges of violating an ordinance which makes it illegal for a "female employe" of such establishments to expose her breasts.

A doctor at police headquarters confirmed Verissa's story that before having undergone an extensive medical process at the University of Washington hospital, the dancer was a male.

Guam holdout wants his grave

Shoichi Yokoi, the ex-sergeant of the old Japanese Imperial Army who came home early this month after hiding in the jungles of Guam for 28 years, wants his family to keep the grave that was dug when he was reported killed in World War II.

Attendants at the state-run First National Hospital in Tokyo, where Shoichi has been under treatment, said the 56-year-old former soldier had a reunion Saturday with his brother-in-law, Osamu Kokoi.

Osamu mentioned that the family was preparing to destroy the grave that was made after the government officially had said Shoichi was dead, the attendants said.

"The grave must stay for the old Shoichi. Yokoi is dead and I am a new Shoichi Yokoi," the attendants reported he said.

Reverently they came, on grey, cold birthday, to Lincoln's quiet tomb

Combined News Services

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — It was not a good day for tourists Saturday at Lincoln's tomb — melting snow covered the ground, the sky was a gun metal gray and chill, damp air cut through to the bone.

The tourists came anyway, to pay tribute to Abraham Lincoln on the 163rd anniversary of his birth.

They came in small groups, in a steady stream, a carload at a time. Each little cluster surveyed the grave site virtually alone, surrounded by the quiet of the Oak Ridge cemetery.

DURING THE morning, the state paid its official tribute to its adopted son. Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie laid a wreath inside the massive stone monument while an honor guard of soldiers, clad in Civil War uniforms, stood at attention outside.

But then the ceremonies ended. People came just to be there and to feel the mood of the place where the 16th president rests.

They came from Wisconsin, from Ohio and New York. An elderly couple driving a car from Ohio said they had detoured from Chicago just to visit the tomb on Lincoln's birthday.

"We both had relatives in the Civil War," the man said. "We grew up hearing about it and about Lincoln — about how he saved the country. In some ways he probably means more to us than all the other presidents."

THE PEOPLE came in silence. Few spoke in more than a whisper as they approached and saw the monument.

Fewer still spoke as they stood before the tomb itself and read its inscription: "Abraham Lincoln, 1809-1865. 'Now he belongs to the ages.' "

In Washington, meanwhile, mounds of floral tributes — including one from President Nixon and another bearing a golden Nazi swastika — were laid at the brooding statue of Lincoln Saturday.

About 500 persons shivered through colorful noontime ceremonies, staged for the 50th consecutive year by the Military Order of the Loyal Legion on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

Nixon's wreath, the largest of the lot, was placed first at the base of the 19-foot-high statue by Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., who also read a brief message from Nixon. Composed of red and white carnations and trimmed with a huge red, white and blue bow, the wreath carried an engraved card reading simply, "The President."

SIMILAR, smaller wreaths were then placed one by one by representatives of the diplomatic corps, the Interior Department, the mayor of Washington, the National Park Service and the Loyal Legion — a group formed April 15, 1865, the day Lincoln died from an assassin's bullet, to honor and defend his ideals — and by others.

Helmeted, uniformed members of the National Socialist White People's Party — once known as the American Nazi Party — arrived early, hoping to lay a wreath of their own. It carried a glittering gold-painted swastika and a red satin banner reading, "Abraham Lincoln — Champion of Racial Separation," together with a quote attributed to him opposing social and political equality for blacks.

"We believe we are the true inheritors of Lincoln's traditions," the group's commander, Matt Koehl, told UPI in an interview. "Lincoln was one of America's foremost racists and this is a fact that is commonly obscured."

The Springfield tomb of the president sits on a knoll in the middle of Oak Ridge Cemetery alongside the graves of 56,168 others, some of whom paid an extra $50 to be buried near the Lincolns.

The chill wind blows in from the surrounding, sleeping corn fields these days, rustling a few leaves over the crusted snow where wild rabbits play at night.

Each year about 675,000 persons walk around the stark hallway. Many break into tears and sob as they hear the strains of the Battle Hymn of the Republic over a loudspeaker.

Lincoln's tomb is in Oak Ridge only at the insistence of Mrs. Lincoln who admired the rural setting. The president was among the first to be buried there and the original cemetery log says simply, "A. Lincoln. Assassinated."

Girl, 2½, dies as accidents claim three

Three persons, one of them a 2½-year-old child, died Saturday from injuries suffered in separate automobile accidents.

One of the three, a Newport Beach man, was killed in a four-car crash on the San Deigo Freeway early Saturday. A Carson woman was critically hurt in the accident and a San Diego man was booked on suspicion of felony drunk driving and vehicular manslaughter.

Highway Patrolmen said an auto driven by Wayne Griffin, 23, of San Diego, caused the pile-up when it swerved across three lanes of the northbound San Diego Freeway north of Lakewood Boulevard.

It struck a car driven by John Gibson, 47, of 21113 Grace St., Carson, investigators said. The Gibson car was knocked through the freeway center divider. It struck head-on a third car driven by Clyde M. Horn, 51, of 133 Via Havre, Newport Beach.

A fourth car smashed into the wreckage.

Griffin, who was uninjured, was jailed at the Long Beach police station.

Gibson received only minor injuries, but his wife, Donna, 35, was critically hurt.

Horn was killed almost instantly, investigators said

The driver of the fourth car escaped injury.

The 2½-year-old girl of Santa Ana, was fatally injured Saturday afternoon when the bicycle on which she was riding and an auto collided near her home, according to Santa Ana police.

Susan M. Brison of 2226 Huckleberry Rd. was dead on arrival at Riverview Hospital.

She was riding on the cross bars of a bicycle operated by her aunt, Leona Welcher, 13, of 6866 Beechley Ave., Long Beach.

William W. Smith, 16, 2240 Gondar Ave., died Saturday noon at Long Beach Community Hospital of head injuries suffered in a motorcycle accident the day before.

SNOW OUTING BUS TRIP ENDS IN SPECTACULAR HIGHWAY CRASH

Border guards pick up 26,000 aliens in January

Immigration officials apprehended more than 26,000 illegal aliens in the 10-state southwestern region in January, and confiscated drugs worth nearly $1 million, an immigration official said Saturday.

L. W. Gilman, commissioner of the southwest region of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service with headquarters in San Pedro, said most of the 26,708 "deportable aliens" were taken into custody within 30 days of their entry into the U.S. while they were still seeking jobs.

They were returned to their native countries, he said.

Immigration officials made the narcotics seizures while performing normal border-inspection duties, Gilman said. The alleged smugglers and confiscated drugs were turned over to Customs officials.

Gilman said the narcotics seized had a wholesale value of $908,496.

This included 8,720 pounds of marijuana valued at $872,000; 192,995 pills and tablets valued at $7,719; 9.3 ounces of heroin valued at $4,185; 377 pounds of peyote valued at $1,185; one ounce of hashish valued at $207 and 32 ounces of cocaine valued at $23,000.

Detectives seek leads in bludgeon slayings

Detectives were seeking leads Saturday in the bludgeon murder of two Mexicans in a Carson auto wrecking yard.

The victims have been identified as Lino Campos, 40, and his son, Gavino, 18, who often travelled from their home in Baja California to buy parts at the A and J Wrecking yard, 22632 S. Alameda St.

They were last seen Thursday night when the owner of the yard gave them permission to spend the night in a trailer in th the yard. He found their bodies Friday, sheriff's deputies said.

23 Scouts hurt as bus crashes

OAKDALE (AP) — Twenty-three persons were injured, seven seriously, when a bus carrying Boy Scouts on a snow trip skidded off a highway six miles east of Oakdale and overturned Saturday morning, the highway patrol said.

The chartered bus with 41 aboard skidded 500 feet off the highway then careened back across the roadway and rolled over once after ripping out 80 feet of freeway fencing, the CHP said.

Twenty-three children and adults were taken to Oakdale Municipal Hospital. Three adults and four children were admitted with broken bones and other injuries and the rest were treated and released,

The boys and their families were on a snow trip to Leland Meadows recreation area in Tuolomne County.

"Almost everybody got a scratch or bruise, but we're very, very fortunate no one was killed or critically injured," said Troop 638 leader Rudy Tokiwa. He said the boys attended several junior high schools in the San Jose area.

"It was quite a mess. Everyone was jumbled around," said Paul Lee, 33, of San Jose, the bus driver. He said in an interview the front end of the bus "seemed to drop out. I thought we had had a flat tire."

Avalanche kills seven

BOLZANO, Italy (UPI) — An avalanche engulfed a party of 20 Italian soldiers Saturday during an exercise near the Austrian border. Army authorities said seven men died and two were slightly injured. The other soldiers survived when they were washed down a slope into a ravine.

Short trip ended in death --but no one knows why

By LOU GODFREY
Staff Writer

A week ago today, N.J. "Ozzie" Orr left his comfortable trailer in Bell Gardens and drove to South-Central Los Angeles, where he expected to visit the family of a close friend.

Friday, Ozzie Orr was buried in Inglewood Cemetery, the victim of a brutal beating by a gang of black youths who attacked the white, 52-year-old Marine veteran on the sidewalk in front of his friend's home.

While friends and relatives at the Grace Chapel services were puzzling over Orr's senseless slaying, Los Angeles police at Juvenile Hall were busy booking nine black youths, age 13 to 16, on suspicion of murder.

CAPT. Mervin King, 77th Street Division commander, said officers had received "nothing but outstanding cooperation" from residents of the heavily black neighborhood around 109th and Figueroa Streets.

"In two instances," he said, "parents brought their boys into the station after being apprised of the situation."

King said the youths, all boys, were arrested late Thursday and early Friday, and petitions to have them tried on murder charges under the juvenile code would be presented in juvenile court Monday morning

NOT ARRESTED were five other youths, three of them girls, who police said watched the beating but did not participate.

Orr, a truck driver who in World War II was wounded at Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima, was first thought to be the victim of an organized street gang.

King said Friday the youths apparently had been trying to take Orr's wallet when they panicked and ran.

There was no indication the youths were organized, King said. "It's just a loose group of neighborhood kids."

Orr had gone to the neighborhood to visit William Rosbrough, 10909½ Figueroa St., a former coworker at the Reliance Steel and Aluminum Co., Los Angeles. Rosbrough is black.

Rosbrough was laid off just before Christmas, and Orr had been talking to him about getting back to work. The two men drank beer together, Mrs. Rosbrough said, and on two occasions Orr brought over some meat from his freezer.

Mrs. Rosbrough said Orr called last Sunday before he came over, and after he arrived he went back to the car to get his friend, Art Malone, who had driven him to the Rosbrough residence.

She said she went to the door to see why he was gone longer than he should have been, and learned that a white man had been hurt outside.

THE WHITE man was Orr, who according to police had been attacked by a gang of about 14 youths. Fists, beer cans and at least one blunt instrument were used, and Orr died within seconds.

Malone, who was in the car at the time, was unable to help, it happened so fast. The youths fled around a corner.

"He was a very fine person," said Myrtle Phacker, manager of the trailer court where Orr lived.

"You just don't take someone's life for nothing," Mrs. Rosbrough said. "It could have happened to anyone. It doesn't seem real. I don't know . . . I don't know."

Air-ride vehicle pact awarded

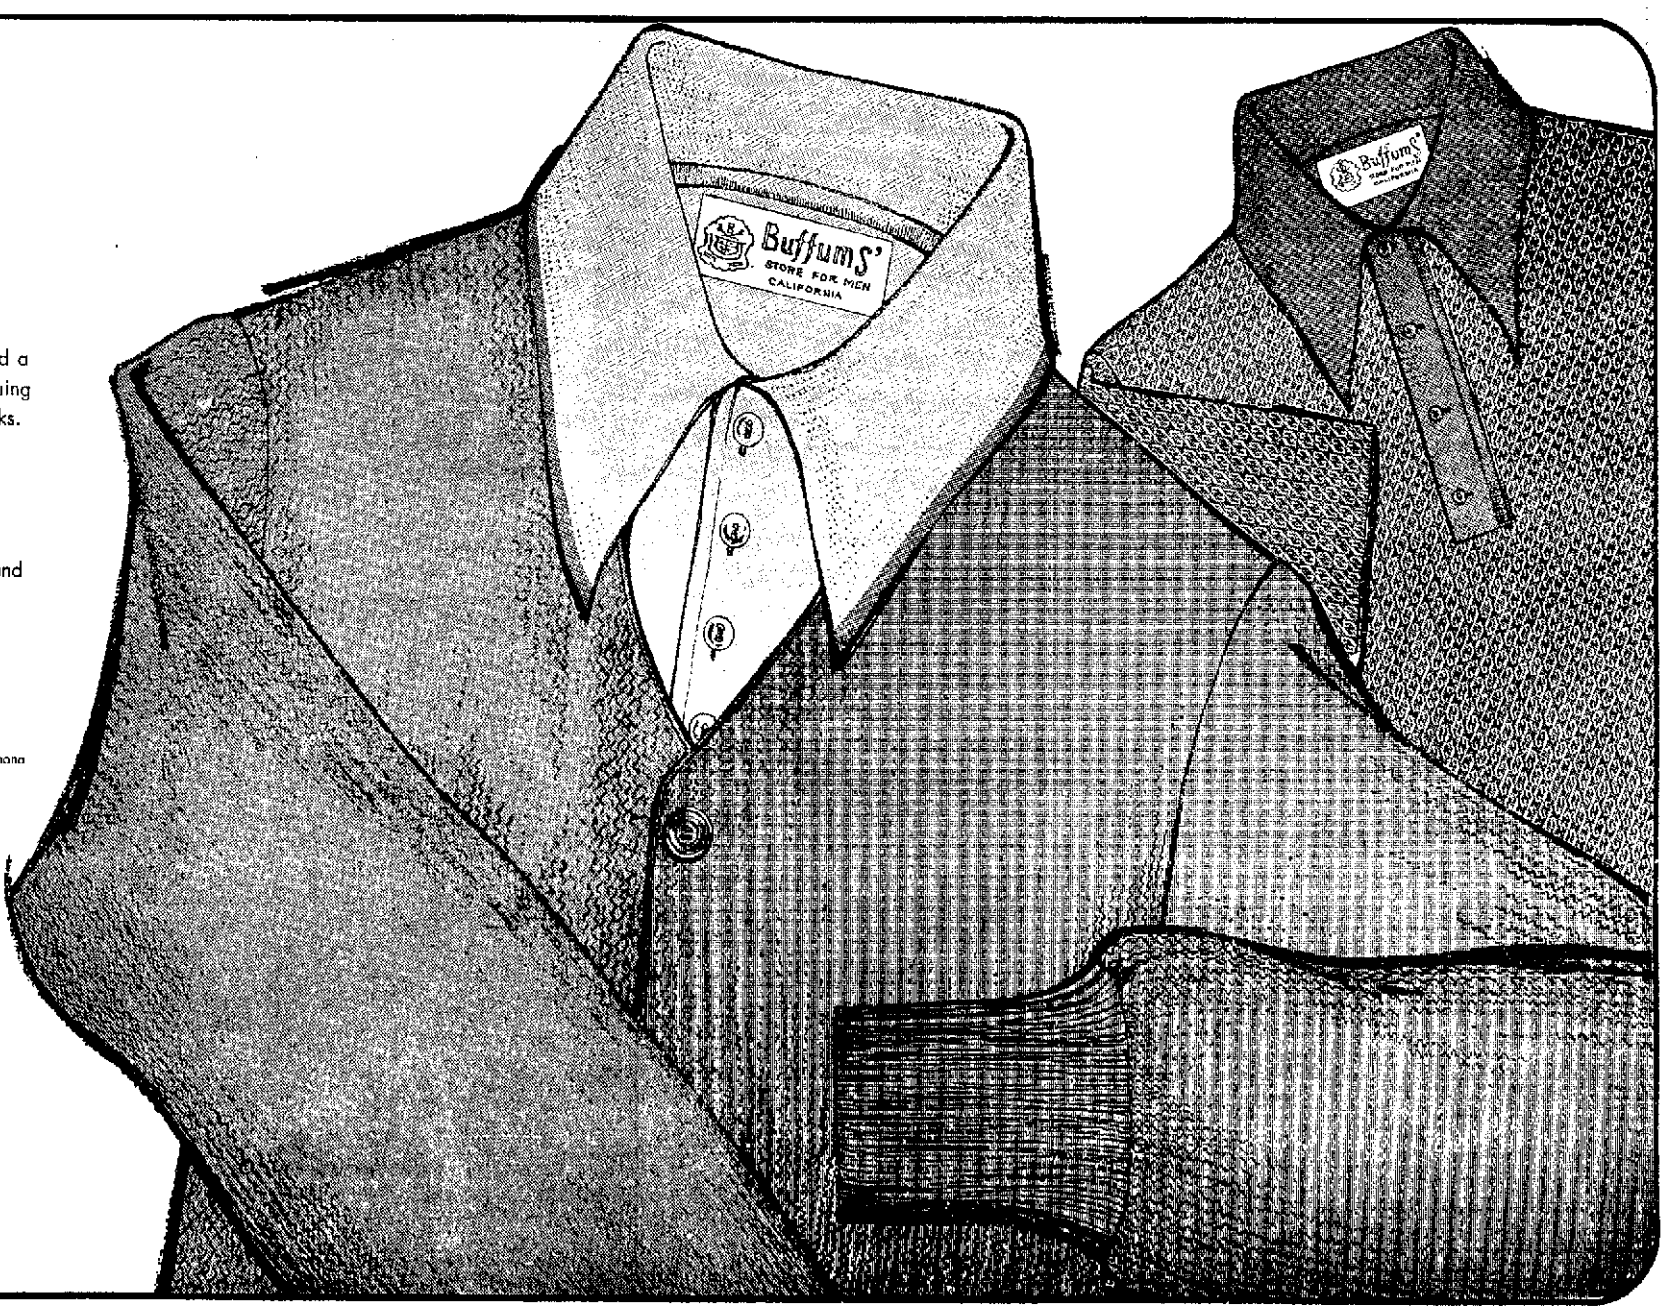

Associated Press

Under a $5-million contract awarded by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, Rohr Industries, Inc. of Chula Vista, will build an experimental 100-foot-long vehicle designed to travel on a cushion of air at speeds up to 150 miles an hour.

Rohr's design, developed under a federal contract given last July, calls for the vehicle to carry 60 passengers and travel without wheels. It is to be powered by a pollution-free electric motor.

White House names those going to Peking

New York Times Service

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — The White House announced Saturday the names of those who will accompnay President and Mrs. Nixon to China as members of the official party.

The 13 names contain few, if any, surprises. They are: Secretary of State William P. Rogers; Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser; H. R. Haldeman, assistant to the President; Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary; Brig. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, military assistant to the President; and Marshall Green, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs.

ALSO, Dwight L. Chapin, deputy assistant to the President; John A. Scali, special consultant to the President; Patrick J. Buchanan, special assistant to the President; Rose Mary Woods, personal secretary to the President; Alfred L. Jenkins, director for Asian Communist affairs, State Department; John Holdridge, staff member of the National Security Council, and Winston Lord, special assistant to Kissinger.

Of these people, Ziegler said, Holdridge speaks Mandarin Chinese. The press secretary said there will be three interpreters on the trip — all of them, he believed, from the State Department.

In addition to these people, Ziegler said there will be an "unofficial" party of "approximately 21." He said this group would include Gerald L. Warren, deputy press secretary; Dr. Walter Tkach, the President's physician; Ronald Walker, a staff assistant to the President who is leading the group now in China; Timothy Elbourne, a press aide; and staff and secretarial personnel from the National Security Council and Chapin's staff.

ZIEGLER refused to list all of the people in the "unofficial" party because, he said, "they fall into the area of secretarial" assistants. In response to a question, he said none of them were military or intelligence personnel.

The press secretary took pains to point out that the total of those going constitute "only a small working party," as the President had indicated it would. Pressed as to why the group had been kept small, he said because the President's "purpose is to involve himself in substantive discussions with leaders of the People's Republic of China." He also pointed out that "we've never visited a country we've never had relations with before" and indicated that Chinese cooperation about such matters as communication had helped reduce the number of people needed.

Pressed as to whether the Chinese had set a limit, he said: "We suggested numbers to the People's Republic of China . . . it was worked out between the People's Republic and the United States . . . it was not dictated to us."

In addition to the "official" and "unofficial" parties, Ziegler said, there will also be on the trip: about 10 members of his own press staff; "a small group" of security personnel; communications technicians, and military support people.

HE SAID that the press and the people associated with it would total 168: 87 members of the press, 13 satellite ground station technicians and 6 other communications and technical personnel. Some of these technical people will also be providing communications for the White House, he added, when it uses their facilities.

The primary form of communication, according to Ziegler, will be by satellite, with "a lot of back-up systems for presidential use." He said the back-ups include Air Force One, the President's plane; "A small so-called suitcase satellite" — a self-contained one-channel unit in a small pack that can transmit to another satellite, part of the military communications system; and another form of back-up, which he would not describe, that will also be maintained by the White House Communications Agency.

Diplomatic talks

TOKYO (UPI) Japan will soon begin talks with Mongolia on the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries, Foreign Office sources said Saturday.

Defense spending hike held needed

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The United States must increase military commitments to its allies while boosting its own defense spending in the next 20 years, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Saturday.

He told members of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce that his defense budget report to Congress next week would detail the power gap between the United States and the Soviet Union, between NATO and the Warsaw Pact," he said.

Facing the challenge of the next 20 years, he said, "will require an increase in terms of our military commitments to our allies and an increase in our own defense spending."

The biggest challenge is in overcoming the advantage gained by the Soviet Union in the past five years, Laird said.

"While we were spending $20 billion in Southeast Asia, the Soviet Union was spending only about $1 billion," he explained.

"The rest of their defense budget, which is about the same as our own, was spent on research and development and modernizing their defenses."

While the Soviet Union spends about 27 per cent of its military budget for "people costs," Laird said the United States spends 52 per cent.

"The United States must take this reality into account and change its strategy accordingly," he said.

HE ALSO called for more cooperation from allies. "If we share with our partners and allies the costs of research and development, the resources, and the costs of meeting the manpower reality — only then will we be able to meet the challenge posed by the Soviet Union," he said.

He called on the United States to "lessen our reliance on ground manpower resources, and increase our reliance on sea power and airpower."

The Department of Defense is interested in the success of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, Laird said, "but if we are to make any headway we cannot afford to cut back now on our defense spending."

Russ said keeping cool until Nixon visit

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet leaders are doing everything they can to make sure nothing rocks the international political boat between now and President Nixon's visit to Moscow in the spring, Communist diplomats said Saturday.

Orders have reportedly gone out to avoid any action that could cloud the prospects for the meetings scheduled at that time.

Kremlin leaders expect to learn what, if anything, was achieved at the preceding Peking meeting between Nixon and the Chinese.

The diplomats called it a "political-holding operation" on the part of the Soviets. They said major decisions and commitments are being delayed until after the May visit.

The diplomats cited Moscow's strong pressure on Egypt not to precipitate a war in the Middle East now, as an example of the Soviet holding policy.

Moscow also is delaying any key decision on strategic-arms limitation pending the meeting with the President, they said.

Soviet pressure for the much-sought European Security Conference was said to have eased for the present — though the idea has by no means been abandoned.

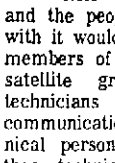

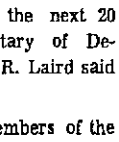

The Russians were also believed to be marking time in the Far East while exploiting chances of further expansion of Soviet influence. No major moves were anticipated in the next few months.

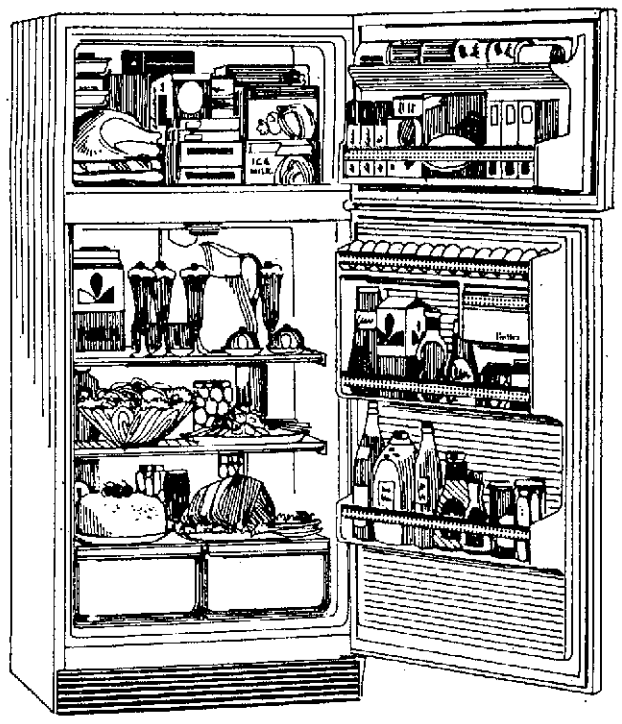

Officially, Soviet propaganda continues to blow hot against so-called American "aggressive imperialism," notably in Vietnam. But diplomatic sources indicated this was intended largely to boost Soviet prestige and influence in Hanoi at the expense of China.

The sources said Moscow is in fact far more worried about what China may do when Chairman Mao Tse-Tung and Premier Chou En-Lai meet with Nixon than about what the United States may offer Peking.

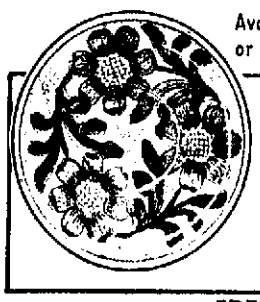

Uncertainty over China's new political course and fear of a major turnabout in Peking's strategy were said to be causing Kremlin leaders nightmares — chiefly because they consider the Mao regime capable of "almost anything" at the expense of Russia.

U.S. seizes shipments of pesticide

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency Saturday announced the seizure of two shipments of pesticides for alleged violation of federal pesticide control regulations.

The agency said federal marshals seized six 5-gallon drums of the herbicide 2,4,5-T in Sunnyside, Wash., last Jan. 24, after EPA charged that the product's label did not carry directions for use adequate to prevent injury to human beings or animals.

MARSHALS also seized 311 gallons of the insecticide Dieldrin on Jan. 22 at Altus, Okla. EPA said it charged that the product was shipped between states although it was not registered for interstate shipment, that it carried inadequate directions for use, that the label's statement of contents was inaccurate, and that the product was adulterated.

EPA said the 2,4,5-T had been shipped by American Oil Co. from its agricultural chemical plant at Twin Falls, Idaho, to the American Oil Farm and Home Center at Sunnyside, Wash.

The agency said the dieldrin was shipped by the Helena Chemical Co.-Southwest from Lubbock, Tex., to Altus, Okla.

Hickel urges U.S. action on ecology

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel said Saturday "a national approach is absolutely necessary" to solve environmental problems.

Hickel toured this resort sea island and visited the 1,800-acre site at Port Victoria of a planned $200-million petrochemical plant that he worked against building in 1969.

"The concern and action of citizens is needed to keep the government alert to environmental issues," he told a luncheon gathering of island residents and environmentalists.

Industry should be regulated as part of its cost of doing business, he said, and government should plan well ahead the uses for the 1.5-million square miles of land it owns.

Meeting later with a youth group, he said that "in the past, national emphasis has been on free enterprise to make a living. In the future, it will be on making a life as well as a living."

National priorities, he said, should be toward the careful use of depletable resources without abusing renewable ones.

Alaskan oil pipe laying held in doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., says the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline has only a 50-50 chance of ever being built and, if it is, construction is unlikely to begin this year.

"The administration doesn't want to make the Alaska pipeline an election-year issue," Aspin said Sunday in a speech in Wisconsin. "Nixon is particularly concerned with his environmental record and he is not about to give the Democrats another issue — even if it means offending the oil industry."

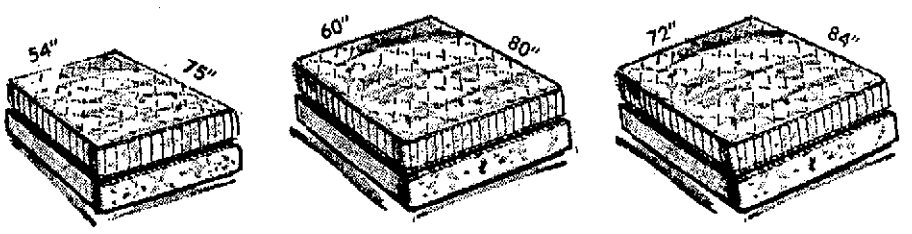

A YEAR AGO, Aspin said, he thought the odds were 50-1 that the pipeline would be built.

"But I would now rate the odds for eventual construction of the pipeline as no better than even," he added.

9 Arizona delegates pledged to Muskie

Associated Press

Arizona Democrats selected 25 delegates Saturday to their party's national convention, including nine committed to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

The nearly 500 Arizona state convention delegates, after two hours of debate, agreed to uphold the allocation of the state's 25 national convention delegates chosen earlier by the camps of presidential hopefuls.

That agreement, which was affirmed by a 303-148 convention vote, gave Muskie nine delegates, Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York six, and Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota six. Four delegates will go to the convention uncommitted, and one other will be elected at large.

Of the 500 meeting in Phoenix, 191 were for Muskie, 118 for Lindsay, 101 for McGovern, 84 uncommitted and six others.

Other political developments Saturday:

In Orlando, Fla., a three-judge federal panel refused to extend Saturday's 5 p.m. deadline for voter registration in Florida's March 14 primary. An estimated 146,000 additional persons became eligible to vote when the state's residency requirements — one year in the state and six months in the county — were ruled unconstitutional Thursday.

The Boston Globe, in a copyrighted story, said a poll conducted for the newspaper in New Hampshire showed Muskie leading Nixon 48 to 42 per cent, with 4 per cent going to Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and 6 per cent uncommitted. In a two-way race between Muskie and Nixon, Nixon moved to within 1 per cent of Muskie or tied him.

In Madison, Wis., State Democratic Chairman William Gerrard said his state's 67 national convention delegates will include substantial numbers of women, young people, and minority group members.

On the campaign trail Saturday:

— Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., told 250 delegates to the AFL-CIO's Pioneer Valley conference in Chicopee, Mass., he plans to introduce a bill designed to protect Americans "against the worst practices of multinational corporations." He referred to American companies which manufacture products in other countries for sale in the U.S. or abroad.

— Referring to a "powerful new force" of women in economics and politics, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., reiterated his pledge to appoint a woman to the U.S. Supreme Court if elected president. Humphrey, in a speech to the Central Florida Women's Committee in Orlando, called America's women "an untapped reservoir of talent, creativity and productivity."

— Humphrey also announced appointment of former U.S. chief of protocol Lloyd Hand as his chief of staff and deputy campaign manager.

Union council eyes Demos

By DONALD FINLEY

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The AFL-CIO Executive Council, looking for a Democrat to endorse for the presidency, opens its midwinter meeting Monday in the same Miami Beach hotel where George Meany gave President Nixon the cold shoulder last fall.

The 35 high-ranking union officials on the council are expected to make new attacks against Nixon's economy policy, which the President told the AFL-CIO convention last November he would pursue with or without labor support.

It was at that time, in the plush oceanside Americana Hotel, that AFL-CIO President Meany and convention delegate gave Nixon what the White House called a rude reception. Some delegates laughed derisively when he said his wage-price controls had been a success.

NEITHER NIXON nor any of his lieutenants plan to appear at the Americana during the 10-day council meeting, but the labor leaders are expected to press their charge that Nixon's economic controls favor business and the wealthy at the expense of workers and the poor.

Labor also claims that wage controls are being rigidly enforced by employers, but that price controls are ineffective. One major question up for discussion is whether labor's representatives should continue to serve on the pay board.

The November AFL-CIO convention adopted a resolution directing Meany and its other two representatives on the Pay Board to continue serving only as long as the board dealt fairly with workers.

DEMOCRATIC presidential contenders, most of them already in Florida campaigning for that state's March 14 presidential primary, will be at the Americana Hotel one by one to meet with union leaders.

But Meany has made it clear that the AFL-CIO itself will remain officially neutral in the scramble for the Democratic nomination, and will wait until after the party nominating conventions this summer before endorsing a candidate.

Individual affiliated unions and labor leaders are free to make presidential endorsements and lend their support before the conventions. One of them, President Jerry Wurf of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, already has endorsed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

THERE'S NO doubt that the AFL-CIO will support the Democratic nominee, as it usually does, despite Meany disclaimers of a neutral stance at this point.

Last month Alexander E. Barkan, who directs political and campaign fund raising and spending for the AFL-CIO, wrote in the federation's official newspaper that "the AFL-CIO has set as its primary political goal in 1972 the defeat of Richard Nixon's bid for reelection."

Meany later dismissed this as only Barkan's opinion and not the official position of the AFL-CIO, but it left little doubt the federation will support the Democratic ticket this year regardless of whom the Democrats nominate.

Although officially staying out of the Democratic contest, the AFL-CIO plans to get as many labor-oriented people as possible selected as delegates to the Democratic convention in Miami Beach in July.

Police arrest nine anti-Nixon youths

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Antiwar demonstrators clashed with police Saturday as Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney opened a campaign headquarters for President Nixon.

At least nine persons from a crowd of about 100 chanting, youthful demonstrators were taken into custody during the shoving and pushing incident in the street outside a glass-front office where Romney was speaking.

"Apparently our friends outside have stepped out of line," said Romney as the disturbance began.

About 50 Nixon supporters were inside the office at the time.

Witnesses said the melee began when a demonstrator swung at a policeman. Police moved in to clear the street, and a shoving and pushing match erupted.

Officers held two men for a police van, while the crowd chanted, "Let them go." When the van arrived, the crowd surged forward and there was more shoving and pushing. Witnesses said objects were thrown at police.

At least seven additional persons were put into the van with the two the police already had in custody. It took police about 10 minutes to restore order.

Romney left the area without further incident. No injuries were reported.

DOESN'T WANT OFFICE

Mills just wants name on ballots

By GREGG HERRINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wilbur D. Mills, the legislatively potent Arkansas congressman with the now-you-see-it, now-you-don't presidential campaign, said Saturday he has no particular desire to take over the White House.

But the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee is packing his bags for a trip Tuesday to New Hampshire, a primary-election state where his supporters are running him as a write-in candidate. Mills said as he has for months, he has no plans to campaign for the Democratic nomination because he hasn't the time, money or inclination.

"I've said repeatedly I know too much about the presidency, really, to want it, as some seem to want it," the 62-year-old veteran of 32 years in Congress said in a telephone interview.

"SOME OF my friends are behind" the draft Mills movement, he said. "I haven't been encouraging them. Unless you call a smile encouragemet. I'm smiling occasionally."

Mills announced Friday he will allow his name to remain on the Democratic presidential primary ballots in Wisconsin and Nebraska. But, he said, it is incorrect to interpret that move as a declaration of candidacy.

"My position is the same as it was all last fall," Mills said. He said his name will be placed in nomination at the Miami Beach convention by the Arkansas delegation and "if I should be nominated I would accept it."

One new wrinkle seemed to be Mills's concession that he will actively seek uncommitted delegates once he arrives at the convention, however.

"OH YES," he said. "I'll have delegates there and will be seeking them in Miami Beach.

"But I don't have the time to campaign in these primaries and don't have the money. If I did, I wouldn't spend it. I have some Irish and Scotch ancestry."

Despite his campaign disclaimer, Mills said he was busy Saturday writing a speech for delivery in Concord Tuesday to a joint session of the New Hampshire legislature. Mills said he will talk about proposed federal revenue - sharing legislation.

But it will be Mill's first trip to New Hampshire since his boosters opened a campaign headquarters in Manchester several weeks ago.

Mills said he took action to keep his name on the ballots in Wisconsin and Nebraska because the only alternative was a statement that, without qualification, he is not a candidate and does not intend to become one.

MILLS SAID he would also allow his name to stay on the ballot for the April 25 Massachusetts primary. The Wisconsin test is April 4 and the Nebraska primary is May 9.

In the New Hampshire primary March 7 the Mills write-in campaign faces opposition from four Democrats, including Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of neighboring Maine, who is expected to win easily.

Mills said "my supporters are very enthusiastic in New Hampshire and tell me I'll have a credible showing. I don't know what a 'credible showing' is though."

WILBUR D. MILLS
Packing His Bags

Terry Shea, manager of the Mills campaign office in Washington, said Saturday Mills will surprise people in New Hampshire.

"The good senator from Maine isn't going to get the 64 per cent he has said he'll come out with," Shea said.

Kennedy backs amnesty as way to unite nation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Saturday he favors amnesty for men who fled the United States to avoid serving in the Vietnam war because it will serve to unite the country "in the wake of one of most unfortunate chapters in American history."

"I favor amnesty and I don't believe we ought to set conditions for people to receive amnesty," Kennedy said. "And I think if you start right off and say that the war is wrong, as practically all political leaders would agree at this time . . . then you say that it was the government that was wrong, it was the leadership that was wrong at that times and it was these young people who left the country that were right about the war and why they ought to be additionally penalized for their deep-seated feelings or beliefs is something that I don't understand."

Continuing his views on amnesty, Kennedy said "now these young people are going to come back to this country. I think one of the great challenges new for us in this nation is a question of reconciliation."

"It's a reconciliation," he said "between the old and the young, and the black and the white, and the urban and rural people. We've been played against each other for long enough. I think that's one of the real problems of this administration. And what we're interested in is reconciliation, to bring this country together in the wake of one of the most unfortunate chapters in American history."

COURT WIDENS ELIGIBILITY

New Fla. voters register

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Florida's registration books closed Saturday with hundreds of newly eligible voters crowding in at the last minute to qualify to cast ballots in the March 14 presidential-preference primary.

Dorothy Glisson, state elections supervisor, said it would be impossible to determine for at least a week how many of the estimated 146,000 persons enfranchised 48 hours earlier had signed up.

A three-judge federal panel Thursday scrapped a one-year state and six-month county residency requirement law, leaving the doors open for an influx of new arrivals.

Arriving in Miami late Saturday, radical activist Jerry Rubin popped into a department store and added his name to the books, registering as a Republican to "mystify and disorient" the party system.

Nixon in 'hiding' O'Brien charges

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said Saturday President Nixon's re-election campaign is designed to play down Nixon's identity.

O'Brien called the Republican campaign a "cynical game to hide Richard Milhous Nixon in the cloak of the presidency," hoping voters will forget Nixon's name.

HE SAID the name "instantly conjures up the image of 6 million unemployed persons in America and an administration that has turned its back on them and their families."

The Democratic party chief noted Nixon's reelection campaign is run by the "Committee for the Reelection of the President" and said bumper stickers say "Reelect the President."

"Why are they hiding his identity?" O'Brien asked in a speech for a Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner in Manchester.

"IS IT because," O'Brien asked, "they know that their candidate has on 12 occasions vetoed legislation that goes to the heart of our domestic difficulties and touches the everyday lives of our citizens — health, jobs, child care, veterans' care, education?"

O'Brien said Nixon will attempt to "entice the American people away from their concern over their livelihoods, their children, their sick, their elderly . . ."

Kennick will seek third Senate term

SEN. JOSEPH KENNICK
Pledges Untiring Effort

State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, has announced he will seek re-election in the 33rd Senatorial District.

Kennick, a 14-year member of the California Legislature, was elected to the Assembly in 1958, the Senate in 1966 and re-elected to a four-year term in 1968.

"It has been a real privilege to represent the outstanding communities which comprise my senatorial district," said Kennick. "I look forward to serving these fine people again and continue the many worthwhile programs we have undertaken together."

He said the 33rd District, which consists of portions of Long Beach, Lakewood, Bellflower, Carson, Compton, Downey, Paramount, Lynwood and the Dominguez area, "encompasses every facet of life" and he pledged untiring effort to serve the wide spectrum of interests among the district's 500,000 residents.

The senator is a member of the powerful, five-member Senate Rules Committee to which he was elected in 1966 and is the first senator from Los Angeles County to serve on that committee in 48 years.

He also serves on the health and welfare, transportation and governmental organizations committees. He was appointed to the Joint Committees on Aging and the Joint Committee on Seismic Safety.

Kennick was born in Saginaw, Mich. in 1905 and came to Long Beach as a child. He was educated at Poly High School, Southwestern University Law School and the School of Government at USC.

He and his wife Ruth live at 2375 Eucalyptus Ave., Long Beach, and are the parents of Mrs. Joan Ruth Scott of San Jose and David M. Kennick, deputy Long Beach city attorney.

Mallonee seeks seat in Congress

WALTER L. MALLONEE
In 32nd District

Walter L. Mallonee, 53, educator and businessman, announced Saturday he will seek the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Long Beach-Orange County 32nd District. Mallonee was the party's nominee in 1970.

A resident of the congressional area for more than 50 years, Mallonee has taught in the Compton School District for 34 years and has owned and operated a junior department store in North Long Beach for more than 30 years.

THE CANDIDATE vowed "a determined campaign of conscience dedicated to full and honest debate of the vital issues challenging us all—the despair of unemployment, the agony of endless torment in Vietnam, the desperate demands for dignity through justice and respect for human rights, the crushing weight of spiraling taxation, the mindless disregard for our environment—all of these dare us to have the courage to search for new answers and new leadership. I am hopeful that my campaign can provide both."

Citing the apparent indifference of the federal government to continuing high unemployment, Mallonee called for a national commitment to full employment including, as a first step, establishment of child day care centers, federally funded but with complete local control.

He suggested an intensive national program of home construction and renovation utilizing the currently unemployed.

As a teacher through his adult life, Mallonee said he sees education as a national responsibility. "The federal government has to recognize its obligation to help the local taxpayer who is in danger of drowning in an increasingly stormy sea of property taxes."

HE WOULD have the federal government assume its fair share of responsibility for guarding the environment against abusers. "Even if it requires a congressional brickbat, we have to get every president of every company in this country to carry his share of the burden."

Mallonee graduated from the University of Redlands, pursued his graduate work at USC and is now a parttime law student at Pacific Coast University.

He and his wife of 22 years, Adola, have six children, three of whom attend local schools. They live at 6433 California Ave.

He is a member of the California Teachers Association and the National Educators Association. He is an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Mallonee is a member and treasurer of the district's Democratic State Central Committee. He was chairman of a recent district-wide platform caucus subcommittee on taxation.

L.A. man slain after card game

An argument about a card game led to the death of one South Los Angeles man and the arrest of another on suspicion of murder, sheriff's deputies said.

Leroy Spibey, 34, of 11400 S. San Pedro St., died shortly after midnight Saturday after he was stabbed in the chest with a butcher knife.

Deputies arrested James McDuffy, 21, of 333 E. 112th St., in connection with the stabbing.

Investigators said the two men had apparently been playing cards at a house at 12813 S. San Pedro St. when the incident occured.

Body found in drainage ditch still unidentified

WOODLAND (UPI) — Yolo County Sheriff's deputies Saturday were still attempting to identify a man whose weighted body was discovered when a fisherman snagged it in a drainage ditch.

Authorities said about 40 pounds of metal, including part of an electric motor, were wired to the waist and legs of the victim.

The body was found Friday by Jerry Gilbertson of Carmichael in a drainage ditch northwest of Knights Landing.

BY FEDERAL COMMISSION

End to pot penalties asked

By FRED P. GRAHAM

WASHINGTON — The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse has decided unanimously to recommend that all criminal penalties be eliminated for the private use and possession of marijuana.

No state has yet gone this far, and the recommendation of the conservatively oriented 13-member commission, which includes nine members appointed by President Nixon, could generate a dramatic shift in the public's attitudes toward the legal status of the drug.

IT COMES at a time when marijuana use has become widespread among young people and yet most political figures have maintained the law-and-order response that criminal penalties should not be abolished.

The report of the commission, which will be presented to Congress and Nixon on March 22, is scheduled to go to the government's printers Wednesday. Although a few minor points are said to be still in doubt, sources who have been closely associated with the commission reported recently that the group has decided use of the drug should be virtually "de-criminalized."

According to these sources, the commission members were persuaded by the 50 reports they commissioned, plus the testimony at the 10 hearings and four private sessions conducted during their one-year study, that the cost to society of the current stiff marijuana penalties outweighs the dangers that might occur from liberalizing present restrictions.

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. Times Service

"THERE IS increasing evidence that we are approaching a situation similar to that at the time the Volstead Act was repealed" and prohibition against the use of alcohol was ended, Dr. James T. Carey, a professor of criminology at the University of California at Berkeley, wrote in his report to the commission.

One of the most persuasive elements behind the commission's conclusion was the similarity it found between the extensive disregard of current marijuana laws and the period just before the end of prohibition, when millions of Americans were drinking alcohol illegally. A study by the commission found that about 24 million Americans have used marijuana.

The commission's recommendation, however, does not amount to proposing the full legalization of marijuana, because it favors criminal penalties for the sale of the drug, even among friends.

IT ALSO would not amount to full decriminalization, because persons who use it could still go to jail for such actions as growing it, giving it to friends, transporting it or smoking it in public.

The commission's surprisingly liberal conclusions were dictated by the results of studies which made three points: That marijuana is not addictive and cannot be shown to be physically or psychologically harmful, even after long use; that it does not appear to lead to the use of hard drugs, such as heroin; and that it does not lead to crime.

There was also little or no evidence that marijuana has any beneficial aspects, and the commission report will unanimously oppose its use.

IT IS the commission's recommendations aimed at discouraging the drug's use that has split the group. The conservative majority has insisted that criminal penalties be retained for simple sale of the drug — that is, sales between friends and others not in the business of trafficking — severe penalties be reduced to some extent.

A majority of the commission members also are reported to favor declaring marijuana an illegal substance, so that it could be seized by police officials as contraband. This could lead to police raids on private quarters and other confrontations between police and young people. Liberals on the commission are said to have hopes of eliminating this from the report's final draft.

Another point of controversy is said to be the majority's insistence that marijuana use should be illegal outside the privacy of the home. Studies show it is a social drug, smoked most often at parties, and the "home" approach would leave open a thicket of questions about the legality of marijuana-smoking at rock concerts, cocktail lounges, fraternity houses and dormitories.

HEW PUTS PARTIAL BAN ON SMOKING IN ITS BUILDINGS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The huge Department of Health, Education and Welfare has ordered a partial smoking ban in its buildings across the country.

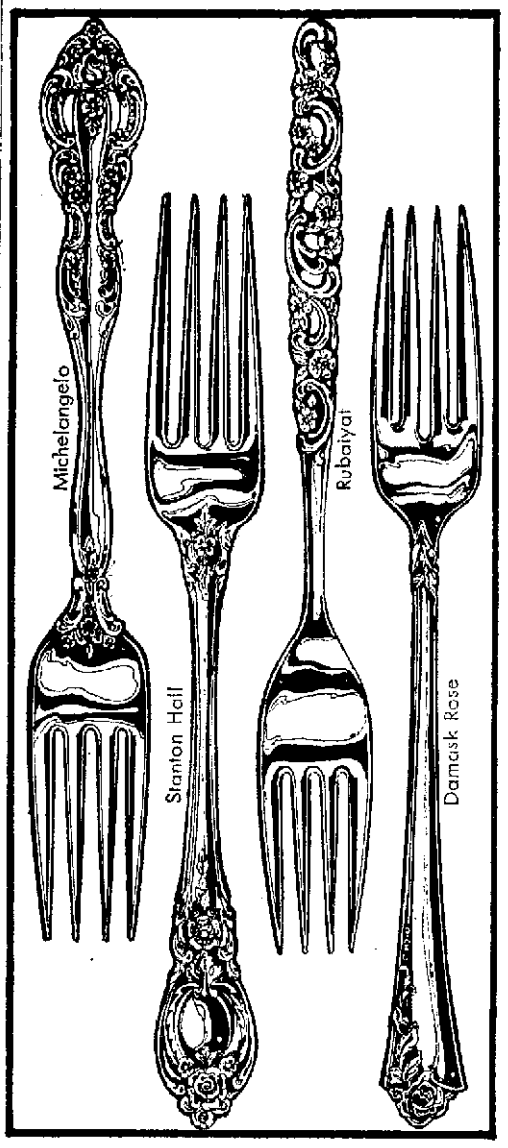

The department's 107,000 employes will be advised of the decision Monday in a memo from HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson.

The new policy prohibits smoking in conference rooms, auditoriums, clinics and elevators. No-smoking sections will be established in cafeterias and working areas where practivable.

"It is our hope that this will adequately safeguard the health and well-being of those who use our buildings without preventing those who may wish to smoke from doing so," Richardson said.

The ban will not apply in lobbies, corridors and restrooms because "smoking does not present a serious problem in these places where ventilation is adequate and where enforcement would be very difficult."

FUNNIES

DEADEYE

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — Gov. Winfield Dunn stopped by the Tennessee Highway Patrol target range last week. Handed a .38-caliber revolver Dunn fired five shots from a standing position—and hit the center of five man-sized targets.

Asked to try shooting from the hip, the governor fired five more shots—and zeroed in on five more targets. Asked about the governor's shooting prowess, a spokesman said Dunn was no sportsman—"just lucky, I guess."

NUDE

LONDON (UPI) — Wimbledon police charged a 19-year-old girl with offending public decency for riding a motorcycle nude across Wimbledon Common during a photographic session. An observer explained: "This sort of thing could cause some talk although the photographers didn't seem to mind."

BANDIT

A pint-sized would-be robber walked into a Los Angeles bank last week, showed an employe a note announcing a stickup and then left the office mumbling to himself when she told him she had no money, police said.

Officers said the 5 foot, 4 inch man handed a note to employe Marianne Sinn, 24, at about noon in the Security Pacific National Bank office at Los Angeles Airport. He handed her a note reading "This is a holdup. Don't push any buttons."

She didn't and told him he was in the note department and had no cash. He stalked indignantly out of the bank.

SNOW

CADILLAC, Mich. (AP) — The City of Cadillac has found a way to recycle snow. They are hauling it from the main street to nearby ski slopes.

TROUBLES

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Maybe Wilson Riles should have stayed home Friday.

The state schools chief had his first trouble of the day when two motions he strongly supported were narrowly rejected by the State Board of Education.

Then he walked outside to find he had been given a parking ticket while he was at the board meeting. An aide said Riles thought he did not have to put money in the meter since it was Lincoln's Birthday—a school holiday.

LIB AD

NEW YORK (UPI) — A department store ran an advertisement aimed at the women's liberation movement. It read: "Ms pants and skirts," "Ms panty girdles" and "Mr. and Ms better slippers."

Mardi Gras fever in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Residents of New Orleans and thousands of visitors, with a series of weekend parades, free-flowing liquor and general merry-making, are working up to the climax of the nation's oldest and biggest almost-no-holds-barred annual celebration — Mardi Gras.

Mardi Gras (Shrove Tuesday) is Tuesday. It is the climax of a carnival calendar that opened in December with a series of carnival balls. Nightly parades started last weekend and continued in an increasing tempo through this weekend.

THREE hundred thousand persons are expected to jam the business district and French Quarter Tuesday to welcome Rex, king of carnival, followed by an all-day procession of floats and decorated trucks.

In the crowd will be groups of young people who came to New Orleans with little planning and about the same amount of money.

The American Civil Liberties Union, reporting it received "several dozen" complaints about police harassment of youthful carnival visitors, issued notices for youths to "come at your own risk."

IN RIO de Janeiro, shops closed, banks rolled protective steel screens, police and firemen began their biggest security job of the year — trying to keep up with the epidemic of summer madness and mirth. Carnival began at noon Saturday in Rio.

Nothing reopens until Ash Wednesday when the native madness — called "Folia" — fizzles down to a hangover. Officially carnival lasts only two days, Tuesday and Ash Wednesday, but city fathers accept the inevitable and bolt the city down for four days from noon Saturday to noon Wednesday, the time police officially permit dancing in the streets.

Facts You Should Know About Gold

By Mike Dreyer of LAWSON'S JEWELERS
Downtown Long Beach Only

Continuing our reprints from the Better Business Bureau Educational Division of its publication "Facts You Should Know About Jewelry", we shall deal with the various metals. Gold — Silver — Platinum and other related metals. First is, of course, GOLD.

Gold — Pure (solid) gold is 24K. 14K means that the gold in the article weighs 14/24ths of the weight of the entire article. The rest of the weight comprises other metals mixed with the gold, such as nickel, zinc, copper, silver. 14K most commonly used; 18K frequently used in high style jewelry; and 10K in less expensive yellow or white gold jewelry. Pure gold (24K) is so soft, it is not used in commercial jewelry. Karat gold articles are stamped with the karat designation — but no karat stamp on less than 10K. On articles manufactured after June 1962, the karat mark must be accompanied by the name or trademark of the person or concern who applies that marking.

Gold-Filled, Gold-Plated — In these articles a base metal is covered by a sheet of karat gold. On articles other than watch cases, the quality is stamped by a mark such as "1/10 12K Gold Filled" or "1/30 10K Rolled Gold Plate," which means that 1/10 of the weight of the article is 12K gold, etc.

Gold Electro-Plated — Such articles have the least amount of gold. The gold is applied to a metal by an electrolytic process. The thickness of this electroplating is measured in millionths of an inch. A "Gold washed" or "gold flashed" article has even less. A "gold-filled" article usually has more gold than a gold-plated article and will wear better.

You may be sure that articles not stamped as to gold content, as explained above, are either electro-plated or have so little gold as not to warrant a karat marking. Such articles as above are produced with yellow, white or green gold, but these colors do not affect quality.

ALTERNATIVE TO DISPUTED JOSEPHUS WORK OFFERED

New evidence of historical Jesus claimed

By PETER GROSE
New York Times Service

JERUSALEM — Two Israeli scholars believe thay have unraveled an elusive mystery of early Christianity — an apparently forged description of Jesus attributed to the Jewish-Roman historian Flavius Josephus.

On the basis of a 10th-century Arabic manuscript by an obscure bishop of the Eastern church, the scholars think they have strengthened the independent historical evidence for the existence and activities of Jesus of Nazareth.

SHLOMO PINES, professor of philosophy at Hebrew University, has reported the discovery of a long-overlooked version of a passage about Jesus attributed to Josephus. He concludes that it is far closer to what the first-century historian may have written than the highly suspect text handed down through the centuries.

Another Hebrew University scholar, David Flusser, professor of comparative religion, carries his colleague's research a step further to suggest the identity of the man who may have have contrived the false text and how he did it.

For more than a century scholars have tried — and failed — to confirm the life and works of Jesus through a non-Christian source — a text that would not have been colored by the militant faith of the early believers. The earliest Christian sources, the Gospels, are believed to have been written at least a quarter of a century after the crucifixion.

The works of Josephus, who lived from A.D. 37 to about A.D. 100, were the obvious place to look since his detailed accounts of politics and religion in first-century Palestine, published near the end of the century, were written from the viewpoint of a Jew turned pagan.

YET MODERN Christian scholars are almost unanimous in considering the passage on Jesus in the Greek texts of "The Antiquities of the Jews" by Josephus to be "too Christian" — that is, a forgery by church leaders of the third and fourth century designed to bolster the historical legitimacy of their faith.

What Pines says he has located is an earlier version of the passage, unaltered to reflect church teachings about the divinity of Jesus. He reports his discovery in a monograph published in English by the Israeli Academy of Sciences and Humanities.

The research is probably not conclusive enough to satisfy extreme skeptics, and Pines concedes as much. But Flusser, in a still-unpublished paper, assembles considerable evidence to support the view that the newly discovered text is, in fact, authentic Josephus without Christian interpolation.

IN THE monograph Pines writes: "Few historical texts, or none, have been more often quoted, more passionately rejected and denounced as literary forgeries, more devoutly defended, more carefully edited and more variously emended than the so-called testimonium Flavianum, a short passage in Josephus' 'Antiquities of the Jews' (XVII, 63-64) dealing with Jesus."

Josephus defected to the Romans, became a pagan, and settled in Rome to write his histories of the Jewish wars against the Romans, in, which he had fought.

While the suspect passage describes Jesus as the messiah and states his resurrection as a fact, the newly discovered version is close to the Greek wording and gives positive impressions of Jesus but attributes the beliefs in his divinity to the Christians.

The Josephus passage "contains perhaps the earliest evidence concerning Jesus written down by a man who was not a Christian," Pines says — hence the tantalizing search for an unimpeachable version.

THE CONCLUSIONS reached by Pines are based on analysis of the 10th century text in Arabic, which has long been known to scholars but has apparently never been examined in this context. The manuscript is entitled "Kitab al-unwan al-mukallal bi-fadail al-hikma al-mutawwaj bi-anwa al-falsafa al-manduh bi-haqaq al-marifa," which means approximately "Book of History Guided by All the Virtues of Wisdom, Crowned with Various Philosophies and Blessed by the Truth of Knowledge."

In the manuscript, written by one Bishop Agapius, Pines came upon a section beginning: "We have found in many books of the philosophers that they refer to the day of the crucifixion of Christ." Then it lists and quotes passages from ancient works, some familiar to modern scholars, some not.

On the list is the passage: "Similarly Josephus the Hebrew. For he says in the treatises that he has written on the governances of the Jews . . ." Then Agapius quotes the Testimonium, but in a form significantly different from the customary one.

DISCUSSING the Arabic version, Pines writes: "It is so different from the Vulgate (Greek) version that hardly any of the arguments or, perhaps, none, disproving the authenticity of the latter have any validity with regard to it. In the main, this authenticity has been questioned because of the pronounced Christian traits of the Testimonium; in Agapius's

Two texts of disputed document

New York Times Service

Following are the two passages about Jesus in "Antiquities of the Jews," a first century history by Flavius Josephus. The traditional Greek text, as here translated by L.H. Feldmann in the Loeb Classical Library edition, has generally been dismissed by Christian scholars as an ancient forgery. The Arabic text newly discovered in a 10th century manuscript and translated into English by Prof. Shlomo Pines, has been called the more authentic earlier version by Pines and his colleagues at the Hebrew University. Prof. David Flusser.

TRADITIONAL GREEK TEXT

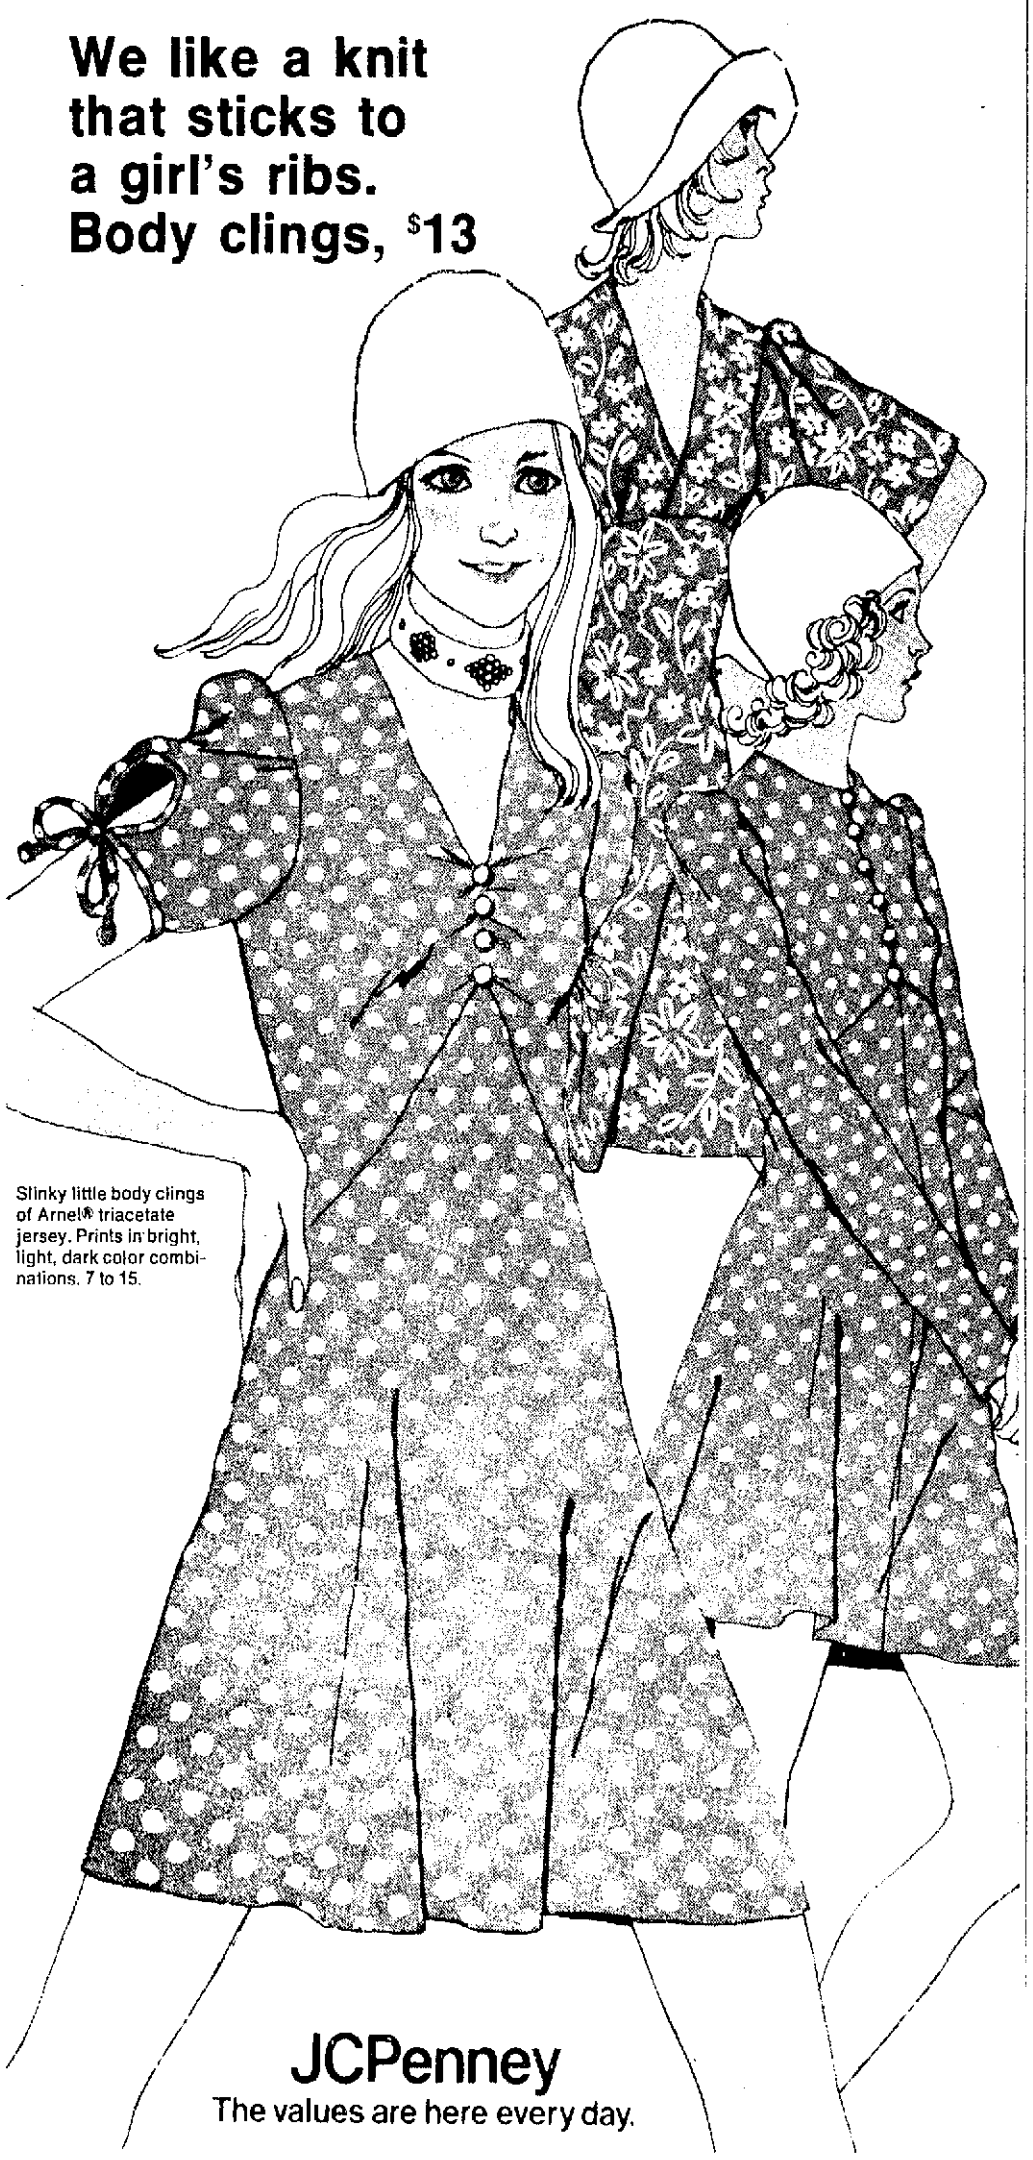

About this time there lived Jesus, a wise man, if indeed one ought to call Him a man. For He was one who wrought surprising feats and was a teacher of such people as accept the truth gladly. He won over many Jews and many of the Greeks. He was the Messiah. When Pilate, upon hearing Him accused by men of the highest standing among us, had condemned Him to be crucified, those who had in the first place come to love (Him) did not cease. On the third day he appeared to them restored to life, for the prophets of God had prophesied these and myriads of the marvelous (things) about Him. And the tribe of the Christians, so called after Him, has still up to now, not disappeared.

ARABIC TEXT

At this time there was a wise man who was called Jesus. And His conduct was good, and (He) was known to be virtuous. And many people from among the Jews and the other nations became his disciples. Pilate condemned Him to be crucified and to die. And those who had become His disciples did not abandon His discipleship. They reported that he had appeared to them three days after his crucifixion and that He was alive; accordingly, He was perhaps the Messiah concerning whom the prophets have recounted wonders.

New evidence of Jesus' life claimed version these traits are conspicuous by their absence, a noncommittal attitude being taken up."

Pines concedes that the Arabic text is an indirect source that has passed through Christian hands, so he does not claim a watertight case against those who have argued that Josephus never wrote anything about Jesus, that the whole passage was inserted by church fathers and, indeed, that there is still no independent testimony that Jesus existed.

On that point Flusser is holder in maintaining the text's first-century and non-Christian origins. A main element in his argument that the passage is not a Christian interpolation is the absence of an accusation that it was Jewish leaders who instigated Pontius Pilate to crucify Jesus.

THE GREEK version attributed to Josephus states that Pilate acted against Jesus "upon hearing him accused by men of the highest standing among us."

"It is unthinkable," Flusser writes, "that the accusation of the leading Jewish personalities would be omitted by someone writing in the Christian milieu, while it is easy to explain that this accusation was interpolated in the original text of Josephus by a Christian hand."

How was the forgery accomplished and who did it?

For the answer Flusser unravels one man's personal and political problems in the tensions of the Roman empire and the early church, two centuries after Josephus. That man, Bishop Eusebius of Caesarea, a towering figure on the early church, who lived from 263 to about 339, organized the New Testament as it is now known.

Pines had determined that at least one of the sources that Agapius drew upon in the 10th century was "The History of the Christian Church" by Eusabius, in which the Josephus passage on Jesus is quoted.

IN THE edition of that history extant, Eusebius cites the traditional version. But scholars have long believed that there were earlier editions. In those, Flusser asks, might Eusebius have quoted Josephus more accurately, without realizing that other church leaders preferred a more devout testimony for general dissemination?

Flusser, who thinks so, notes that Caesarea then boasted the most extensive available collection of Christian and other relevant manuscripts. Eusebius, a Palestinian, probably had access to the original Josephus canon and used it in his first edition, which Flusser dates to the year 211.

In the decade that followed, the church was building to the Council of Nicaea, a momentous assemblage to determine basic points of doctrine and prevent schism. Eusebius, a central figure in the politics of the council, is known to have made a number of compromises to insure church unity at Nicaea and to protect his own influence.

"THE FIRST edition of the ecclesiastical history was written before the Council of Nicaea and the definitive edition was edited after the council," Flusser says. "There is a possibility that if Eusebius quoted Josephus's words about Jesus in his earlier edition (or editions) in its original form, that later, because of heavy suspicions about his Christian faith, Eusebius rejected the original text of the passage and began to quote the more orthodox version by way of precaution."

The "orthodox" version survived; the earlier and probably more accurate version was lost except in an obscure edition that circulated among Eastern churchmen.

As Pines notes, a version of Josephus preserved only in an Arabic text is more likely to have escaped church censorship than the official text passed down through the ages.

New device detects drugs in body fluids

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Allegheny County coroner's office has a device which Coroner Dr. Cyril Wecht says will detect marijuana in body fluids and tissues.

The new instrument — a spectrometer — costs $50,000 but Wecht got his free on condition that he tell the manufacturers everything he learns about its drug detecting capabilities. It also may find heroin, LSD and other substances.

DIOCESE IN S.D. VOTED

The Los Angeles Episcopal Diocese, largest in the nation, ended its 77th annual convention Saturday In San Diego after approving plans for a San Diego diocese by 1974. The vote of 1,000 lay and clerical delegates was unanimous.

The new diocese covering San Diego and Imperial counties as well as parts of Riverside, Orange and San Bernardino counties still must be approved by the church's national convention.

American to be consecrated archbishop by Pope today

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Rev. Edward L. Heston, the American who heads the Vatican's commission on the Mass Media, will be consecrated archbishop today by Pope Paul VI in St. Peter's Basilica.

Heston is one of 19 new bishops and archbishops who will receive Episcopal ordination at the hands of the Pope during Sunday's ceremony.

Although a relatively new department, Heston's "social communication commission" has become an important instrument of Vatican policy.

Heston, 64, of South Bend, Ind., was appointed president of the commission Sept. 6 after working for two years as secretary of the Congregation for Religious and Secular Institutes.

But before that, Heston had won a reputation both at the Vatican and among many newsmen as an efficient and respected press officer.

Heston always has been noted for openness — an unusual thing in the closed society of the Vatican, where news often is shrouded by innuendo, diplomatic nicety and deliberate ambiguity.

CHURCH PANEL OKs AMNESTY DEBATE

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The general board of the National Council of Churches has approved the purposes behind an interfaith conference on amnesty for Americans who object to fighting in Vietnam.

In a resolution approved Saturday, the board said it is important that the American religious community "confront the moral issues raised by the question of amnesty.' But it took no stand for or against the question.

The board received another proposed resolution on consumer rights and corporate responsibility but sent it back to committee or revision. If adopted, it would be the first stand on the subject by the 33-church organization.

Intensive bombing of Viet Reds

SAIGON, Sunday (AP) — Allied warplanes hunted Communist-led forces Saturday in one of the most intensive bombing campaigns of the Indochina war.

In three days, American fighter-bombers flew 356 strikes in South Vietnam, and hundreds more against North Vietnamese supply trails and staging areas in Laos and Cambodia.

The U.S. Command ordered American forces in South Vietnam on heightened alert beginning at dusk today and told them to stay off the streets during the Tet lunar new year celebration Tuesday.

U.S. officials have said they anticipate stepped up terrorist activities and shellings during the next week. Sources said the alert would remain in effect indefinitely.

THE Command said enemy gunners fired more than 20 mortar shells into a U.S. base on the outskirts of Da Nang in the north early today, slightly wounding two Americans and damaging nine helicopters. Field informants said five or six of the shells did not explode in the barrage against Camp Viking, headquarters of the 58th Transportation Battalion.

Three of the damaged helicopters were used for medical evacuations and the other six were being prepared for shipment to the U.S. as part of the American withdrawal from Vietnam.

The U.S. Command also reported that B52 heavy bombers had flown 13 missions since noon Saturday. Informants said most of the strikes were one-bomber missions.

SEVEN WEEKS OF DEMONSTRATIONS

U.S. war foes ask for support

VERSAILLES, France (AP) —American antiwar leaders called for international support Saturday night for seven weeks of demonstrations in the United States against the war in Vietnam and the Nixon administration.

The appeal was reported by the spokesman for the American delegation to the World Assembly of Paris For Peace and Independence of Indochinese Peoples. About 800 representatives from 75 countries are attending the assembly.

The Rev. Paul Mayer of New York, spokesman for the 130-strong U.S. delegation, told newsmen the delegation's steering committee had drawn up a proposal asking the assembly to back a series of demonstrations set for March 25-May 15.

He said the demonstrations generally will be directed against the Vietnam war and what he called the government's failure to provide for "hungry persons in the black, latin and poor white communities" because welfare money is being spent on the war.

On March 25, the minister said the National Welfare Rights Organization will sponsor a children's march on Washington. The American delegation to the assembly is asking that food and other supplies be deposited at U.S. embassies all over the world "to dramatize what the war is doing to the poor in the United States."

The minister listed these other demonstrations for which assembly support is sought:

— April 1: A major demonstration in Harrisburg, Pa., in connection with the conspiracy trial of persons charged with plotting to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and to blow up heating systems in Washington government buildings.

— Another demonstration in San Jose in connection with the trial of Angela Davis. These actions, the minister added, would "focus attention on the connection between the war and repression" in the United States.

— April 15: Local demonstrations in the United States aginst payment of federal income taxes.

— April 22: Major mass rallies and demonstrations in New York City and Los Angeles against the war and for withdrawal of troops and aircraft from Indochina.

— May 1-15: Local actions focused on U.S. corporations manufacturing arms, specifically those connected with the war. The minister said the demonstrations would be directed mainly against General Electric, Honeywell, International Telephone & Telegraph and Standard Oil. Antiwar movements abroad are being asked to stage demonstrations during this period at U.S. embassies.

The American proposals were being submitted to the assembly's action committee and will go to the assembly for endorsement today, final day of the meeting.

Among major organizations represented on the U.S. delegation are the American Friends Service Committee-Quakers, Clergy and Laymen Concerned, National Welfare Rights Organization, United Farm workers, Vietnam Veterans Against the War, and Women strike for peace.

Earlier in the day, three American women caused a stir at the assembly by asking Communist delegates about their husbands, prisoners of war or missing in Indochina.

They learned nothing useful. They said they were told by a U.S. delegate they could not become delegates to the meeting because they did not belong to antiwar groups that embrace Communist policy on the war.

The meeting is the World Assembly of Paris for Peace and Independence of Indochinese Peoples. U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter called it a "horde of Communist-controlled agitators" and suspended the Paris peace talks because of it.

The women showed up at the second day of the meeting in a hall just across the street from the famous Versailles Palace. Their conservative dress set them apart from the hippie garb of the American delegation and the native costumes of others among the delegates.

Mrs. James Blair White of St. Petersburg, Fla. talked for 30 minutes with a member of the Pathet Lao delegation, which accepted a letter addressed to her husband, missing since 1969.

A leader of the American delegation to the assembly, Sidney Peck of Boston, listened to their stories and said he and comembers would "do our best" to get information on their husbands from the Indochinese Communist delegations.

The other two women are Mrs. Paul E. Galanti, Richmond, Va. and Mrs. Bruce G. Johnson, Salina, Kan.

The standard deduction is up this year. But maybe you should itemize.

Your best buddy Lenny might have told you to itemize your deductions because it would save you more tax dollars.

Your neighbor possibly suggested taking the standard deduction because you'd pay less taxes that way.

And Frank down at the office . . . he helps everybody with their return . . . what did Frank recommend?

If there's some way to save you money on your income tax, H & R Block will know how to do it.

Itemized and standard deductions are nothing new. We've been preparing returns for years using both. We'll figure out your situation both ways and then prepare your return using the method that's best for you.

You see, for only a few dollars more than it costs to do it yourself (with advice maybe from some other amateur), you can have your tax return prepared with complete confidentiality by a specially trained member of the H & R Block team. There are thousands of them in over 6,000 conveniently located offices.

Each member of H & R Block is warm, friendly and anxious to help you. A visit to H & R Block usually takes just a short time. Once in our office, you sit down over a free cup of coffee and possibly learn things about your income tax that you never knew existed. Things that we know, because income tax returns are our only business.

H & R Block's fees start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for over 7 million families we served last year.

Furthermore, if your return is audited we will accompany you, at no extra cost, to the Internal Revenue Service and explain how your return was prepared, even though we will not act as your legal representative.

It means that H & R Block also offers you year 'round tax service for just one low fee, with no extra charge for audits and estimates.

Yes, it's true. The standard deduction is up this year.

It's one of the many things we'll consider when we do your return.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

H&R Block.
The income tax people.

Gun, bomb rip Ulster wedding

BELFAST (UPI) — Three masked men invaded a Londonderry hotel during a Catholic wedding celebration Saturday, shot and wounded the 17-year-old best man and set off a bomb that wrecked the building, police said.

Best man Alphonsus Patton, brother of the groom, was shot in the head when he pleaded with the bombers to remove the explosive device because children among the guests might be hurt, police said.

PATTON WAS rushed to Altnagelvin Hospital where his condition was reported "very serious."

Three masked men strode into Londonderry's Woodleigh Hotel, two carrying a bomb and the third brandishing a pistol. As they placed the bomb on the reception desk, the man with the pistol shouted a warning that the guests had three minutes to get out, police said.

"Young Patton rushed up to him and pleaded not to blow the place up because there were lots of children at the party who might get hurt," a police spokesman said. "As he was arguing, the gunman shot him in full view of everyone."

The guests and hotel employes fled. The bomb exploded 55 minutes later, wrecking the hotel, police said. The blast hurt no one.

Most of the wedding guests came from Londonderry's Creggan Housing Estate, a Catholic area known as a stronghold of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, police said.

"THE IRA don't care who they hurt just so long as they can blow up a hotel," a police spokesman said. "They probably didn't know a Catholic wedding party was on until they got there but it doesn't make any difference to them."

The hotel was bombed as British troops moved into the town of Enniskillen to try to prevent another march by Catholics today in defiance of the government ban on parades.

The Northern Resistance Movement, organizers of the march, predicted 10,000 would take part in the protest against internment of suspected members of the outlawed IRA but they pledged the parade would be peaceful.

450 protest British role in Ireland

NEW YORK (AP) — ABout 450 persons, including two New York congressmen, rallied near the United Nations Saturday to protest British policies in Northern Ireland.

Reps. Edward Koch and Mario Biaggi, in speeches to the loud but orderly group, urged full public support for a planned March 1 boycott of British goods and services.

"We in the United States are not doing enough to demonstrate for those who are being oppressed in Northern Ireland," said Koch, a Manhattan Democrat.

Organized by the Irish Northern Aid Committee to coincide with Lincoln's Birthday, the protest featured leaflets with the Lincoln motto, "No nation can exist which is half slave and half free."

Biaggi, a Bronx Democrat who recently toured northern Ireland, said the deaths of 13 civilians there last month unified Irish communities and "woke up the world."

Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Briny

Would ACTION LINE please find out for me why ocean water is salty? L.O.S., Long Beach.

There are several theories which try to explain the origin of the salt concentration of the oceans. But oceanographers generally believe the seas are salty because of the salts that have exsolved from rocks forming the ocean bottom added to salts dissolved from continental igneous rocks by the continual chemical weathing, or breaking up by rain, frost and erosion and carried down to the seas. The salinity in oceanic regions varies. There is a lower salt concentration in coastal waters, in some inland seas and near the mouths of rivers. A higher concentration is found in places of high evaporation such as the Texas bays during dry seasons. The Atlantic is just a little more salty than the Pacific. The greatest variations occur near the surface and evaporation and precipitation are the main processes that effect surface salinity. Oceanographers believe the salinity of the seas is increasing, but it is a slow process which has been going on for hundreds of millions of years.

Line of duty

How many Long Beach policeman have been killed in the line of duty? L.S., Long Beach.

Since March, 1923, 18 policemen have been killed. Seven officers were shot and eleven died in traffic accidents. The first police fatality occurred when an officer was cranking a motorist's car and the car backfired knocking the policeman to the ground. His gun fell out of his holster, discharged and fatally wounded him. Of the last five fatalities, four were shooting deaths. In 1960, Officer Vernon J. Owings was shot by a robbery suspect on Terminal Island. Officer Richard R. Lefebvre was accidentally shot in 1965 by another officer who was struggling with attackers at a riot scene. In 1967, Officers Donald V. Knott and William Isham were fatally wounded by an irate husband while investigating a domestic squabble.

Backorder

On Nov. 9 I sent a money order for $19.95 to Spencer Gifts, Atlantic City, N.J., for Christmas gifts for my grandchildren. Part of the order was to be shipped to Texas and it was delivered on time. However, the part that was to be sent here, for my granddaughter who lives with me, never arrived. We did get one item, a flashlight, after Spencer Gifts sent us a card saying the order would be delayed. I have forwarded a list of the six gifts we haven't received. I've written to the company but haven't had an answer. I would like to have the things in time for my grandchild's birthday, Feb. 14. A. J., Long Beach.

You have received the gifts by now. ACTION LINE contacted Robert McEwen of Spencer Gifts in Atlantic City who took the catalog numbers for the items you ordered and promised to have them shipped immediately. McEwen apologized for the delay and said "perhaps because of the two mailing addresses, half of the order somehow got lost in the mad Christmas rush."

Bangladesh

I am a junior high school student who would like to help the people of Bangladesh. What can I do? E. O., Long Beach.

You can send a contribution to the United States Committee for UNICEF (United Nations Children's Foundation), 331 E. 38th St., New York, N.Y. 10016, noting somewhere on the envelope or check that the money is intended for the Bangladesh relief fund. ACTION LINE contacted UNICEF's director of programs, Olcutt Sanders, who said the committee has just begun a $2 million fund-raising drive for a children's feeding program, reestablishment of health centers and the importation of good water into the newly-formed nation of Bangladesh. Besides the immediate children's care program, Sanders said the 78 million residents of war-torn Bangladesh, only 55,000 square miles large, will need long-range aid. It was for this purpose, he said, that ex-Beatle George Harrison and Indian musician Ravi Shankar staged the Bangladesh concert. All proceeds from the sale of the recording of that concert and their soon-to-be-released film will go to the United Nations programs for Bangladesh, Sanders said. So far, the proceeds equal about $5 million.

Arson in state up 87 per cent, study discloses in the number of grudge fires and those suspected of being set for personal gratification but the malicious fires are on the upswing," he said.

IN PARTICULAR, he noted the number of trash fires.

"These can be serious when set in alleyways where commercial buildings are located, or around apartment dwellings," he said. "There seems to be no other motivation than just pure meanness, a destructive bent that is hard to pinpoint other than someone just doing his own thing."

While arson is on the increase, so is the scientific ability to prove a fire was deliberately set.

Fire investigators can read a fire like a book while the fire is hot or from the moment it smolders. They can find the source of a fire within a matter of minutes—following a charred trail—and be able to tell at that instant whether the fire was spontaneous, caused by an electrical short, a faulty heater, a cigarette or set deliberately.

"Fire burns in a V pattern," said Capt. Thomas W. McDonald of the Long Beach fire department. "all you have to do is trace the fire to the point of the V."

THE COLORS of the fire while it is burning can also have tell-tale signs of the cause of the blaze. Most incendiary fires are started with flammable liquids.

"If someone uses gasoline, kerosene, paint thinner or any liquid to ignite a fire, he might as well leave a note behind," said Stanley Durkee, another Long Beach fire captain who is an arson specialist. "The fluid, after the fire has burned over, leaves behind an ink black pattern."

Investigators can tell by the way the wall chars, the windows crack, the floor burns, the springs in a cushion react, a light bulb melts as to what caused the fire.

"But arson is one of the hardest crimes to prove," Leslie said. "You may know that it is arson but the evidence is largely circumstantial unless you can actually put the suspect at the scene with a gasoline can and a fistful of matches."

Fire marshals consider it almost axiomatic that a pyromaniac will return to the scene of the fire—part of his gratification is the fighting of the fire and participating in the daring rescues. This makes it easy to capture him.

Usually big insurance policies and a sagging business help to ferret out the insurance arsonist.

But the new breed of arsonist—the hit-and-run political arsonist and the senseless malicious burner—make the job of the fire marshal even tougher than gathering evidence that won't be thrown out of court as circumstantial.

Delegates for '72 nominated

national committeeman and now chairman of Californians for Muskie, hailed the Saturday statewide selection exercise while criticizing Republicans for using the traditional "smoke-filled room" method of naming their convention goers.

Ziffren said, "The Reagan-led team of professional Republican politicians plans to sit down behind closed doors to select a delegation composed of wealthy contributors . . . Californians will no longer tolerate that kind of boss-rule politics."

A SPOKESMAN at state GOP headquarters told an Independent, Press-Telegram reporter that the Republican convention delegation had, in fact, already been selected although not yet publicized.

Phelan tells Time how Irving got Hughes story side-by-side with parts of Phelan's manuscript.

TIME INC. attorney Alan J. Hruska said the Irving book was "substantially identical" to Phelan's book, both "in terms of language" and in terms of content, in at least 23 separate places.

In some instances, the two manuscripts were nearly word-for-word the same, Hruska said.

Phelan was reported angered by the fact that he had never been paid for the work he did on the manuscript but in fact, Phelan is to receive a share of proceeds from the book. Dietrich and Thomas reportedly received a $100,000 advance from Fawcett Publications, which is planning an initial edition of one million copies.

A SPOKESMAN for McGraw-Hill, which has paid out a total of $750,000 for the Irving book, said the company would wait for the results of investigations by the U.S. attorney in New York and the Manhattan district attorney before deciding whether to publish the book.

How Irving obtained the Phelan manuscript was not known. Stanley Meyer, an entertainment executive from Encino, denied he turned the manuscript over to Irving. Meyer admitted, however, that he had met Irving near Palm Springs last June only a few days before he showed Thomas a copy in order to interest Thomas in taking over from Phelan.

PHELAN SAID he learned Thursday night that McCulloch had met with Irving and told him, "Cliff, you're near the end of the road. Phelan is flying in with his manuscript."

Phelan said Irving reportedly pursed his lips and uttered a one-word reply: "Wow!"

Phelan, Irving manuscripts in the balance

Associated Press

Following are similar passages from an early manuscript of the recollections of former Howard Hughes aide Noah Dietrich and from the purported autobiography of Hughes by Clifford Irving. The Dietrich manuscript was collaborated on by investigative reporter James Phelan. The passage from the Irving manuscript, said to be the word of Hughes himself, was made available by The New York Times.

From The Dietrich book:

With the crisis of the tax returns resolved, he confronted me with a problem of his oversized saxophone cabinet. He had accumulated a dozen of more saxophones that ranged from miniature soprano models to giant basso profundos. He kept them in a Circassian walnut case custom-made to Howard's own specifications in a game room at the Hughes' family residence in Houston.

It was a handsome piece of furniture and it was also a very large piece of furniture. Howard wanted to move his saxophones and the cabinet to Los Angeles. Unfortunately, the case had been constructed inside the game room and Howard faced the classic dilemma of the man who built the cruiser in his basement, although the case was in two sections — a face and a top cabinet — each was too large to pass through the doors of the house.

I went straight to the heart of the problem. "Howard," I said firmly, "we'll either have to remodel the house or cut the saxophone cabinet in two."

For once Howard made a quick decision. We had the saxophone case neatly sawed down the middle, shipped to Los Angeles in four pieces and reassembled by bolting the parts together.

From the Irving book:

Then another time I wanted my collection of saxophones brought out from Houston to Hollywood. I had them in that Circassian walnut box in the cellar of the house on Yoakum Boulevard. I told Noah to go to Houston and get that box of saxophones out of the house for me But he couldn't do it, because the box was much too large. He couldn't get it out of the house, and he had to ask me for special instructions. I said, "Saw the goddamned thing in half if you can't get it out whole," and he did. He shipped them out to me in two pieces out to Hollywood.

Union local balking over dock settlement

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rank-and File opposition to terms of the proposed West Coast dock strike settlement developed Saturday while longshore leaders were meeting to ratify the pact.

International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union President Harry Bridges, who has recommended acceptance of the contract, said the discussions among approximately 100 delegates from 24 ports, would apparently be prolonged at least through the weekend.

The delegates took a dinner break, returned for a short session and then recessed the meeting until today.

Bridges said a membership vote would be necessary before the 127-day walkout, the longest strike in U. S. waterfront history, is over.

San Francisco Local 10 issued a bulletin critical of the proposed settlement. It said the guaranteed wage provision was "full of fish hooks" and that the proposed contract had other "important items adversely affecting our membership."

The bulletin also said the "steady man" provision, details of which are to be worked out in arbitration, was a threat to the hiring hall system.

Under ILWU procedures, any large local can veto the settlement during the caucus and it then would require a two-thirds vote of the membership to accept it.

Bridges, in a message to the 15,000 strikers through the union newspaper, said the strike "was won, and won hands down." He said his recommendation for approval was not based on fear of government intervention, but "how much more we might win if we stayed on strike."

3 Army officers die in Georgia air crash

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Three Army officers were killed and three other persons injured Saturday when a twin-engine military airplane crashed and brust into flames near Fulton County Airport near Atlanta.

An Army spokesman said occupants of the light aircraft were returning from a training conference at Ft. Bragg, N.C. The plane was making an instrument approach to the airport under cloudy skies and a steady drizzle.

Military authorities identified the dead as CWO Lawrence J. Screptock of Smyrna, the pilot; Lt. Col. Joseph Burke of Ft. McPherson and Col. L. M. Conger of Atlanta. All three were stationed at Ft. McPherson in Atlanta.

counts for nearly one-third of family retail food spending. Government statistics made public at the same time showed that, for example, the average price of hamburger had risen 12 cents a pound to 70 cents from the spring of 1969 to the end of last year; and that the average price of sirloin steak had risen from $1.23 a pound to $1.45 in the same period.

Last Thursday the chairman of the Price Commission, C. Jackson Grayson Jr., urged consumers to consume less meat, buy cheaper cuts of meat or eat other forms of protein in order to halt the rise of meat prices.

NEW PSYCHIATRIC TREATMENT APPROACH

Day-care plan sends patients home nightly

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Psychiatrist Samuel Rapport is sick of mental hospitals.

A hospital psychiatrist for much of his professional career, he contends:

"The traditional psychiatric hospital setting does not lend itself well to the treatment of emotional illness."

How's that again?

A hospital, he says, increases a patient's dependency — "infantilizes" him. And there's still the stigma about going to a mental hospital. The patient loses his "psychological space" in the family — meaning that problems are created when one leaves and then returns to the fold. He feels cut off from the community. The cost is exorbitant. All told, it's "debilitating," Dr. Rapport maintains.

Dr. Rapport is dedicated to the proposition that there is a better way to help the emotionally distressed patient.

His answer to the problem is the Western Institute of Human Resources, 2880 Atlantic Ave., an impressive-looking complex of three two-story buildings on a two and one-half acre tract. It's a campus-like setting, built at a cost of $1.3 million.

Dr. Rapport's definition of the place: "A comprehensive mental health facility providing prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and alternatives to hospitalization."

He says further:

"Our goal is to return afflicted individuals to essentially independent and productive lives in the community as quickly as possible."

Emphasis will be on a day care program, a concept that is far from new. What's new is the environment that Western Institute has created for those who seek help there.

Dr. Rapport says that advantages of the day-care approach include:

— Patients can maintain their independent activities.

— Excessive dependency and dehumanization, which often develop in a hospital, are discouraged.

— Patients are allowed to remain with their families.

— Treatment experiences are more intensive than those found in the most inpatient services.

— The cost is substantially less.

— The patient's transition to full employment is made easier because the day-care pattern approximates that of a work week.

— There is less stigma than that of a hospital.

— Less sexual frustration so there is no prolonged period of enforced sexual abstinence.

— The patient is forced to continue to cope with family problems since he must return to them nightly.

— A patient is made more aware of his strengths and abilities because of social expectancy — that is, he is dealt with differently since he is not in a hospital.

— The concept makes possible part-time jobs in the evenings or on weekends.

— It reduces the "parent-child" relationship between doctor and patient which is characteristic of the traditional medical model.

Eligible to use the services are persons three years old and up who are suffering from, or are handicapped by, emotional problems.

This includes patients in all diagnostic categories. Services are also available in counseling and vocational areas for persons not mentally disturbed.

"Eighty per cent of inpatient types can be treated here," Dr. Rapport said of the mentally disturbed who will be served by Western Institute.

Over all, Western Institute's program is much closer to the model of a school than that of a hospital, Dr. Rapport said.

The Institute's physical facilities include a medical office building, a residence building known as the "motel," and an activities building.

In addition, there is a spacious outdoor area, including a terraced lawn for group therapy and psychodrama sessions, a heated swimming pool, dining area and courts for volleyball, badminton, basketball and paddleball.

Inside the activities building are an indoor dining room, recreational room (table tennis, card tables, pool table), crafts room (metal shop, ceramic equipment), large kitchen for patients to re-learn efficient meal preparation, library, beauty shop, two music rooms (stereo, musical instruments), photo lab, gymnasium, sauna baths, and extensive areas for various programs in occupational therapy, recreational therapy, rehabilitation and vocational therapy.

The occupational therapy is realistic in its approach, boasts Institute officials. For example, they cite the auto shop for the mechanically inclined. (There is equipment for carburetor and transmission overhaul.) The idea is to give the patient useful tasks — something he can take away with him when he leaves the institute.

Also in the activities building is an outdoor sun deck. Adjacent to it is an outdoor play area for children.

There is a large room for work

Vets doubt success of animal curb

By MARK CLUTTER

Science will provide the practical answer for the tragic population explosion of dogs and cats, hopefully within two years.

It will be a safe, inexpensive birth control shot administered every year or so.

Will this halt the trend which sends hundreds of thousands of unwanted pets to the gas chambers annually in Los Angeles and Orange counties alone and dooms multitudes of others to neglect, hunger and disease?

"PROBABLY NOT," say members of the Southern California Veterinary Medical Association, headquartered at 8338 Rosemead Blvd., Pico Rivera.

Their cynicism is based on the recognition of widespread irresponsibility on the part of pet owners and public officials. The prevailing attitudes toward pets are colored by emotions, superstitions and outmoded customs.

The public has had the power of birth control over animals for a long time but will not accept the responsibility, H. Don Mahan, executive secretary, pointed out.

"The simplest way is to keep the female in the house during heat," he said. "Of course, one has to be careful. She can duck out real fast.

"If there should be an accidental breeding, a shot within 72 hours will cause an abortion. There is also surgical abortion, but it isn't popular. It is usually performed only on purebred dogs."

If a litter occurs, the responsible owner has the duty to try to find homes, Mahan said. It isn't easy. The shelters also try to find homes, but most unwanted pups and kittens will be put to death.

"The safe way is by spaying," Mahan said, "but many people resist the idea. They say 'It is taking part of life away.' Spayed animals don't need sex. They can be healthy and happy without it. And they are freed of possible infection of the female organs.

"ANOTHER idea is that a dog should have at least one litter. This is an old wives' tale and is simply not true. The best time to spay is before the first period of heat occurs. You will have a calmer dog and one that stays at home. The notion that a spayed dog gets fat is also not true. Like any dog she gets fat if fed the wrong kind of food."

"Another objection is the cost," Mahan said. "It isn't very expensive, usually about $35 for a young, average-sized female. I don't believe it is possible to provide a dog

POLICE SAY WEAPONS NO ANSWER

Question for a violent society-- Is a gun woman's best friend?

By JAMES LEAVY
Staff Writer

A 39-year-old South Gate woman went into a gun shop last week and paid nearly $100 for a .38-caliber revolver and a box of hollow point bullets.

The bullets are designed to shatter and expand on impact. They have stopping power. They'll knock a man down or tear his leg off if they strike the bone.

Does a woman need a weapon like this to protect herself? The police generally advise against it.

Mrs. Vivian Schoeman of South Gate doesn't agree and this is her dramatic argument:

"I was home with my 4-year-old daughter one morning two weeks ago when two youths came to the front door of my home and knocked. When I answered they held a gun to my head and said they wanted money.

"I GAVE THEM money and when they didn't get as much as they wanted, one of them held the gun to my daughter's head while the other took me from room to room picking out things to steal.

"They decided to use my car and ordered me to help them load the valuables. They said if I made one wrong move they would blow off my daughter's head.

"Then they decided to take my daughter and me along as hostages.

"The youths put the gun down briefly to load a television set into the car. For the first time since they invaded my home I had a chance to get near my daughter. I picked her up and ran.

"At this point, a neighbor, who was getting into his car, saw what was happening and yelled at the bandits and I was able to get away.

"The youths then attacked the neighbor. His wife called police and came outside to find the two young men beating her husband. She ran back inside the house and returned with a .22-caliber revolver. She shot one of the attackers in the hand and the shoulder.

"In spite of his wounds the young man struck the woman on the head with the butt of his gun.

"Meanwhile, I ran into my home and got a .22-caliber revolver my husband and I used for target practice. I told the bandits to drop the gun. They dropped it and stepped back and then started to move toward the weapon again. I fired at what I thought was the ground and hit one of the men in the leg."

Police arrived and the nightmare ended for Mrs. Schoeman and her neighbors.

The assailants were 16 and 17-years-old. The weapon they carried turned out to be a BB gun with one end sawed off. One of the youths had a record of thefts and robbery. One pleaded guilty in juvenile court and both were released in what was described by police as standard procedure by the juvenile court.

LOOKING BACK on her experience Mrs. Schoeman said, "I always told my husband the gun was too heavy. I said I would be so shook up if I had to use it I would probably shoot myself in the foot." But when it actually happened, the gun didn't feel heavy, it wasn't hard to fire."

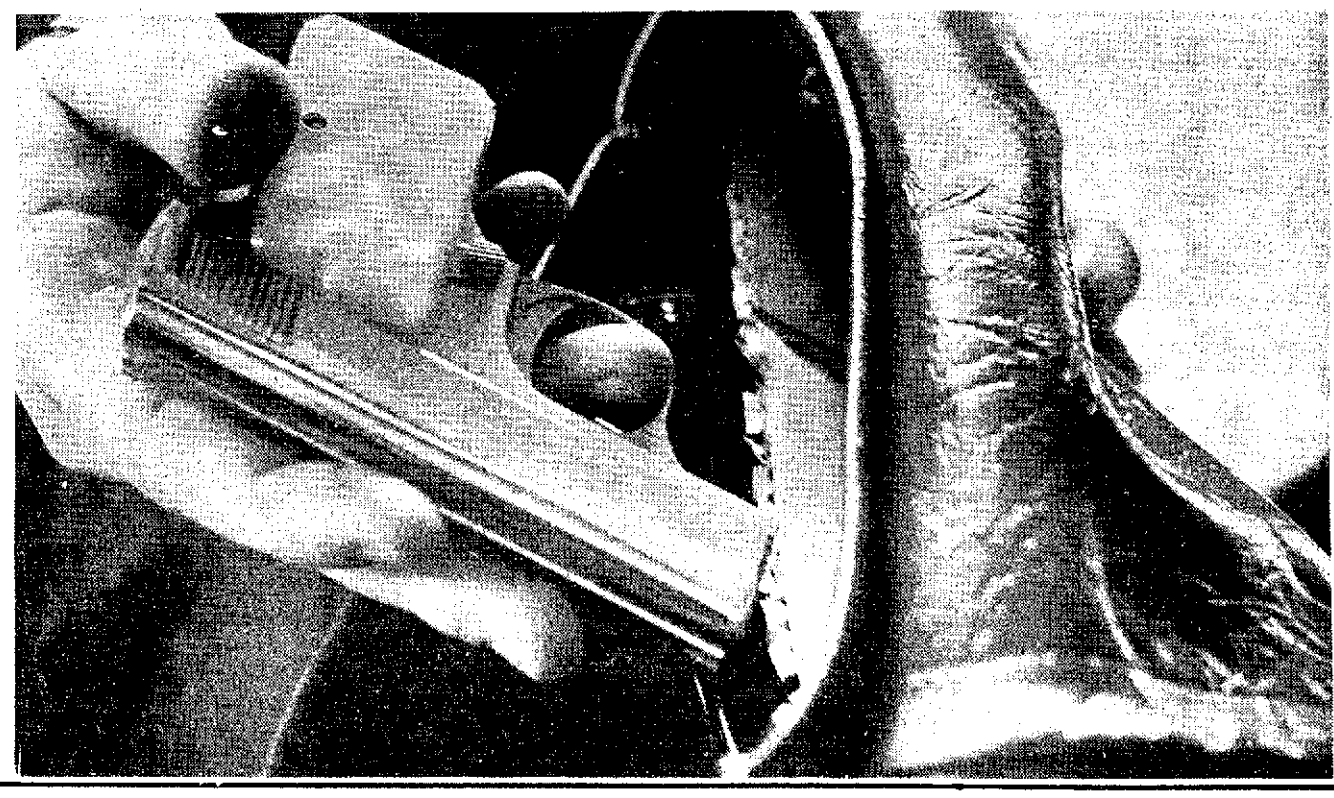

Asked how she felt about shooting a gun at another human being, Mrs. Schoeman said, "All I thought was, 'You so and so, you held a gun to my baby's head.' "

She became aware that the bullets fired at the bandits went through them and failed to stop them. The answer, she says, is a bigger gun with hollow point bullets.

The man who sold it to her, Mike Booze of Mike's Gun Shop, says the hollow point shells are more deadly, more likely to kill.

He approves of the idea of women defending themselves with guns. "It makes for a lot of peace of mind,"

GUNS come in all sizes and forms. This revolver is generally kept by the ladies in the home.

MY TOWN AND YOURS

All the angles at bay

LAST SUNDAY this column congratulated the Feinberg Development Corporation of St. Louis for its foresight in locating a 400-room hotel complex in the vicinity of the Queen Mary.

I commented on the imaginative design of the Queensway Hilton in the respect that 92 per cent of the rooms in the plan either look out over the water to the Long Beach skyline or toward the museum ship. "This makes sense," the column said. However, at the same time I raised the question of whether the plans, which may be preliminary, showed angles out of keeping with the sweeping curves of the Queen Mary.

"All beauty is in the eye of the beholder and I am only one beholder," the column said. "If you think there is room for improvement, please drop me a postcard saying simply PLEASE ALTER IT. Or, I would equally welcome one saying KEEP IT. After all, it's your ship and your harbor."

AS I WRITE THIS I have 28 cards and letters before me and more arriving in every mail. All but four were signed. The trend seems firmly established. Only one wrote KEEP IT. Mrs. J. E. H. wrote:

"My first impression upon looking at the picture of the proposed Queensway Hilton hotels was that the design seemed like 'waves' as one looked back and forth over it.

"I then assumed that had been the architect's whole idea . . . since the complex will be near Queen Mary and, of course, the ocean.

"As of now I'll say KEEP IT."

More typical were these comments:

"The design is as un-nautical as the pyramids." — J. C. Green.

"My first reaction on seeing the new hotel to be built was how horrible." — Mrs. R. M. Di Traponi.

"The Queen Mary area deserves better. After all the effort and time and money put into developing the West Beach let's have it be something special." — Mrs. Carroll Thorn Jr.

"I THINK THAT drawing represents a hideous hotel to place on the ocean skyline. It seems that Long Beach citizens are destined to see the ocean view disappear and be replaced by a string of hotels, high-rise apartments, shopping centers and tourist attractions . . .

"We have heard for a long time how the downtown area needs revitalization — I suggest we place new hotels in the downtown area and preserve the ocean view for generations to come." — Jane Damron.

"Your picture of the Queensway Hilton makes me kinda seasick." — Earl Newport.

"The hotel sketch looks like a dilapidated Indian village. Not appropriate for Q. M. area." — Mrs. Richard Nelson.

"Let's toss the plans for the new hotel off the Queen Mary's stern and start over." — Bob Hazelleaf.

"I'm wondering why our California designers are not designing this project — something in keeping with our California history — or is that too corny?" — Mrs. Marion Haskell.

I AM USING ONE unsigned card only because it offers suggestions:

"Should be in the shape of a ship?"

"Tower of London?"

"Buckingham Palace?"

"Dollar sign $?"

WHAT WE LACK now are some positive suggestions. I leave them, in all good will, to the architects of the Queensway Hilton, in case they feel some alteration is in order in view of the opinions expressed by Long Beach citizens.

It seems to me that what almost everybody wants is to make sure that the Grand Lady of the Sea can continue to reign over a happy kingdom, with regal companions of grace and beauty.

Legislators contemplate an earth-shaking proposal

SACRAMENTO — The legislative process in California could undergo an overwhelmingly drastic change if a resolution scheduled to be considered Wednesday by the Senate Rules Committee is approved.

The resolution, introduced by Sen. Peter Behr, R-Marin County, would require a roll call vote in all Senate and Assembly committees and the publication of those votes in the daily journals of the two houses.

Legislators presently approve or kill measures in committee by casting voice votes. The votes are unrecorded, and the chairman alone decides whether there are enough "aye" votes to keep a bill alive. His word is final and it is uncontestable.

Behr's resolution, which must be approved by both the Senate and Assembly before it takes effect, would put every legislator on record on every issue.

THE PROPOSAL has pros and cons. Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, pointed out recently that putting all legislators on record on every bill could lead to an extension of an abuse already too common in election campaigns.

Bob Schmidt

VIEW FROM OUR STATE BUREAU

For example, a legislator may introduce a bill he describes as an environmental protection bill, but which may be either a very weak measure or a poorly drafted measure. It consequently is defeated in its first committee test by legislators who know that another, stronger, bill exists.

It is easily foreseeable that one of the legislators who declined to cast an "aye" vote for the weak bill could have an opponent at his next election who would contend that the record shows the legislator to be against environmental protection.

True, the legislator might be able to explain that he later voted for a better bill, but the original, baseless charge will linger with some voters who don't hear the explanation and even, possibly, with some voters who do.

ON BALANCE, though, the arguments for adoption of Behr's resolution seem more weighty than the arguments against.

Votes are sometimes cast for reasons not entirely related to the merits of the bill being voted on. Not every legislator regards every bill introduced with consuming interest, and so decisions to vote for or against a measure frequently rest on the regard with which an author is held.

Sometimes, however, a vote is cast because legislator one asks for a certain kind of vote in exchange for his support for a position being taken by legislator two on another matter.

Or a vote is cast in exchange for a lobbyist's promise of support for the legislator's position on another measure.

Or because a legislator or lobbyist has previously rendered a favor and a return favor is owed.

Or sometimes, unfortunately, for other considerations.

Having the vote recorded, Behr says, would allow "every citizen . . . to know how his elected representatives voted on the issue before them."

MOST IMPORTANTLY, it permits the concerned citizen to ask "why."

While the merits of the proposal may be debatable, there is no question that adoption of the resolution would have an enormous impact on the way things are done in the Capitol.

Some of the crusty old veterans who run committees get pretty heavy-handed in their rulings. It would be difficult for them to do that if every vote were recorded.

Sometimes a legislator votes one way in committee and another way on the floor, if the bill gets that far. It would be healthy to have him explain why.

And sometimes a legislator can make promises, to his constituents, to other legislators, and to lobbyists, that he will have to keep if all his votes are recorded. That might serve to make each legislator more careful of the promises he makes.

Behr's resolution has the support of at least 21 senators, including himself, so it should pass the Senate if it is approved by the rules committee Wednesday. Nineteen assemblymen have signed as co-authors so far.

THE NEXT STEP will be for the Legislature to require itself to open all of its committee hearings to the public. County and city governments are already prohibited by the Brown Act from doing business behind closed doors, except in certain, limited subject areas.

There are no similar restraints on state government, although Assemblyman William M. Ketchum, R-San Luis Obispo, has for several years introduced legislation to apply the Brown Act to the Legislature. He always has a number of co-authors in both houses, too.

If the two measures pass — and the success of either would be unexpected, despite all the surface support — the changes resulting could be far more profound than the changes resulting from the Legislature going "full time" in 1967.

Overpruning college budgets

It is always useful to have an auditor and tax expert look at the account books.

But when the books are the state's, it is important to remember that more than accounting is involved. There are human considerations as well, and these are not amenable to an accountant's analysis.

That is something for the California Legislature to keep in mind as it reviews the state budget report prepared by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post.

AS AN ACCOUNTANT, Post spotted ways to save money in the budget for the state colleges. He doesn't propose any massive cuts in the total college budget of $350 million. But the proposal has damaging aspects for the future of the state colleges, most of which are soon to be state universities.

For one thing, Post proposes that $2 million be sliced from the colleges' Innovation and Improvement Fund. In the long run, the educational developments that could come from wise expenditure of that money might save the taxpayers future expenses and provide a better education for the students.

For another thing, Post proposes elimination of the program in which some state colleges cooperate with the University of California to award doctorates. This program is healthy for the institutions involved and for their students. The colleges and the university campuses have separate educational roles, but where they can combine forces in the best service of education they should be encouraged to do so. The joint doctoral programs are precisely the sort of cooperation that ought to be continued and expanded, particularly since the expense involved is minimal.

Another Post recommendation hits at a state college proposal to increase the number of library volumes from the present 6.3 million to 18.9 million by 1985. Post proposes holding the 1985 library system to 12.8 million volumes. The library is the heart of a college. Its size should be determined, within reason, by educational needs and not by a passion for economy.

Post's report is somewhat more generous to the University of California. He suggests a $1.8 million increase in the university's budget. But even this generosity is a pale thing. Post still proposes that university regents use special funds to pay for general university operations. And it must be remembered, in any event, that the university budget, like that of the state colleges, went through the severest kind of cost cutting before the governor submitted it to the legislature.

IN SUM, POST'S view of college and university budgets is the view of an accountant who has a need to suggest changes as a way of demonstrating that he is doing his job.

These budgets have already been subjected to rigorous accounting scrutiny. While it is appropriate for the legislature and its staff to provide more of that kind of scrutiny, it is also important that legislators weigh the state's needs in higher education. Otherwise, they may save money at the expense of education. That would be a saving California could not afford.

Wind-baggery of politics

JOHN S. KNIGHT

Editorial chairman, Knight Newspapers

WELL, I SEE by the papers that President Nixon had his man Kissinger secretly maneuvering around Paris with the Viet Cong (I almost spelled that with a K) and the men from Hanoi in an effort to agree on peace terms.

What seemed to irk the Democrats most was the President's revelation that these confabs took place over a long period of time during which Muskie, Hubert Humphrey, McGovern and other critics of the administration had been bugging Nixon for "not doing anything."

These disclosures took the panting aspirants for the White House by surprise, as Nixon has done so many times before. Sen. Muskie first saw some merit in the President's last peace bid, as did Senate majority leader, Mike Mansfield.

When Democratic national chairman Lawrence O'Brien tut-tutted such nonpolitical talk, Muskie got back into the fray. "Set a firm withdrawal date," he said, and "seek in return the safety of withdrawing forces and American prisoners of war."

Of course, the key word here is "seek." No guarantees, mind you, just seek and hope that Hanoi will be reasonable. Muskie must know that Hanoi's condition for peace, as it has always been, is the sacking of South Vietnam's President Thieu by the United States.

Muskie is a curious cuss, appearing at one time to be earnestly seeking (to use his term) the facts on Indochina, and at another sounding very much like the political animal that he is—driven by expediency and mouthing the wind-baggery of presidential politics.

President Nixon should muzzle White House martinets such as Bob Haldeman who charged on a television show that the President's Vietnam critics "are consciously aiding and abetting the enemy."

This is arrant nonsense and reveals the thought processes of an advertising huckster in the White House. The debate over Vietnam should proceed. Mr. Haldeman may be, as The Wall Street Journal suggests, "the first casualty of the 1972 presidential season."

AND THEN, of course, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy could not resist the opportunity to urge U.S. intervention in strife-torn Northern Ireland. Conservative Sen. James L. Buckley and Sen. Edward W. Brooke fell into the same trap, urging a Senate resolution calling for an end to the violence and offering U.S. help in mediating the dispute.

The conflict, which goes back to the 17th century, has raged continuously through Northern Ireland since 1968. We must resist the mad impulses to intervene and interfere in the problems of other nations, and especially since we are so notably unsuccessful in solving our own problems at home.

Wiretap slip may destroy many cases

WASHINGTON — Laxity in the execution of court-authorized wiretapping of telephones has put the entire operation under a cloud that may cause the federal courts to toss out more than 70 cases.

In some instances, the laxity has been at the lower level where no efforts were made "to minimize the interception of communications not otherwise subject to interception," as the law required.

U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy has ruled that in one of the largest seizures of heroin in Washington history the "wiretapping" evidence and all of the "fruits" of wiretapping evidence were not admissible.

This essentially tossed out all the wiretap as well as other evidence seized in connection with warrants based on these taps, and virtually destroyed the case against 14 defendants.

The ruling was based on Judge Waddy's acceptance of the view of defense lawyers, who claimed that only about 40 per cent of the calls on the two telephones were directly related to operations of the narcotics ring, and that this amounted to "indiscriminate use of wire surveillance."

Judge Waddy contended that the Justice Department had taken the order from U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr., and that nearly "all conversations were overheard and recorded, and that approximately 60 per cent of the calls were completely unrelated to narcotics."

THE GOVERNMENT claimed that in narcotics cases it is essential to monitor all conversations to determine if the calls are likely to be related to narcotics. In fact, the government in its appeal claimed that 98 per cent of the calls were related to narcotics traffic but were carried on in the jargon of the junkie.

The U.S. attorneys contend that some telephone conversations such as the question of whether "mother had breakfast ready" followed by the promise to "stop by tonight to pick it up," may have sounded like innocent chitchat to Judge Waddy, but was easily recognized by less naive agents as junkie jargon to set up a delivery.

Although Judge Waddy's rulings are being appealed, there are some other rulings that are causing even more concern.

They involve the actions of the highest level Justice Department personnel—a Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals ruling on a narcotics case and a ruling by Judge Cornelia G. Kennedy in the eastern district of Michigan, southern division, on a gambling case.

In both instances, the court zeroed in on the fact that Attorney General John Mitchell had permitted Sol Lindenbaum, his executive assistant, to sign wiretap orders for him without making a specific written provisions for this as the courts contended was required.

IN THE DETROIT gambling case involving 20 defendants, the Justice Department has also had to admit that rather than having Asst. Atty. Gen. Will Wilson sign the applications for wiretapping orders from the court, it was Henry Peterson, then a deputy assistant attorney general, who signed Wilson's name.

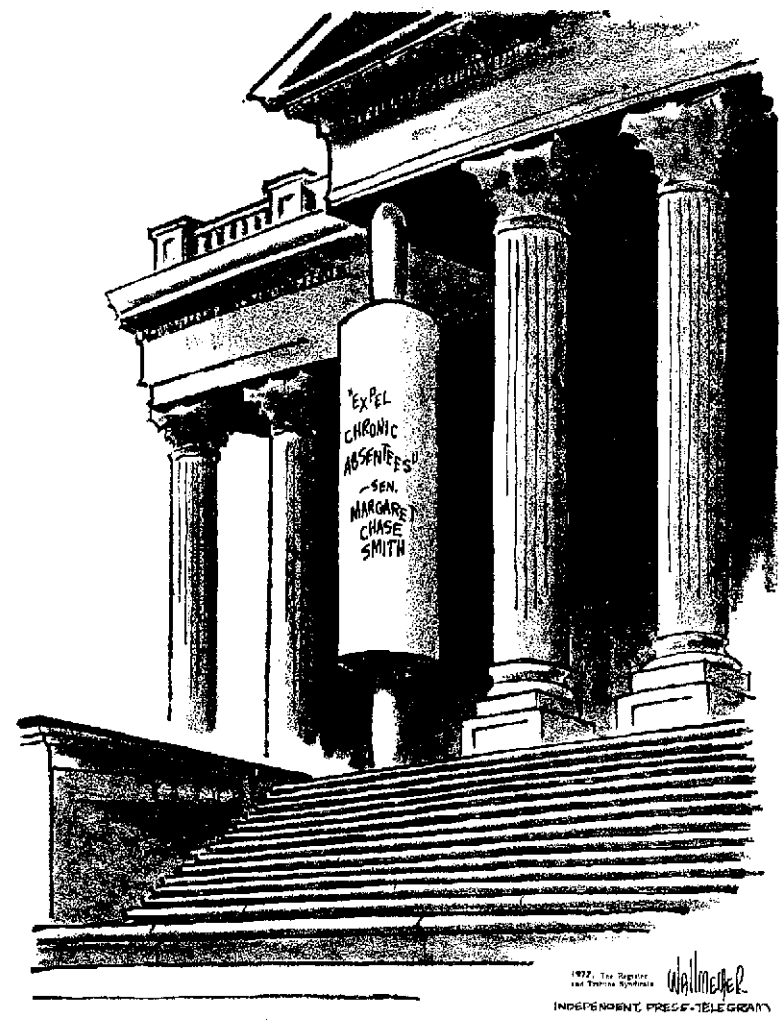

Peterson, who has since been named as assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, states he was authorized by Wilson to sign his name and that this was a technical deviation.

But Judge Kennedy said, "Neither Lindenbaum nor Peterson . . . have stated that they had personal knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the particular wiretaps involved here or that they actually made the decision to seek the approval for an extension. In short, 'the lines of responsibility' do not" lead to an identifiable person in this case.

Judge Kennedy ruled that "an important safeguard, expressly built into the statue, has been effectively by-passed.

Judge Kennedy ruled that all of the evidence derived from the "improperly authorized wire interception" should be suppressed.

IN APPEALING the circuit court opinion, the Justice Department Criminal Division argued that it had engaged in "full compliance with the statute." Then added: "but even if the court should find a technical violation, it is not the kind of violation which calls for suppression of evidence obtained under court authorization."

'I declare' ends all rumors

There's a sphinxy paraphrase of King Tut which reads, "Political death shall come on swift wings to him who enters Los Angeles County's equivalent to a pharaoh's tomb, the Board of Supervisors."

Which poses the wonder of why any chap—or chapette—would plunk out $701.60

as filing fee for that kind of interment. Or spend $100,000 to $250,000 to get a $35,000 position.

Of course the answer is that any viable candidate finds Nile birds (pigeons) to foot the fee and fiduciary.

FILING opens tomorrow and closes at 5 p.m. March 10. The filing period is the great equalizer, the called hand.

Fortunately for those interested in a smaller game down the street, there are city council races whose filing period comes later—March 20 through April 4 for the May 9 Long Beach city primary.

But until the filing fees are paid, candidate sponsor petitions filled and announcements become reality, the sun is darkened by press releases, leaflets, brochures and rumors.

Mongering rumors to dishonor is lousy but okay if done only to set the stage.

No. 1 has to be that 10-term veteran GOP Congressman Craig Hosmer of Long Beach may be offered the post of Secretary of Defense, succeeding Melvin Laird. If only to ward off a cosmic lizzy-rash of candidates for that congressional seat, Craig should handle this one gingerly.

ANOTHER rumor has young Dennis Murray (25) running a grooming race against Hosmer for (a) a better shot in 1974 or (b) and (c) a shot at Mike Cullen's 44th Assembly seat or Joe Kennick's 33rd dence safeguard, expressly built into the State Senate seat in case of a musical chairs progression or retirement by either.

There is unconfirmed speculation that Howard Jones, a former deputy to retiring Supervisor Burton Chace, and Councilman Bert Bond may drop their announced candidacies with the advent of Assemblyman James Hayes' entry for Chace's seat.

That would clear a way for Bond to possibly seek Hayes' 39th District Assembly post or run for council re-election. Part 2 of the speculation, however, has Bert's younger brother, Bill, running for the Assembly spot. In the closely-knit Bond family it would be with Bert's complete approval and cooperation.

COUNCILMANIC election this year, because of some dislocations, won't be the placid pool it usually is. If Bert Bond stays in the supervisorial race there'll be a contest for his chair even though the only announcer to date is Mrs. Olivia Nieto.

Councilman Paul Deats' declaration for the Hayes Assembly seat leaves his 3rd District up for grabs. It already has attracted former Marine Department Chief Lawrence McDowell, George Murchison and Mrs. Renee Simon. And apparently on the verge of jumping in is restaurateur Don May, who would be running from sobriquet status as the Mayor of Belmont Shore.

Phil Poppler, they say, is feisting up to run again against Leonard Putnam for city attorney.

WAYNE Sharp, 7th District councilman, won't have a free ride this time. Already challenging are social worker Ron Morgan and Ted Dalton, the man who ran Sharpe's 1969 campaign.

Restaurateur Don Phillips is taking on veteran Ray Kealer in the 1st councilmanic district—and like that!

State Senator George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, who had no Democratic opposition in his last election, has some this time in Lakewood insurance broker G. C. (Dee) DeBaun.

Rumors start dying tomorrow. Officially, that is.

Saigon is an unlovely, but exciting city

Samuel I. Hayakawa

SAIGON — Saigon is hot, busy and crowded. I wouldn't say it is a beautiful city, but it is an exciting one. There are many broad, French-style boulevards, and myriads of smaller streets and alleys. Everywhere there is the bustle of commerce: gift shops, restaurants, beauty parlors; stands selling soft drinks and snacks; peddlers of shrimp and dried squid; furniture merchants with their wares displayed on the sidewalks, forcing pedestrians to walk out in the street to get by; vendors on the pavements with their offering spread around them: clothing, shoes, pillows, hats, kitchen equipment. You never saw so many busy people.

And the traffic! At first it's terrifying because there are few traffic signals. But soon you learn that Vietnamese drivers are exceedingly polite. Apparently the way to get from a side street into the stream of traffic is simply to drive right in, because other drivers will slow down for you.

Like any other American, I was fascinated to see what people were driving. First there are the French cars, dating back to the period of French rule, 1954 and earlier. Big Citroens and Peugeots. Tiny Renault taxicabs, thousands of them, many so old that their metal floors are rusted through. They are said to have 11 h.p. but I think that is an exaggeration. There must be, I thought, some terrific mechanics in Vietnam to keep all these old heaps going.

THEN THERE are the pedicabs — three-wheelers, with the passenger sitting between the two front wheels, the driver behind. There is also the motorized variety, lower slung and much faster. Another kind of three-wheeler (one wheel in front) is the Lambretta mini-bus, carrying 10 passengers. These cruise the principal streets, almost always full, and often with baskets of live ducks and chickens hanging out the back. I was told that many of these mini-buses were given outright by the government to the men who drive them — a simple and direct form of subsidy for urban business to parallel the subsidies given to farmers.

There are American cars there too, shiny new embassy cars, 10-year-old but equally shiny and well-kept rental cars, as well as an assortment of military vehicles.

But most startling of all is the number of motorcycles. Most of them are 50 c.c. Hondas — the smallest kind. There are some 800,000 motorcycles in Saigon alone. Since 1966 the motorcycle has become a basic form of all-purpose transportation, having largely supplanted the bicycle.

It is not uncommon to see not one or two, but three on a motorcycle — usually a couple and a small child. The most I saw was five: two children behind the handlebars in front of father, a baby behind him, and behind baby the mother, all huddled cozily together. Nobody seems to wear crash helmets. Perhaps they are not necessary with these low-power jobs.

There are an incredible number of women motorcyclists — mostly young girls. They are really a sight to see. The basic women's costume is the "ao dai," a two-piece outfit consisting of pants, usually black, and a very special blouse with a high, Chinese collar, long sleeves, bodice fitted to the waist, and from there downward continuing as a split skirt whose long panels reach the feet both in front and back. The blouse can be white, pink, yellow, lavender, sky blue — usually in a single color.

THE "AO DAI" is a costume of extraordinary grace. Don Oberdorfer in his book "Tet" (Doubleday, 1971) says, "One of the most beautiful sights in all Vietnam (is the) great swallow-flights of slender schoolgirls, their long black hair and their clean white 'ao dai' billowing behind them, pedaling their bicycles on their way to school." The girls look just as good, I am sure Mr. Oberdorfer will agree, on motorcycles.

I was in Vietnam for 12 days as a guest of the South Vietnamese government. I was free to talk to anyone, to go anywhere, to come to my own conclusions, to write or not to write about my visit. I have chosen to write about it because there is so much happening there in the daily lives of the people that we in America have not been told about.

I came away feeling, even after a short visit, that the people of South Vietnam — so cheerful, hardworking and courageous, so incredibly adaptable and capable of recovering from misfortune — are profoundly deserving of our admiration and support.

Good goals, doubtful results

The Sierra Club, which has sometimes been charged with leaping before looking, has wisely delayed an action for a change.

It decided not to take an immediate stand on the "Clean Environment Act," which will be on the June primary ballot.

DOWN TO EARTH

Gilbert Bailey

The Sierra Club isn't the only body in a quandary over that act.

From a conservationist point of view it promises all the right things. Individual portions of the act seem very desirable.

But over-all there are some real doubts, doubts which cloud the entire conservationist movement.

The doubts and questions involve blind opposition to practically everything.

FOR EXAMPLE, conservationists oppose hydroelectric developments in some areas because of the damage caused by dams and call for nuclear power developments instead.

In other areas conservationists, sometimes belonging to the same organization, oppose nuclear plants because of fears of radiation and of thermal (hot water) pollution.

And conservationists wince when representatives of the poor and the minorities charge "elitism," claiming the environmentalists are denying jobs and services to the poor and the minorities.

There is some truth to those charges and some truth to the charge of blind opposition.

The charges come to a head in the "Clean Environment Act."

AMONG OTHER provisions it would block nuclear plant construction for five years. Strict drilling regulations are included, far too strict, according to the oil industry.

There are many other controversial and rigid provisions in the act.

In the past what was believed to be a step forward has turned out to be a step backward.

The first auto controls did cut the emission of hydrocarbons, but also increased the emissions of oxides of nitrogen and, as a result, caused perhaps more smog than no controls.

Equally tragic mistakes may be included in the "Clean Environment Act."

There is another problem, one also noted by the Sierra Club. The act may complicate passage of legislation pending this legislative session. And basically, laws should be passed by the legislature — that's its job — not by the initiative process, which can be even more grossly distorted than the legislative process.

IT MAY BE that the Sierra Club will eventually endorse the act on the basis of standing together, right or wrong, with its friends. That would be too bad.

Constructive, not destructive, programs are needed. Solid gains can be made during this legislative session.

As conservationists wish industry to accept and act on valid criticisms — still too rare an event — so should conservationists act on valid criticism of their stands.

For the Sierra Club the time may have come to listen as well as to speak.

L.A.C. Says By L.A. COLLINS SR.

Higher profits are indicated for 1972

The fourth quarter profits for corporations in 1971 were 9.8 per cent higher than the like quarter of 1970 for the first 755 corporations reporting. Based on this trend it is estimated 1972 profits may be 20 per cent greater than last year. This is based on figures by the U.S. Department of Commerce as interpreted by the Economic unit of U.S. News. Its research based on the past indicates that if the trend continues the Dow-Jones averages of 30 industrial stocks could reach 1100 this year. They closed Friday at 917.59.

The report points out, however that such an increase after tax dollars is not going to mean anything like that much in dividends. Under new controls dividends in 1972 cannot be increased by more than 4 per cent above the highest annual payments in the 1969-71 period. Larger profits thus will pile up in company tills for later use in dividends or capital expansion.

A CHART shows comparison of total profits after taxes with the high level reached in 1966 of $49.9 billion with the low level of $41.2 billion in 1970. It is estimated they were back to $47.4 billion in 1971 and expected to reach $57 billion for 1972.

A chart shows 56 large corporations reporting 1970 fourth quarter earnings compared with 1971. It shows 40 with substantially higher earnings for 1972 and 16 with lower earnings. General Motors is not included because of its 1970 strike in the 4th quarter. The general upturn in profits is in most industries. The aluminum and copper stocks were all down — as were the can manufacturers. All others showed major increases in profits with some exceptions in an industry. All rail and air transportation companies listed showed good improvement.

A tally of 231 of the largest corporations, excluding General Motors, shows combined sales rising 8.3 per cent in 1971. Earnings after federal and state income taxes, however, gained only 4.5 per cent. The margin of profit on each dollar of sales fell off from 6.7 cents in 1970 to 6.5 cents in 1971.

This means the net profit of these corporations with 6.5 cents of net profit out of each dollar of sales will be paying dividends to their some 30 million shareowners equal to about 4 per cent on the value of their stocks. It is estimated this will take about two thirds of their total net profit. The other third will be used for expansion and reserves.

What is not included in the survey is the effect settlement of the dock strike will have on the economy. If the increased labor costs are high above the Phase II Pay Board levels it will mean the 5.5 to 7 per cent level will be increased two or more times. That will mean selling price levels must be increased and we will be back on the inflation spiral that caused the 1970 and early 1971 recession.

THE EARNINGS reports coming out daily are encouraging. The stock market has reacted favorably. The savings of individuals is at an all-time high. If the wage and price controls are allowed to work there are good reasons to hope for a banner year in the economy with much reduced unemployment. That could mean the Dow-Jones averages going to over 1000 quickly and even to the estimated 1100 mark.

But the next few weeks may tell a different story if the longshoremen's pay increase of 34 per cent over the next 18 months is to be accepted. That if it opens up other labor — management contracts — can put us right back where we were before the controls took effect last August.

There is hope this can be avoided by the measure passed last week by Congress calling for enforced arbitration in all transportation industry strikes. There will be hectic weeks or months ahead.

Real vs. Academic World

Students serve with officials

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

If there is anything wrong with the Long Beach Project, it's that not enough students can participate.

That, anyway, seems to be the consensus of those California State College at Long Beach students who have taken part in the college-city program during its first two years of operation.

"Our main accomplishment is to get students involved actively in problem solving in the community," said Larry D. Sosowsky, who originated the Long Beach program two years ago.

UNDER THE program, CSLB students are appointed as college representatives to the various City of Long Beach committees, boards and commissions. Sosowsky, for example, sits with the Board of Harbor Commissioners.

Although the students do not have a vote, they are encouraged to ask questions and make comments and suggestions on city business coming before their respective commissions.

One of the most common comments by students in the Long Beach Project was that it has given them "practical experience" in municipal government to add to classroom theory.

"It is a means of comparing the real world with the academic exposure," said Harold Schaffer, a graduate student in psychology, who sits with the Citizen's Advisory Committee for Community Improvement.

"THERE ARE a lot of discrepancies between the books and the practice of government," noted Harold J. Pierce, a senior in political science, who meets with the Human Relations Commission.

"It has broadened by understanding of the operations of city government and citizen participation in municipal government," Pierce added.

Janet Clow, a senior in political science, was a representative the first year with the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities, and the second year with the Water Commission.

She also praised the "first-hand experience" available for participating students, but said she felt it is difficult for the student representative to contribute much, particularly on the more technical bodies such as the harbor or water boards.

SOSOWSKY agreed, in part, but said he believes the program is "finally getting to the position where we can make a tangible contribution to the city."

Sosowsky said the idea of the Long Beach Project was developed in 1969 and 1970 when a group of CSLB students, in an effort to overcome the "bad image" being created by unrest on many campuses, introduced various campus-community programs to acquaint students and civic leaders with one another.

"I felt that a student, who has access to the expertise of the college, could perhaps make a contribution to the various city policy-making bodies," he said.

After numerous meetings with City Manager John R. Mansell and his staff, Sosowsky proposed the Long Beach Project. It was recommended by Mansell and adopted by the council. The participants originally had been referred to as "student observers," but Mansell called them "student representatives."

"THIS WAS a major distinction from the student standpoint," Sosowsky said. "It gives the positions more relevancy."

The Long Beach Program did not involve the committee representation alone. Weekly seminars were held on campus, at which city leaders and political scientists talked to the students.

"I wanted the students to understand the functions of Long Beach government," Sosowsky explained. "They had to understand what the community is and how it functions if they were to make any contribution."

"The city is a geographic entity with competition among its various parts for a share of the pie — which is the budget," he said.

AT THE end of the first semester, Sosowsky was accepted as a Congressional intern with Congressman Richard T. Hanna and spent eight weeks in Washington. One of the major conversational topics among the various interns was the Long Beach Project, he said.

One major development in the project has been that students now can get three units of credit for participation. When it first was started, their city assignments were on a voluntary basis.

This year, the Long Beach Project will be a part of the CSLB Center for Urban Studies, another step forward in its recognition as an important educational tool for students, Sosowsky said.

Pierce pointed to another development. Under the Urban Studies direction, student representatives will have a sort of "staff" of other students, who can provide information and ideas.

SOME OF the student representatives have involved city commissions in their own projects.

Schaffer heads an activity at CSLB known as Educational Participation in Communities. Volunteers from the campus work in the community in a variety of programs, such as tutoring, teacher aides, conducting classes for deprived youngsters and similar activities with established civic organizations. The Human Relations Commission voted last Thursday to endorse the program.

"Our overall goal is to try and involve other students on the campus, either with city government or in the city itself," Schaffer said.

That was the specific goal of Students for Community Involvement, which was the predecessor of EPIC. The latter is federally funded as a joint activity at CSLB and four other Southland state colleges.

SCHAFFER SAID the Long Beach Project experience helped him in getting federal assistance to establish the EPIC program, which now has some 250 volunteers working on community activitities.

"For a long time, the Long Beach college community wasn't even recognized by most of the people in the city," Schaffer said. "Since the Long Beach Project, many civic leaders now realize that the campus can supply expertise to help solve community problems."

Ex-POW Frishman to speak

Navy Lt. Robert Frishman, who spent two years as a prisoner of war in North Vietnamese prison camps, will speak at a Distinguished Service Awards Banquet in Long Beach Wednesday.

The banquet, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is scheduled for 6 p.m. at the International City Club, 1900 E. Ocean Blvd.

The annual awards will honor Long Beach men who have made the biggest contribution to their community this past year.

Finalists this year are Kenneth E. Barnes, 256 Park Ave.; Donald Dyer, 2006 Stanley Place, and Jerry Edgmon, 4157 Avenida Madrid, Cypress.

L.B. libraries offer exhibits, films about black history

Black History Week will be observed Feb. 13 to 19 by three Long Beach public libraries which will feature exhibits, story hours and film programs, a spokesman said.

Libraries participating in the national tribute to cultural contributions of black Americans are: Mark Twain branch, 1325 E. Anaheim St.; Bret Harte branch, 1595 W. Willow St. and Brunett branch, 560 E. Hill St.

Films selected for the programs are available to the public at the film service department of the Main Library, at Pacific Avenue and Ocean Boulevard.

Programs are:

Monday—4:30 p.m., "Aretha Franklin," a behind-the-scenes film profile of the singer will be screened with "Body and Soul," Mark Twain branch; 7:30 p.m., "Fayette Story," an account of Charles Evers' election as mayor of Fayette, Miss., screened with "Hey Cab" and "Black Thumb," Bret Harte branch; 7:30 p.m., "Black History: Lost, Stolen, or Strayed," Bill Cosby's review of black achievements often omitted from history books, Burnett branch.

Tuesday—4:30 p.m., "I Am Somebody" and "I Have A Dream," Mark Twain branch; 7:30 p.m., "Black History," Bret Harte branch; 7:30 p.m., "Fayette Story," "Hey Cab" and "Black Thumb," Burnett branch.

Wednesday—4:30 p.m., "Fayette Story," "Hey Cab" and "Black Thumb," Mark Twain branch; 7:30 p.m., "220 Blues," "Al Stacey Hayes" and "Ancient Africans," Bret Harte; 7:30 p.m., "Aretha Franklin" and "I Am Somebody," Burnett branch.

Thursday—4:30 p.m., "Black History," Mark Twain branch; 7:30 p.m., "I Am Somebody" and "Aretha Franklin," Bret Harte branch; 7:30 p.m., "220 Blues," "Al Stacey Hayes" and "Joshua," Burnett branch.

Saturday—10:30 a.m., Story hour, "African Folk Tales and Games," 2:30 p.m., film, "J.T.," Bret Harte branch.

What's The Siren?

The Long Beach police and fire departments answered the following emergency calls during the 12 hours ending at 8 p.m. Saturday.

2:13 p.m., non-injury traffic accident, Anaheim Street and Redondo Avenue; 3:53 p.m., non-injury traffic accident, Wardlow Road and Stanbridge Avenue; 4:53 p.m., injury traffic accident, Ocean Boulevard and Junipero Avenue; 5:07 p.m., injury traffic accident, Artesia Boulevard and Atlantic Avenue.

USS Barbour County joins L.B. Fleet in impressive commissioning

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

Long Beach gained another ship Saturday as the new class tank-landing ship, USS Barbour County joined the fleet in an impressive commissioning at the shipyard's Pier E.

A Marine trumpeter from El Toro's 3rd Air Wing Band, Pfc. Robert Comeau of Anaheim, played the National Anthem solo seconds after Capt. Charles E. Stastny, Los Angeles-Long Beach base commander, had placed the ship in commission.

The 36-minute ceremony was attended by almost 1,000 persons on a perfect day.

Cmdr. John G. Schimming, who had commanded one of the World War II LSTs in Vietnam's Mekong Delta, is Barbour County's first skipper. It was his innovative idea to have the National Anthem solo.

Speaker was Vice Adm. Nels C. Johnson, Pacific Amphibious Force commander.

He said the 207 men manning the Barbour County all face a future "that includes a challenge to people, leadership, sociological change and national security."

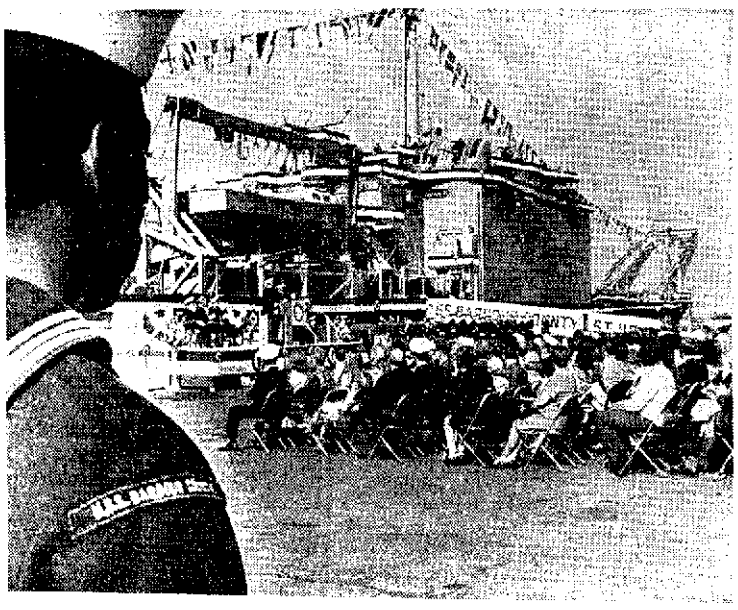

The ship is named for an Alabama county. The county seat is Eufala — home of former chief of naval operations and now chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Adm. Thomas H. Moorer.

Lt. (jg) Edward A. Erdmann III, El Paso, Tex., operations officer, was honored with the privilege of standing the ship's first watch as officer of the deck.

Capt. Richard C. Fay, shipyard commander, welcomed the crowd, noting the commissioning was the 14th of its type to be held in Long Beach with three more to come.

This class LST features a 67-foot radical bow ramp, a 25 miles an hour speed from six V-16 diesel engines and facilities for transporting 800 Marines and their equipment.

The bow ramp, although new on Navy ships was first used by the Romans in the First Punic War. It was 18 feet long and called a crovus.

What to do in case of traffic accident ---often you don't need to call the police

By CHUCK CHEATHAM
Staff Writer

You are driving down the street and suddenly an auto pulls in front of you from a side street and you collide.

Or any one of many versions and you are in an accident.

You quickly check and no one in your auto or the other vehicle is injured.

What do you do?

Do you call the police?

Yes and no.

If the other driver is as sober as you are and both machines are driveable and do not have to be towed away, no.

Unless you or the other driver insists on a report being taken.

All you have to do is to exchange drivers'-license and registration information.

And, if the damage to any one car is over $200, you are obligated to go to the nearest police department or the Department of Motor Vehicles and obtain an SR-I form. This form must then be filled out and returned to the Motor Vehicle Department.

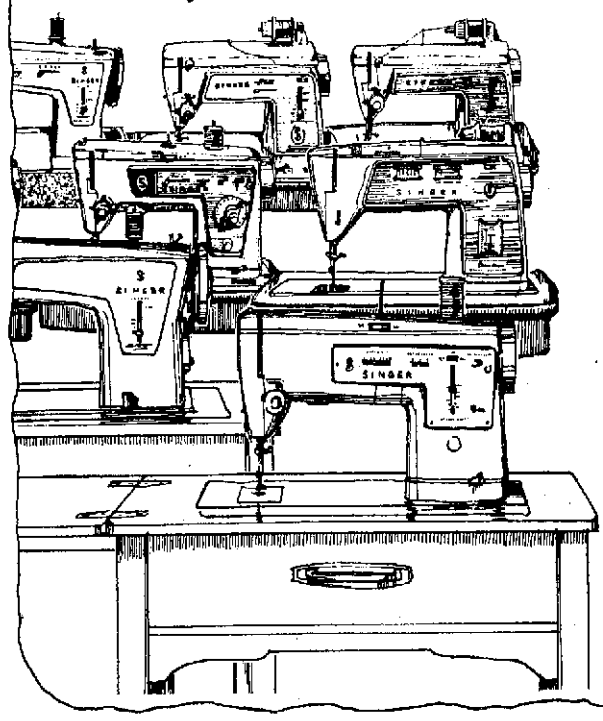

Lt. Thomas L. Welch, in charge of the communications radio room of the Long Beach Police Department, said Saturday the radio room is handling 900 calls a day and 1,100 calls each Saturday and Sunday.

"There are only 1,440 minutes in a day and many of our calls are emergency calls where life may be hanging in the balance. If you do not have an emergency you may be endangering another persons life by slowing down our reaction time in arriving at an emergency scene by clogging up the phones with a nonemergency call like a minor accident," he expalined.

In the event someone is injured, the police department will roll code three, with red lights and siren, Lt. Welch added.

Drugs still top problem at ABC high schools

By MARK CLUTTER
Staff Writer

Drugs remain the No. 1 discipline problem of the ABC high schools, but administrators are overjoyed by a dramatic 50 per cent decline in drug incidents this school year, said Williard Redfern, director of secondary education.

"We haven't the slightest idea why this has happened," Redfern said "but we are hoping it is the result of the educational efforts of the press, television and our own drug education program."

REDFERN discussed the disciplinary problems of the four high schools of the huge district.

"Except for drugs, none of them are more serious than in the past," he said. "But drugs have been quite a burden in the past two years."

The schools are hampered, he said, by the lack of agencies to whom students can be referred. Suspension and transfer to another school are the usual methods.

"Transfer is very important," he said. "His classmates know something has happened, and sometimes it is best to get him away from his crowd. In a new school he has a chance to make a fresh start. We always confere with the parents."

Expulsion is recommended for drug peddlers.

MOSTLY the drugs are pills. Alcohol comes under the heading of drugs, but only rarely is a student caught with a bottle.

"We have found that drugs are not the real problem," Redfern said. "Drugs are usually symptoms of something else that is going wrong in the child's life. Parental attitudes are often involved.

"In drug cases, as in all other disciplinary problems we don't want a punitive system. But we do demand correct behavior and good citizenship."

Discipline is handled by the deans of boys and the deans of girls in the four high schools — Artesia, Gahr, Cerritos and El Dorado (continuation).

THERE ARE more than 5,000 students in crowded, four-year schools which grew 11 per cent last year. The ABC district includes Artesia, Cerritos, Hawaiian Gardens and parts of Santa Fe Springs, La Mirada, Norwalk, Lakewood and Long Beach.

"Newspapers, television and the movies understandably stress the dramatic bad conduct of young people," Redfern said. "Disciplinary problems are actually only a small part of the school scene.

"Ninty per cent of the boys and girls never get into any kind of trouble. They are here to get an education. We do what we can to help the 10 per cent, but we hold that the 90 per cent have a right to an environment in which they can learn and the teachers have a right to be able to teach."

THE MOST "popular" forms of misbehavior are classroom disruption and smoking.

"Smoking is the most frequent cause of suspension," he said. "It's against the state law and suspension is automatic. The deans handle disruptions when the teachers can't."

In the ABC district, there is no longer a dress code except on one point.

All children must wear shoes. It's the state law.

Some of the disciplinary problems are sent to the El Dorado Continuation High School.

"It is very successful," Redfern said. "Most of them straighten out in that specialized environment."

500 I, P-T newsboys honored

Five hundred Independent, Press-Telegram newspaperboys and their families were honored recently at the Long Beach Elks Club for their outstanding service, salesmanship and route management.

Guest speaker at the event was Kermit Alexander of the Los Angeles Rams. And entertainment was provided by Linda Stanley, folk singer and member of the Long Beach Collegiate Chorale.

99 Bronze Champions were introduced by George Smith, suburban P-T district adviser. 58 Silver Champions were named by Mike Pearsall, also an adviser. Mickey Williams, P-T district manager, hailed 25 Gold Champions. These boys received certificates and awards.

Seventeen Master Champions received engraved gold watches to recognize their advancement which takes 15 months to achieve.

RECEIVE TOP AWARDS

HONORED

Cdr. Albert P. Festag, head of the Fleet Ships Assistance Program at Terminal Island, has been transferred to command the Navy Division School at Memphis, Tenn. Cdr. Festag was honored last week for his service to the Reserves at a ceremony held at the Los Alamitos Naval Air Station.

Navy puts 'Y' golfers on green

The Navy has stepped forward for the second consecutive year to sponsor a Long Beach Armed Services YMCA benefit invitational golf tournament.

Capt. Donald A. Smith, Long Beach Naval Station commander, said Saturday the tournament will be held Friday, March 10 on the Navy course in Los Alamitos.

Last year's play netted $5,650 for the financially stricken YMCA which had seen its revenues fall drastically since the cutback of ships and personnel in Long Beach.

This year the Y's picture is a little brighter, with only a $700 deficit on the books as of Jan. 31.

Naval Station special services director Frank Kirkland said invitations have been mailed to last year's participants.

"We're taking other entries at $20 a person," Kirkland said. "The money includes greens fees but not a golf cart," he added.

He said tee off will be at 8 a.m. on both the first and ninth holes with trophies and other prizes waiting for winners.

Last year many persons "entered" the tournament but did not play. Their place was filled by an enlisted golfer from one of Long Beach's ships. The same procedure will be followed this year.

A special hole-in-one game on the two Par 3 holes, 6 and 15, will be run by the Women's Club.

Trophies will be donated by Naval Base commander, Capt. Charles E. Stastny; Capt. Smith; and Long Beach Mayor Edwin W. Wade.

Kirkland said Tuesday, March 7 was entry deadline.

Self-defense classes set for women

S.O.S. — Safety on the Streets — a free self-protection program designed especially ofr women is set for 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Veterans Park Clubhouse, 101 E. 28th St.

The two-hour program will feature demonstrations in judo, karate and will include a special discussion on self-defense tactics by Long Beach Policewoman Dorothy Pierce.

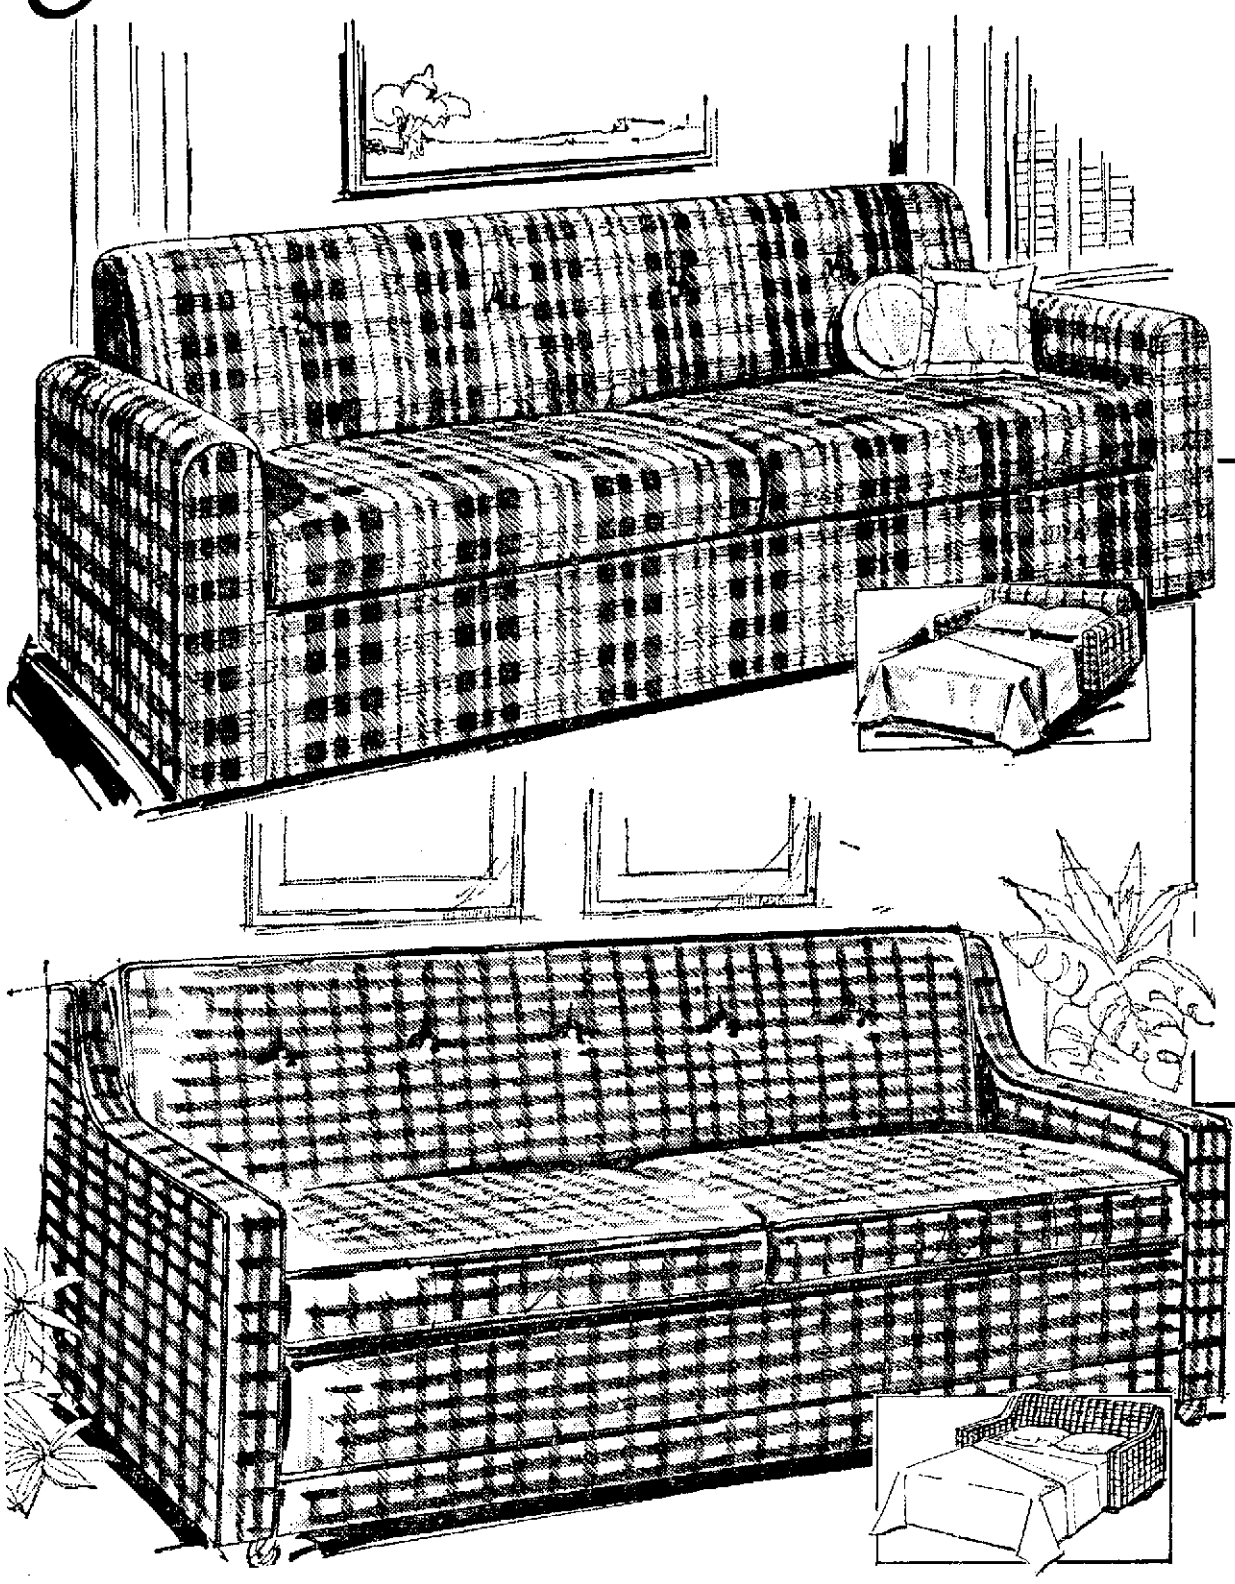

Program reservations may be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce, 121 Linden Ave.

Youths picked for possible jury duty

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — Superior Court officials announced Saturday that 6 per cent of 999 persons selected for the March panel of prospective jurors in San Mateo County are aged 18 to 20. The right to jury service for 18-20-year-olds was signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan and goes into effect March 4.

Women buy guns—some use them

Booze says.

"A woman who has a gun and knows how to use it will be able to sleep at night," he asserts.

That view is becoming increasingly popular among women in the Long Beach area.

Sidney Marks, who operates the Tri-City Rifle and Pistol Range in Maywood recommends a .22-caliber revolver with a four inch barrel.

"I sold one to an 84-year-old women. She liked it because it would fit into her purse," he said.

Marks said a woman can become proficient in the use of a gun in only a short time on the range.

"If an elderly person is accosted by a young bandit, I think the older victim has every right in the world to protect herself with a gun," Marks said.

He said 35 per cent of his handguns are bought for use by women.

These, along with daily reports of robberies, rapes and kidnapings, are convincing arguments in support of arming women and showing them how to use guns.

But there are also strong arguments against it.

One comes from a man who sold 1,000 hand guns last year — 600 of them to women.

William Walker, who owns a gun and pawn shop at 246 E. 1st St. in Long Beach, offers small, inexpensive .22-caliber weapons for about $20 and palm-sized, .25 caliber automatics for about $100.

"Women like the looks of the small automatics with the pearl handles," he says. "But they are more dangerous than revolvers because they are more difficult to operate."

In spite of his brisk gun business, Walker says, "I don't think a gun would do a woman much good if she were attacked. Besides, guns get people into trouble when they are used in anger and passion."

Veteran Long Beach Police Sgt. Jack McMahan thinks a lady with a gun is a greater danger to herself than she is to a man bent on robbery or assault.

"Most of the time a woman would be reluctant to use a gun until it is too late. She is likely to have it taken away from her by an assailant and have it used against her. If the man is unarmed, she might provide him with a gun he wouldn't otherwise have," McMahan says.

"I carry a gun all the time," he says, "but I doubt if I would have an opportunity to use it until the crime was all over."

"I realize young ladies would like to have some means of protection," McMahan says, "but to be perfectly practical a gun really isn't the answer."

He notes, however, that there might be some merit in a woman having a gun in the house. If she hears someone breaking in and knows how to use a gun and has some time to think, she might fire a few shots into the floor.

"No one in his right mind would continue an aggressive act in that case," McMahan says.

Gun salesmen say their lady customers, many of whom are elderly, want small weapons they can tuck into their purses.

They tell them it is a violation of the law to carry a loaded or concealed weapon without a permit . . . and permits are rarely issued. Yet, it is certain there are many women in the Long Beach area who keep guns in their purses for protection.

While no officer would openly say so, police are inclined to overlook these misdemeanor offenses, particularly when the person carrying the concealed weapon is a responsible, stable citizen without a police record.

If criminals can have guns and you can't, what are the alternatives for a woman alone in her home or on the street.

Any kind of chemical spray which is legal is so slow to react it doesn't do any good as a weapon, according to McMahan.

He advises women to carry a loud whistle to attract attention in the event of an attack on the street.

Lt. Donald Weiss, commander of the South Gate detective bureau which investigated the attack on Mrs. Schoeman, offers this advice:

—Avoid hazardous situations. Stay off the streets alone at night.

—When driving lock your car doors, even during the day.

—Use common sense. Don't carry any more money than you need. And don't carry a large purse.

Lt. Weiss advises women against having a gun unless they are familiar with it and know how to use it.

The question of whether milady should buy a gun and learn how to use it to protect herself remains unanswered.

Mrs. Schoeman and the soaring crime rate weigh heavily on one side. The advice of experienced law officers and statistics on tragic gun accidents argue against gun ownership.

Orange Co. drainage plan a jump ahead of developers

Orange County is pushing its drainage program into the foothills in advance of anticipated development by subdividers, and hopes to have engineering completed before the bulldozers get there.

Chief Engineer H. George Osborne of the flood control district said the county expects to finance basic engineering work, but will get much of its money back by way of fees against acreage that is developed.

The preliminary engineering will identify the drainage demands, anticipated against probable development, and will give the districts basis on which to calculate charges against the property owners, Osborne explained.

The county also charges fees for developing local parks when subdividers develop tracts.

Both these fees are relatively new in the county, in which rural areas are fast disappearing into urban-style developments.

Fees charged for drainage vary widely: from only $63 per acre to almost $1,500 per acre. The chief engineer explained that these basic fees are different because of the terrain and the anticipated runoff. The distance from creeks and storm channels also is computed, and whether the storm channel is improved to handle high flows is a factor.

Park fees range from $155 to $250 per lot and are designed solely to build up a fund so the county can establish a local park in a specific area.

Experience has shown that people hardly ever notice that a public park is not nearby when they buy or build — but they always start pleading for one soon afterwards, explained Kenneth Sampson, director of beaches and parks for the county.

Instead of money, a tract developer can donate land to the county for park purposes. Most of them set aside a park site rather than part with the cash.

Tape player taken

A stereo tape player, a radio and tapes valued totally at $251 were stolen from an auto owned by Walter Schlieser while his car was parked near Eighth Street and Ximeno Avenue, police said Saturday.

with a minimal adequate diet for less than 20 cents a day or $70 a year."

Many parents think their children should have the opportunity to witness the miracle of young life. "Perhaps," said Mahan, "but are they going to tell them the whole story of what will happen to the babies?"

THE VETERINARIANS believe that the irresponsibility of public officials is cowardice.

"Everyone in public office knows that anything involving pets is political dynamite," Mahan said. "They just don't want to get involved in such emotional issues."

The ideal of the association is quality of life for animals.

"We believe," Mahan said, "that every pet animal has a right to good health, good food, loving care and protection. We hold that owning a pet is a privilege, not a right. We want to eliminate the serious assault on public health, ecology and the food supply by these unwanted animals."

Much of the neglect of pets in the metropolis is due to a social lag, Mahan feels. "This is a big city, but so many of our people have rural or village backgrounds. On a farm it is customary to put the dog and cat out at bedtime. They can roam and hunt in the woods and fields, and the dog guards the place. To turn animals out at night in the city is not good for them or for society."

The association in a statement of policy lists several things it wants done:

— No domestic animal should be released from a shelter until it is rendered sterile.

— Owners of intact animals should pay substantially higher license fees than owners of spayed or neutered animals. Some hold that the license should be so high as to be prohibitive to all except purebred breeders.

— Licensing of all cats.

— Strict enforcement of animal control laws.

— A crash public educational program to help pet owners to be responsible.

— Enlist the influence of government, humane leaders, animal control officials, health officials, pharmaceutical companies and the public to bring about development of a safe, inexpensive contraceptive. Experimentation, although hampered by lack of funds, is showing great promise at Colorado State University and elsewhere.

— Emphasize surgery until medical sterilization is available.

"It is the opinion of the SCVMA that a situation bordering on disaster is confronting our community," the policy statement says.

One of the factors in the population explosion is the greater longevity of well-cared-for dogs. A dog in a good home now has a life expectancy of eight years. Only two decades ago it was four years.

"This has come about through better nutrition and better medical care," Mahan said. "The science is advancing very rapidly. And there are more owners who are conscientious about keeping their dogs up."

America has its own pet problem not shared by other countries.

"Foreigners are often amazed at our enthusiasm for pets," Mahan said. "In many other countries the ownership of dogs as pets is aristocratic. All other dogs are workers. They are shepherds, guards, soldiers, hunters and draft animals."

Fred Bixby, of pioneer family, dies

Fred Hathaway Bixby, Jr., son of pioneer Long Beach rancher and builder Fred H. Bixby, died Saturday afternoon after a short illness at Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles.

Mr. Bixby was born April 5, 1910 in Los Angeles and spent his boyhood at Rancho Los Alamitos at 6400 Bixby Hill Rd. in Long Beach. The family acquired the property through a Spanish Land Grant and built the adobe ranch house on it in 1806.

MR. BIXBY was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, a member of the University Club in Los Angeles, the Metropolitan Club of New York, the Mayflower Descendants Society of New York, and founder member of both the Music Center and the County Art Museum in Los Angeles.

He served as director of the Fred H. Bixby Ranch Co. which was established by his father.

Mr. Bixby is survived by two sisters. Mrs. Preston Hotchkis of San Marino and Mrs. Edgar L. Janeway of Santa Ynez, and eight nieces and nephews.

Funeral services are pending at Peek Family Colonial Funeral Home in Westminister.

THE ELDER Bixby died in 1952 at age 77. He was the last of the family engaged in ranching and operated the 3,300-acre Rancho Los Alamitos on the eastern edge of Long Beach.

At one point the ranching operation included more than 30,000 sheep which were grazed on what is now the site of Wilson High School and Recreation Park.

The Bixby home, which is owned by the city and open to the public, is one of the oldest landmarks in the Long Beach area.

sampling — an area in which persons may be tested for up to 200 job possibilities. This program, if conducted in its entirety, requires six hours a day for 14 days.

Dr. Rapport said that the vocational department encompasses more than just pencil-and-paper testing. Work sampling entails performance of certain tasks. The technique also helps determine "work readiness" for those preparing to return to a job.

Assistance also is given in preparation of job resumes and in rehearsal for job interviews.

Classrooms are available in the complex — and will be used on occasion for mental health seminars for business and industrial executives.

There's a nursery for the children of women patients participating in the day-care program.

The "motel building" consists of 22 units — for out-of-town patients and families of patients. There are lobbies on both floors.

But there is no nursing station nor medical supervision in the building. It's a residence, not a hospital, institute officials emphasize.

Besides day care, a weekend-care program is to be made available, as is one for evenings. A crisis intervention service is offered 24 hours a day — open to the community.

In addition, there are programs for alcoholism, drug abuse and adolescent problems.

Services also include premarital counseling, marriage counseling, retirement counseling, educational counseling and psychological testing.

BUT CONTROVERSIAL ADVISER, NOW VINDICATED, IS LEAVING

'China experts' are social lions of day in Washington

By MARIE RIDDER
I. P-T Capitol Bureau

WASHINGTON — In the frenzy of these few days before President Nixon leaves for China, "China experts" are the social lions of the day.

President Nixon is giving a dinner Monday night for former French minister of culture, Andre Malraux, whose involvement with China's Communist movement in the mid-1920's led to life-long friendship with the Chinese leaders.

John Stewart Service, a former foreign service officer whose China connections made him a pariah in official Washington until very recently, has discussed with the President his recent visit to the People's Republic.

RECOMMENDED reading for those going with the President includes the books of Harvard Professor John Fairbank, another of those singled out in the 1950s as a "Communist sympathizer."

But the man who was chief U.S. political adviser and once the senior foreign service officer on General Joseph Stillwell's staff has not heard from the White House. John Paton Davies is in fact, quietly preparing a move to Spain.

In 1948, John Paton Davies, then a foreign service officer, was given the Medal of Freedom by the 51st secretary of state, George C. Marshall for "exceptional and meritorious service" in Asia in the years 1942 through 1944. He was cited for a "high degree of resourcefulness, intelligence, tact and personal courage."

IN 1954, Davies was fired by the 53rd secretary of state, John Foster Dulles for "a lack of judgment, discretion and reliability" in the same work in the same place in the same years. His loyalty had been investigated eight times and eight times not found wanting. The ninth panel vaguely questioned his judgment. He was fired after 23 years in the foreign service.

Now in 1972 Richard Nixon, who used to be identified with the view of communism as a monolithic menace, is going to China to deal with the Communists. It was Davies' recommendation that the Americans deal with the Chinese Communist, not put all their eggs in the fragile basket of Chang Kai-shek's many-factioned regime. Like his commander, General Stillwell, Davies felt the U.S. should remain in contact with the Communist leadership in the hope that a Communist China might not end up a satellite of Russia and that Washington could prevent the marriage of Peking and Moscow. That view became heretical after Joe McCarthy, pursuing "Communists" in government" blamed our China staff for "the loss of China." Davies was driven out.

NOW THAT the United States government, replete with a President and an entourage of 200 is following Davies recommendations, one asks Mr. Davies if he feels an exultant vindication.

"No," he answers, "these things are so much bigger than I am, or anyone. I can't quite think in terms of a government coming around to my way of thinking. Somehow government goes its own way. All I can say is we didn't take our current position 25 years ago. If we had we might have been spared two wars in Asia.

"I was taken aback with the whole thing, Professor Kissinger going over and now the President. I could just see Chou En-lai and the others enjoying these things. He has a very good sense of humor, you know.

"And there is the whole spectacle. Like the foreign envoys waiting to come to the imperial court in the last days of the Manchu Dynasty. To the Chinese, this must be a delightful moment. The most powerful country in the world seeking something from them and Nixon, the great anti-Communist crusader, making the overtures.

"AND YOU know we have taken the initiative. The Chinese could never have come to us. For our own reasons, of course, the President wanted to go to Peking. He gains on the side of romance. He has advantages here but if we had asked the Chinese to come to the U.S. they could not have accepted. It would have been a loss of face whereas as generous, welcoming hosts . . ."

"I would, of course like to go back to China. I was born there and spent what I still think of as my most productive years there, but I don't have any immediate plans for Chinese travel. I have children and casual travel is just not in our current budget."

In 1954, John Davies was 46. After China he was sent to Moscow where he served under Ambassador Averell Harriman, who was later to testify, "many of the telegrams that pointed out the danger to the United States of Soviet postwar intentions owe much to Mr. Davies' insights into Soviet motives."

HARRIMAN has moreover, often told the story of our entry into Korea: "It was Davies who insisted we fight immediately."

Davies was a then senior member of the State Department Planning Council. At the time he was fired, he had become deputy chief of mission in Lima, Peru. Harriman says, "There is no question in my mind that without the insanity of the McCarthy period Davies would have become one of our most distinguished ambassadors."

"Well," says Davies, "we did other things."

For a while he went into the furniture business in Peru where his designs won world acclaim but made little money. Journalist Theodore H. White recalls these years as "just terrible for John and Pat. The one thing that would have been remunerative for them would have been to have accepted various book offers."

FINALLY after years of effort by Walter Surrey, Davies' lawyer, the Johnson administration restored the security clearance on January 13th, 1969. Leonard Meeker, our current ambassador to Romania, was legal counselor for the State Department at the time.

"I have never understood the hesitancy that two Democratic administrations showed on the simple issue of correcting an obvious wrong," Meeker said.

"The McCarthy era was a time of national hysteria. Davies was a victim of that malady. That was sad. However, at least it had an explanation, but years later when all his friends were running the government when an era was passed and repudiated, not to immediately make amends was a national disgrace."

"A generation of foreign service officers have suffered from the Davies example," says a member of Henry Kissinger's staff, a young China expert who first saw China with Kissinger last summer. "We not only have been denied access to China itself but equally important we have developed a cautiousness in our reporting; it's a sublinear thing — careful, let's not put our heads in a noose — rather than any specific."

"HISTORY," says historian Barbara Tuchman," is the unfolding of miscalculation." Nowhere is that better born out than our relations with China.

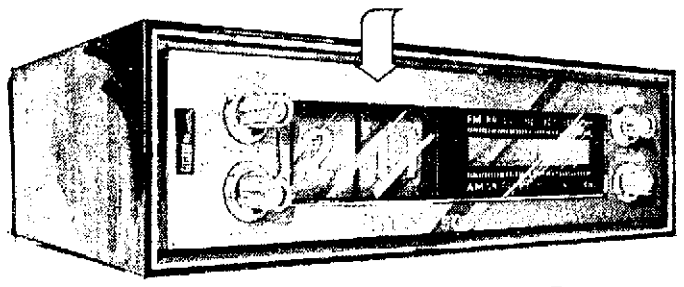

As Chinese new year celebrations begin to end the Year of the Pig and commence the Year of Rat, the one American who was closest to the Chinese leadership is quietly moving his family to Spain, "because we just can't afford the U.S. anymore" while his policies are leading an American president to the People's Republic of China.

GOP-Demo division on Viet offers voters real choice

By BILL BROOM
Chief, Capitol Bureau

WASHINGTON — Last October, Republican National Chairman Robert Dole told the Midwest Republican Conference in Indianapolis "the war won't be an issue — peace will."

Within a week, the White House and most of the Democratic candidates have made a prophet of Senator Dole. And with the resurrection of Vietnam as a major issue in the coming presidential election, the window-dressing that has obscured the debate heretofore has been stripped away.

IN THAT process, it has become clear there really is a dime's worth of difference between the candidates.

President Nixon forced the issue by revealing the secret negotiations he had been conducting with the Communists. His intention was twofold: to expose the intrasigence of the enemy and to pull the rug out from under the Democratic dove candidates, who had been demanding much of the substance Nixon had been offering the Communists.

Of all Democratic candidates, Sen. Edmund Muskie hit this bait the hardest. He accused the President of "renumbering and reissuing proposals that have failed for six years" and of "trying to win at the conference table what we have not won and cannot win on the battlefield."

THE DEMOCRATIC front-runner called for total U.S. withdrawal if U.S. prisoners were released and the departing troops guaranteed safety. He coupled this with a call on Saigon to move toward a political accommodation with the Communists.

Muskie's response opened up an entire new phase in the presidential campaign, and oddly, both Nixon and Muskie advisers believe their candidates have been strengthened in the process.

The administration response to Muskie was a finely-orchestrated attack designed to pin the blame for three years of fruitless negotiations for a peace settlement on administration critics. The White House directed every phase of the attack, but it was not shooting from the hip. The substance of its reaction had long been planned in anticipation.

H. R. HALDEMAN, one of the four most influential adviers at the White House and heretofore lowest in public profile, led the charge. He accused the President's critics of "consciously aiding and abetting" the enemy in Hanoi. Interestingly, Haldeman's remarks were taped for telecast Jan. 28, five days before Muskie's broadside was delivered.

One by one, White House communications director Herb Klein, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, Secretary of State William Rogers and others took up the refrain — if the war still drags on next fall, it will be the fault of the Democrats, because they are encouraging Hanoi to wait for better terms after the election.

THAT THEME was honed to its finest point by the President himself at his Thursday news conference at his desk in the Oval Room.

The President's remarks were more elevated in tone, but substantially the same as Haldeman's.

"The responsibility for the enemy's failing to negotiate may have to be borne by those who encourage the enemy to wait until after the election," he said.

The Muskie camp was delighted by Nixon's revival of the war issue, although there was some hesitation at the start. The senator characteristically delayed his answer to Nixon's relevation of the peace talks before he finally launched a reply which relied heavily on arguments supplied by former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford.

MUSKIE MEN were delighted for two political reasons — first, by singling out Muskie for the sharpest criticism the White House was confirming what Muskie's bandwagoneers have been trying to tell Democrats — their man is the probable Democratic nominee. Secondly, the fight helped Muskie to shed the image that he straddles the issues.

The words and actions of the week stripped the Vietnam war-peace issue down to its essentials in far starker terms than the American people have heard from their poiltical leaders up until now.

The President said he is willing to negotiate "settlement but not a surrender." In the absence of a settlement, he offered the choice of continued limited involvement in the war.

MUSKIE'S alternative was summed up as follows:

"Our task is to leave Indochina, to leave it to the Vietnamese to work out their own peace, not to determine their destiny according to a plan written in Washington. . . . It is not an easy thing for a great country to admit a mistake. . . . We must be willing now — all of us — to say, 'enough.' "

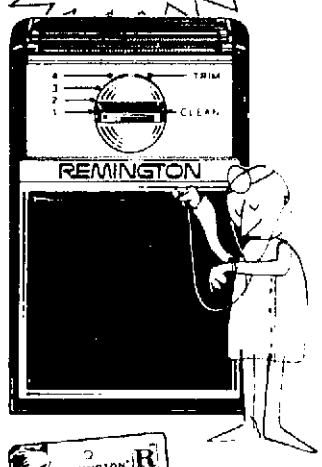

In effect, Muskie was saying that what has been done in Vietnam for the past seven years had been for naught and Nixon was saying that the United States could not leave Vietnam with a zero on the scoreboard.

Both men believe they are offering salable political merchandise.

They are also offering the American voter a choice.

TRIPLE L.B. BILL

Bloodrock shines at the Arena

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

The James Gang may be heavy bandits, but they didn't walk away with the goodies Friday night at the Long Beach Arena.

The Dunhill quartet was out-shined and out-flanked by Bloodrock led by prancing, pironetting Jim Rutledge.

Rutledge, sounding like a rough Rod Stewart, performed theatrical microphone calisthenics in front of the sell-out crowd.

DESPITE ear-assaulting acoustics, the group managed to turn in a smoothly blended solid sound.

Random selections from their American Burn album on Capitol were enhanced by Rutledge's lively gyrations and shaking, shimmering honey-colored mane.

Making their first appearance in Long Beach Jake Jones held down the difficult spot of crowd warmer on the triple bill.

Playing in the first position was made even more d i f f i c u l t when police cleared the lobby without explanation prior to the performance.

Bad vibrations seemed to permeate through the glass doors which separated an anxious audience from its rightful seats.

It was later learned a prankster had phoned in a bomb threat.

THE KAPP recording group managed to turn in a very able performance despite late arrivals and and an audience which couldn't seem to find its seat.

Phil Jost was the bright spot in an otherwise mediocre performance.

The bland, mustachioed Jost obviously knew what he was doing at the keyboard.

The group closed with the driving beat of a Chuck Berry medley.

The audience patiently waited three hours for the headlining James Gang to appear.

THEY SEEMED to move almost in slow motion after the exciting exhibition of Bloodrock.

The group featured some fancy vocalizing by Roy Kenner.

And although the other two groups were victims of the c a v e r n o u s sound projection, the James Gang seemed to take full advantage of the situation.

They just played louder.

Fire-rescue boat goes into service

A 28-foot fire-rescue boat went into service Friday at Orange County's new Dana Point Harbor.

Built by Seaway Boat Co. of Long Beach, the craft was outfitted by harbor personnel with special equipment giving it a water pumping capacity of 550 gallons per minute, a fire-foam generator, and a salvage pump, as well as all gear for rescue operations.

In addition, the vessel is fitted with radar, fathometer, radio and resuscitator. It has two 427-cubic inch V8 engines and hits 34 knots. The craft was built with an 11-foot beam and a 30-inch draft.

BETTER WAIT TILL MONDAY

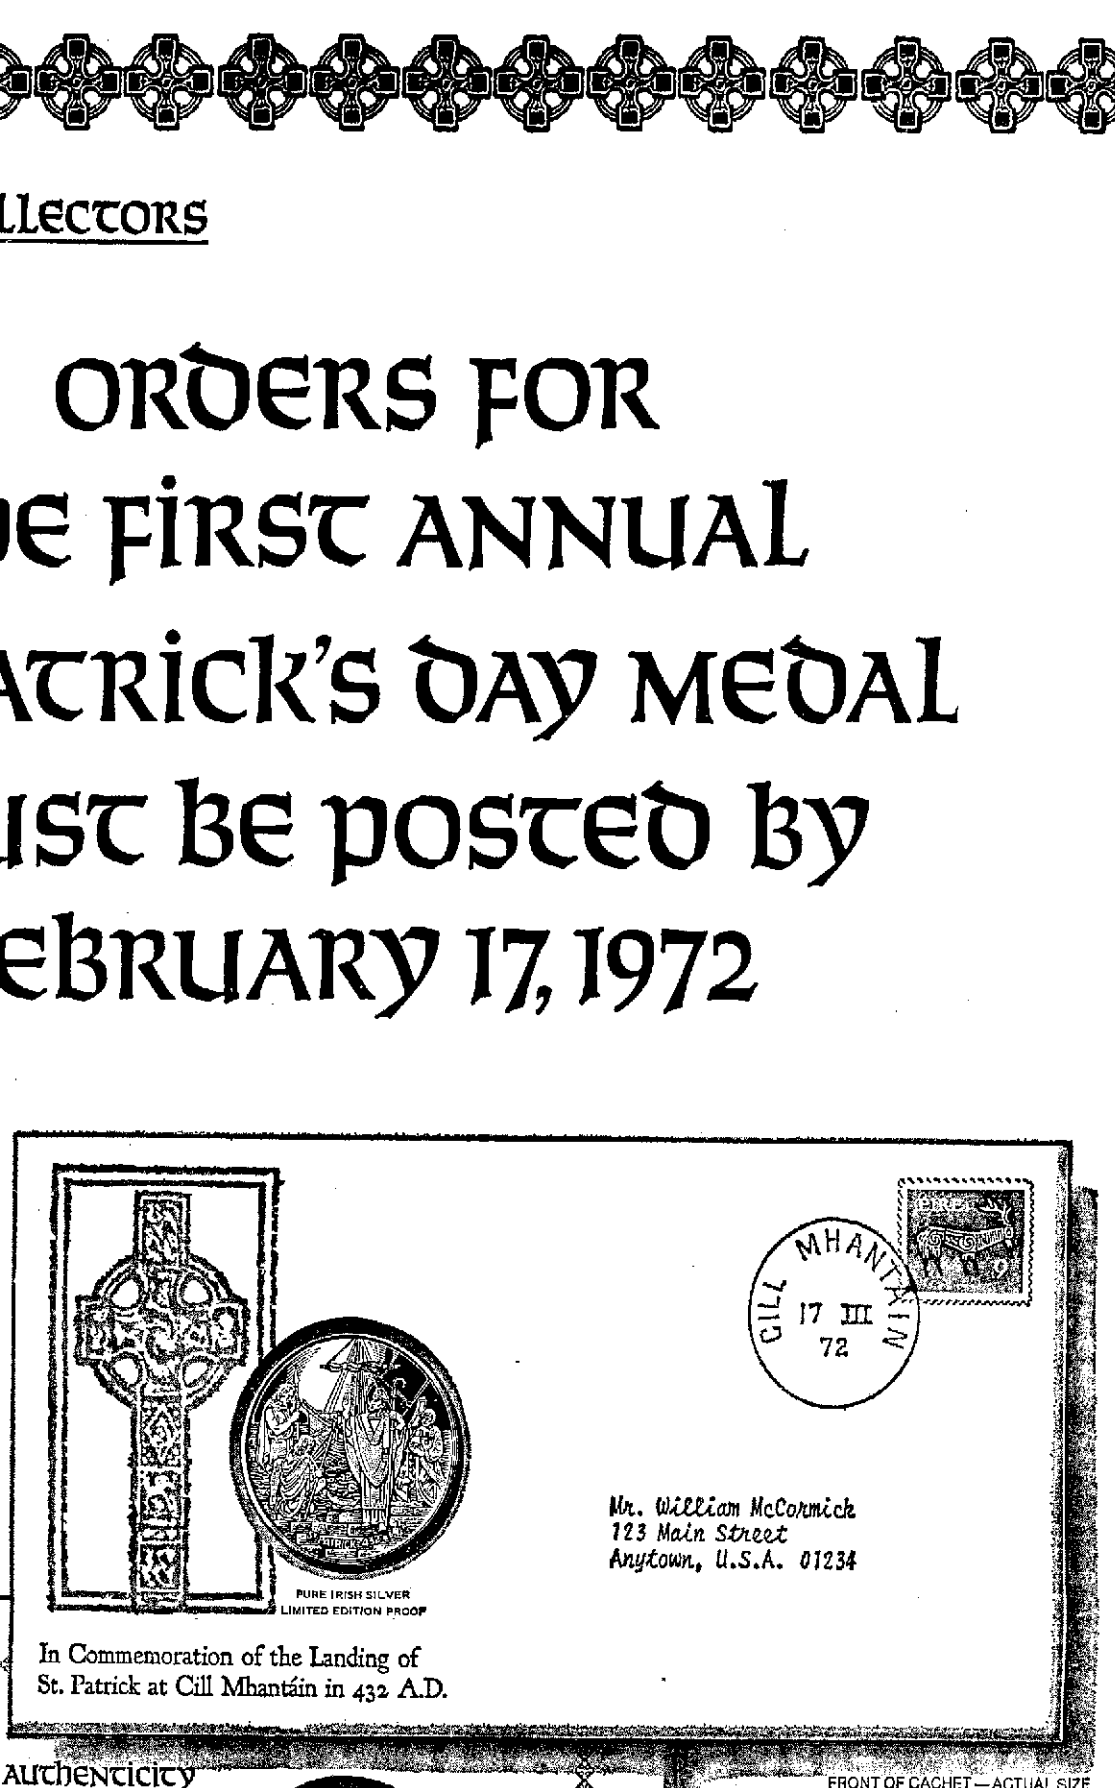

SAN DIEGO (AP) —County supervisors are considering a $2 boost in the $6 marriage license fee, Saturdays only, to finance staffing the office that day. Last year 1,337 marriage licenses were issued on Saturday because lovers couldn't wait until Monday.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO COLLECTORS

ORDERS FOR THE FIRST ANNUAL ST. PATRICK'S DAY MEDAL MUST BE POSTED BY FEBRUARY 17, 1972

The very first medal ever made of pure IRISH SILVER.

To be issued in a special commemorative cachet postmarked in Ireland on St. Patrick's Day.

FRONT OF CACHET—ACTUAL SIZE

BACK OF CACHET—ACTUAL SIZE

Each cachet will be individually addressed, and will bear a Certificate of Authenticity issued by the National Trust of Ireland.

A statement from The Honorable John Lynch,
Prime Minister, Republic of Ireland

I warmly welcome and highly commend the initiative of The Franklin Mint in issuing a commemorative medal in honour of Ireland's patron saint.

This commemorative medal, wrought in Irish silver, designed by an eminent Irish artist, and so attractively presented by The Franklin Mint, should provide for Ireland's sons and daughters in many lands a worthy memento of the homeland which they can always cherish.

To all the recipients of this commemorative medal, and to all our kith and kin around the world, I extend warmest greetings and good wishes for the national feastday.

JOHN LYNCH
TAOISEACH, EIRE

THE FIRST ANNUAL St. Patrick's Day Medal will be issued in 1972.

This will be the very first medal in history to be made of pure (.999 fine) Irish silver.

The specially refined silver is being flown to the U.S.A., where the medals will be struck to proof-quality standards by the world-famous Franklin Mint.

Each medal will then be combined with a special commemorative cachet, officially postmarked in Ireland on St. Patrick's Day—March 17, 1972. The postmark will be that of Wicklow (Cill Mhantáin), where St. Patrick himself landed on Irish soil in the year 432 A.D.

The total price for this historic collector's item—including the proof-quality Irish silver medal, the special commemorative cachet and all shipping costs—will be $15. (State tax must be added by residents of those states which have a sales tax.)

This will be a limited edition. All orders must be sent to The Franklin Mint by February 17, 1972—one month before St. Patrick's Day. After minting the exact number of medals required to fill these advance orders, the dies will be cancelled and turned over to the National Trust of Ireland. The cancelled dies will eventually repose in a museum selected by the National Trust.

Build-it-yourself airplane product of aerospace cuts

By BOB SANDERS

Outside a little Quonset-type building at Huntington Beach's Meadowlark Airport sits a little yellow airplane that is setting records for the build-it-yourself school of airplane design.

Tiny — with a 17-foot wingspan — the plane, dubbed Der Jager, is the brainchild of E. Marshall White, a self taught aeronautical engineer.

Like many others, White became a casualty of the aerospace cutbacks a couple of years ago but, unlike many of them, managed to turn his hobby into a paying business.

"I've always been interested in airplanes," White drawls, "ever since I soloed when I was 13 and got my license the day before my 16th birthday."

A FLYING master sergeant during World War II, White managed to learn enough about aeronautical engineering to hold top jobs with various aerospace companies until the massive cutbacks came.

"I started out to build an airplane that would be fun to fly," he says, "not cost too much, and be capable of being put together in someone's garage with simple tools."

He built Der Jager (which means "hunter" in German) in 1969 in his double garage in his Anaheim home using only "a vice, a welding rig, table saw, a drill and various handtools."

It took nine months of spare time to build and cost about $1,800 not counting the engine. It was the fifth plane he designed and built.

SINCE HE first started to market plans for Der Jager, White has sold 170 sets of plans and his plane is in various stages of construction through the United States, as well as in Africa, Australia, Canada and West Germany.

With a 160 horsepower engine Der Jager, according to White, will outperform airplanes costing $100,000.

Since it weighs less than 600 pounds (559 with the 160 horsepower engine), it has a fantastic rate of climb of 4,000 feet per minute. It cruises at 140 miles per hour with a top speed of 148.

Aerobatics, which are one of White's first loves, are "a dream" according to him.

"I can get three slow rolls out of mine before she falls off," he says proudly, adding, "snap rolls are out of this world and nothing, but nothing, can turn inside it".

DER JAGER, which is just the first of several models, is not a replica of any World War I plane though White bills it as "an off beat World War I design".

It combines the design and appearance of several World War I German planes.

"The original Red Baron, Freiherr Manfred von Richtofen, would have loved it," White says. "It will outperform a thousand ways anything he ever got to fly. It might even outdo Snoopy's imagination."

Painted bright yellow with black Iron Crosses on the wings and fuselage, the little plane has a ferocious look about it.

White has even added "von" to his name as it is painted on the side of the plane.

AN AVID member of the Experimental Aircraft Association, which now numbers more than 30,000 members throughout the world, White feels his airplane will help revive interest in the World War I airplanes.

The association, which has worked in recent years to make it easier for home airplane builders to get their craft license, operates an Air Education Museum at Hales Corners, Wisc., where aircraft of yesteryear, as well as modern times, are preserved.

"Too much of the past in aviation has been forgotten too quickly," White says. "We should try to preserve all the mementoes of the early days of flying that we can so that future generations can understand how it was."

So, in addition to selling his kits for the World War I type plane, he also stocks leather helmet, goggles and the long silk scarves the pilots used to wear in his parts store at Meadowlark.

Because of the popularity of his first Der Jager, the model he has designated D-IX, White has designed two others, which he says will be flying by April.

Four to oppose censured judge

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Three attorneys have filed notices of intention to run in the June elections against Superior Court Judge Gerald S. Chargin, first California judge in history to be censured by the State Supreme Court.

The challengers are Herbert S. Stanek, 40; James E. Marks, 49; and James E. Nelson, 48. Nelson, who moved to Santa Clara County in 1961, is a former assistant Mendocino county district attorney.

Chargin, who was censured for ethnic slurs during a juvenile court hearing against a Mexican-American youth, has filed notice he intends to run for re-election.

Free motorcycle training class will begin Friday

Twenty-four hours of free motorcycle education and training will be available monthly starting Friday for cycle enthusiasts in the Long Beach area.

The motorcycle driver education and training class at Long Beach City College provides a basic course in the techniques of safe motorcycle operation and teaches proper habits and attitudes.

The course is open without cost to men and women 18 years of age and older, and others with high school diplomas.

Instruction is given during eight sessions of three hours each on Fridays and Saturdays. Classes meet from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Friday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Courses will begin February 18, March 17, April 21 and May 19.

Helmets and motorcycles are furnished for the class. Trainees are required to provide and wear leather shoes or boots and gloves.

The course will include lectures, films and field activities. Motor vehicle laws, equipment maintenance and safety will be emphasized.

To participate, interested persons must be able to ride a bicycle and must be licensed to operate a motor vehicle. Classes will be conducted in room 310, Business and Technology Campus, 1305 East Pacific Coast Highway.

ABC water saves money for college

Cerritos College and ABC Unified School District have completed an agreement for the college to purchase 100 acre feet of water from the school district during a year's period. The agreement will save the college district $2,200 from the amount it would cost if the water were purchased from Central Basin Water Replenishment District.

Cost of the water to the college will total $31 per acre foot including a $6 pumping fee as compared to $53 charged by the water district.

The ABC School District owns water rights of 277 acre feet in the Central Water District. Herbert Wellman, assistant superintendent, said it appears that the district will have a remaining 107 acre feet of unpumped allowable as of Sept. 1, 1972.

JOHN D. MILLER OF L.B.

Scholarly lawyers' lawyer in profile

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

Scholarly Long Beach attorney John D. Miller is not only the type his profession traditionally admires — a "lawyers' lawyer."

He also serves as a lawmakers' lawyer, in an underpaid, overworked honorary state post.

The self-effacing advocate has been a member of the California Law Revision Commission for 3½ years, and his colleagues on that 10-member panel recently voted him their chairman.

The commission is a part-time group, meeting monthly.

HOWEVER, in their terms, meeting means a marathon session of two or three days in which they considering, discussing, drafting and redrafting their proposals to the lawmakers.

A registered Republican, Miller was appointed to the law commission by Gov. Ronald Reagan in October, 1969. He replaced noted Long Beach attorney Joseph A. Ball, resigned appointee of former Democratic Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown.

JOHN D. MILLER
Named Chairman

pore over reams of proposed changes in state codes and acts ranging from evidence to eminent domain laws, and hear a spectrum of views that may include law professors, private attorneys and agents from trade associations.

Indciative of the task are Miller credentials such as 19 years of law practice, including phenomenal legal research in the old cause celebre of Long Beach Federal Savings and Loan Association versus the government's Federal Home Loan Bank Board — plus his "glass menagerie" of reading spectacles.

"I own at least six pairs of glasses, just so I'm always sure to have one handy," Miller, 44, said in an interview in the 555 E. Ocean Blvd. law offices of Miller, Bronn, Brummett & Porter.

A TYPICAL CLRC meeting was the one where he first presided as chairman, held in the county Bar Association's Los Angeles office. He called th commissioners to order for a three-hour evening meeting on a Thursday, and they went day-long through the Friday and Saturday.

Pay is $20 a day for meetings, with out-of-pocket expense allowed. The gross for a busy, senior attorney is never worth his time.

Totally payless are many hours of homework, like analyzing old laws that are up for change, scrutinizing reports the commission secures from outside experts and many comments on such reports that come in from interested individuals and organizations.

"I keep a pretty close track of my time," said Miller, of 3838 Cedar Ave., "and my records show that I put in a total of 677 hours in March through December of last year.

"For the same time my fee was $600."

HE REFLECTED that there were probably some hours he forgot to record, despite his best efforts.

The commission was crated by the California Legislature in 1953, the same year Miller earned his law degree from Stanford University.

The Legislature assigns the commission its topics, sometime specifying priority subjects, to study "common law and statutes of the state and judicial decisions for the purpose of discovering defects and anacronisms," and propose reform.

That's where Miller and his colleagues get their noses deep in the books,

'72 Stamp, Coin Show to begin

The 12th annual Long Beach Stamp and Coin Exposition will open Thursday in Long Beach Auditorium for a four-day run.

The show, one of the largest exhibitions of its type in North America, will feature leading dealers from the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Don Townsend Jr., chairman of the show, said that an educational forum will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. Maurice M. Gould of Tustin, well-known syndicated alumnist and lecturer, will act as moderator.

Guest speakers will be John Hunter of Harper Woods, Mich.; Jim Hill of San Diego and Sylvia Haffer of La Mesa.

Convention hours are from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday.

Nursing aide course

Applications are being accepted at Long Beach City College for the nine-week nursing assistant course scheduled to begin April 10

The course prepares trainees to perform basic nursing skills for hospitalized or home-bound patients.

Classes are conducted daily, Monday-Friday, for 24 hours per week. Instruction includes six lecture hours and 18 laboratory hours weekly.

The tuition-free course is presented at the Business and Technology Campus, 1305 East Pacific Coast Highway, and at local hospitals.

APPLICATIONS for admission to the program may be made at the Business and Technology Campus Student Personnel Office.

The program is approved by the California State Department of Public Health.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Begins a time to collect and bring into your management fresh resources, new tools, skills. Rewards tend to be prompt as your business sense develops. Today's natives like research, understand light and vibration in a different concept and the talent for seeing and using it.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Emotional attractions bring token gifts and other expressions ... it's your turn to respond if you will. The morning's opportunities include a good buy or investment.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Encourage younger people while you concentrate on the creative aspects of daily living. Career questions are open to some answers.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You can sell almost any bright idea today — just be sure you truly want it brought into reality.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Do your strongest sales pitch, sell off whatever is no longer useful.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Travel light, as you may collect added burdens momentarily — some of them very useful for later reference.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Most of what happens today is beyond your planning, and pleasant according to how well you can go along with mate and social group. Life can be fun!

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put the weekend behind you in a clear switch to a fresh work week, original ideas, perhaps entry on new duties or relocation, symbolic transformation.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): With little fuss your nearby world swiftly evolves into something else; old traditions wither, new rules come into force.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Gather your resources, collect whatever is owed you, move into unexploited territory. Friends or neighbors disclosing your personal affairs is par for the course — learn and forgive.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Present your plans where you value an opinion or have something to gain. Money handles well for you now.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take stock of the situation early as you must select a relatively narrow range of the day's possibilities to explore.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Most of what happens now has a streak of luck in it, likewise subtle manifestations of destiny. Your free will is mainly in how you choose to react — be of good cheer.

Everybody's got things around they no longer need ... and they'd like to sell. And the place to advertise those things is the I,P-T Classified Section. To prove the point, we've listed some recent Classified ads below. Next to them are listed the number of calls the people received — and the number of people who are still looking for similar items.

RECENT ADS	NUMBER OF CALLS	PEOPLE STILL LOOKING
John Novak of Cerritas sold his Chevy camper with a weekend ad.	14	13
Peter D. Smith, Long Beach, was overwhelmed with the response he got with his ad for a color TV.	80	79
Mrs. Lee Smith, Long Beach, "didn't realize that everyone reads the classified" when she advertized her lawnmower for sale.	20	19
Mrs. Joe Schultz was very pleased with the results of her ad for a housekeeper. She found one the first day.	29	28
Larry Miller was "just real pleased" with the response he got on his ad for a Triumph motorcycle.	15	14
Jack Mills, Gardenia, sold his '62 Chevrolet Impala and got his asking price too.	31	30

Give you some ideas? We hope so. Because there just isn't a better place than the I,P-T Classified Section, with it's over 400 classifications, for reaching just the people that are looking for the goods or services you've got to offer. Give us a try

Hodges expands again, adds Westminster office

WESTMINSTER, Calif. --- Rex L. Hodges Realty has expanded again, with the opening of another Orange County office at 9931 Westminster Avenue. Dennis Carroll will manage the new office, super-vising a staff of 12 real estate specialists.

"We're ideally located," Carroll stated, "at one of the busiest intersections in the county." The new Hodges building features a used brick exterior and a prominent sign to attract the attention of passing motorists. Extensive parking facilities have been provided adjacent to the facility, which is located at the intersection of Westminster Avenue and Brookhurst, at the entrance to a shopping area comprising more than 60 stores. The opening of this office closely follows the establishment of a new Fountain Valley office a few weeks ago.

"Hodges sells more than $5 million a month in Southern California homes," Carroll remarked. "One reason is our willingness to invest in new locations to serve the residents of each community on a personal basis."

Rex L. Hodges currently services 45 Southern California communities with a network of strategically located offices. Salesmen are trained for the expansion program in a unique Hodges training facility which incorporates the use of closed circuit television.

The firm was founded in the Long Beach area with one office in 1929. Services now include legal, escrow, and insurance departments. Supplementing more than 1300 exclusive listings are the additional homes offered through six multiple listing services to which Hodges belongs. More than 500 ads are run each week describing homes for sale.

Hodges Advertising campaign adds famous news magazines

Rex L. Hodges Realty has announced the addition to their advertising schedule of full-page ads in the nation's most famous news magazines, including Time, Newsweek, U.S. News and World Report, and Sports Illustrated.

The ads have been professionally prepared by Hodges' advertising agency, with photography and copy highlighting both Hodges' training program for real estate sales people and the many services offered to home buyers and sellers.

Hodges has been noted for some time for their intensive schedule of full-page newspaper advertisements, radio broadcasts, and the publication of helpful booklets provided free to the public. The news magazine ads are expected to increase Hodges' sphere of influence in anticipation of the opening of additional real estate offices. Hodges currently serves 45 Southern California communities.

Hodges offers special benefits to buyers, sellers, including loans

Rex Hodges sales people become television "stars"

LONG BEACH --- The installation of complete, closed-circuit television facilities has been announced by Rex L. Hodges Realty, Southern California's oldest and largest real estate firm. The equipment will be used for the training of Hodges sales people, who will be able to observe their own mistakes on video tape.

"We're setting up typical sales situations in our training classes," said Bernie Jones, Hodges vice president and general sales manager. "When we put a television camera on a man, he discovers errors he's made more rapidly than by any other method. After all, he can watch what he's done on tape. For example, while he's playing the part of the salesman and another classmate is supposed to be the customer, he may be amazed at how poorly he's explained one of our special financing programs. The next time he explains it, he does much better."

The television equipment will also be used extensively for the tape playback of lectures by various real estate experts, the screening of motion pictures, and entire courses covering both basic real estate concepts and practices and highly technical aspects of such subjects as appraising and financing property.

"Our sales men and women will be able to test themselves on their real estate knowledge through the use of video tape cassettes," Jones continued. "They can study a subject by watching a tape, give themselves a written exam, and check the results by running the tape again."

A television studio is only one highlight of the Rex L. Hodges training program for new sales people. Comprehensive courses in all phases of selling real estate have been conducted for some time by training director Terry Mulholland. A complete textbook is currently being prepared by the Hodges staff for publication.

Because of the great need for additional personnel caused by their unprecedented expansion schedule, Hodges has been running "Help Wanted' advertising in full page newspaper and magazine ads and a radio campaign featuring the voice of veteran newscaster Frank Hemingway. As fast as trained personnel become available, the company is opening new offices throughout Los Angeles and Orange counties.

Some current Hodges sales representatives earn as high as $5,000 in a single month. Jones states that even a beginner will earn at least $1,000 a month if he follows the sales principles taught in the Hodges training program.

Southern Californians receive many special benefits when they buy or sell a home through Rex L. Hodges Realty, according to Bernie Jones, Hodges vice president and general sales manager. Because of its size and more than 42 years of experience, the firm offers many services not usually available --- such as guaranteed cash sales, equity loans, and renovation loans.

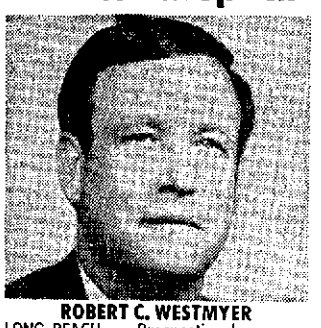

The guaranteed cash sale is a program under which Hodges agrees to buy the customer's home for cash if it does not sell within a specified period of time. Jones stated that the Hodges sales staff is so large and so efficient that he can remember only one occasion when Hodges did not find a buyer for a home within the guarantee period and had to purchase it from the seller. "The advantage to the seller of this program," Jones explained, "is that he is free to buy another home or make other plans with the assurance that his present residence will be sold within a definite period of time. There is no way that a Hodges guaranteed-sale customer can end up having to make payments on two homes at the same time because his house did not sell."

The equity loan program helps the customer who finds himself short of cash. He can obtain a short-term loan through Hodges on his equity while he waits for his home to sell. "When a seller lists with us," Jones said, "we're happy to advance him cash against his equity to help him out of a spot. Often an equity loan will enable a customer to complete the down payment on a new home before the sale has been completed on his present residence. That way he can get the new home into escrow before some other buyer takes it off the market."

Renovation loans help the customer get the top dollar for his property. Hodges advances the seller the cash he needs to increase the marketability of his home. He repays the loan from the profits he realizes when the sale of the real estate is completed.

Other Hodges "extras" include experts who are on staff for free consultation with customers about legal problems, estate management, insurance, escrow and title clearance, and taxes. Hodges also has a unique, "rent-to-buy" program and runs more than 500 ads each week announcing homes for sale.

Homebuyers urged to act now due to drop in loan costs

ROBERT C. WESTMYER

LONG BEACH --- Prospective home purchasers wishing to buy a home under Veterans Administration or Federal Housing Administration programs should buy as soon as possible due to the recent drop in the loan points charged sellers, according to Robert C. Westmyer, president of Rex L. Hodges Realty and former educational director of the California Real Estate Association.

"Points charged on VA and FHA loans vary from week to week," Westmyer explained. "They represent the charge made by the financial institution for granting these loans at the low interest rates specified by law. A point is 1% of the amount of the loan.

"During times when points are high, it is almost impossible to arrange VA or FHA financing, since the government specifies that the buyer cannot be charged points. This means that the seller has to pay thousands of dollars in many cases for the privilege of selling his home under one of these programs. As a result, when points are high, sellers often insist on conventional loans with the points paid by the purchaser. In that way they are able to obtain a higher net price than if they agreed to pay high points on a VA or FHA basis."

It is still possible under VA-FHA programs to buy a home with little or no down payment and a low interest rate. The Veterans Housing Act of 1970 reinstated the eligibility of many veterans to obtain VA home loans. World War II, Korean War, and "Cold War" veterans are all eligible at this time. Often eligibility may be reinstated if the veteran has previously used his VA loan entitlement. In cases where full eligibility cannot be restored, partial eligibility may be as much as $32,000. Any individual desiring specific information about his eligibility may obtain complete details without charge from any Rex L. Hodges office.

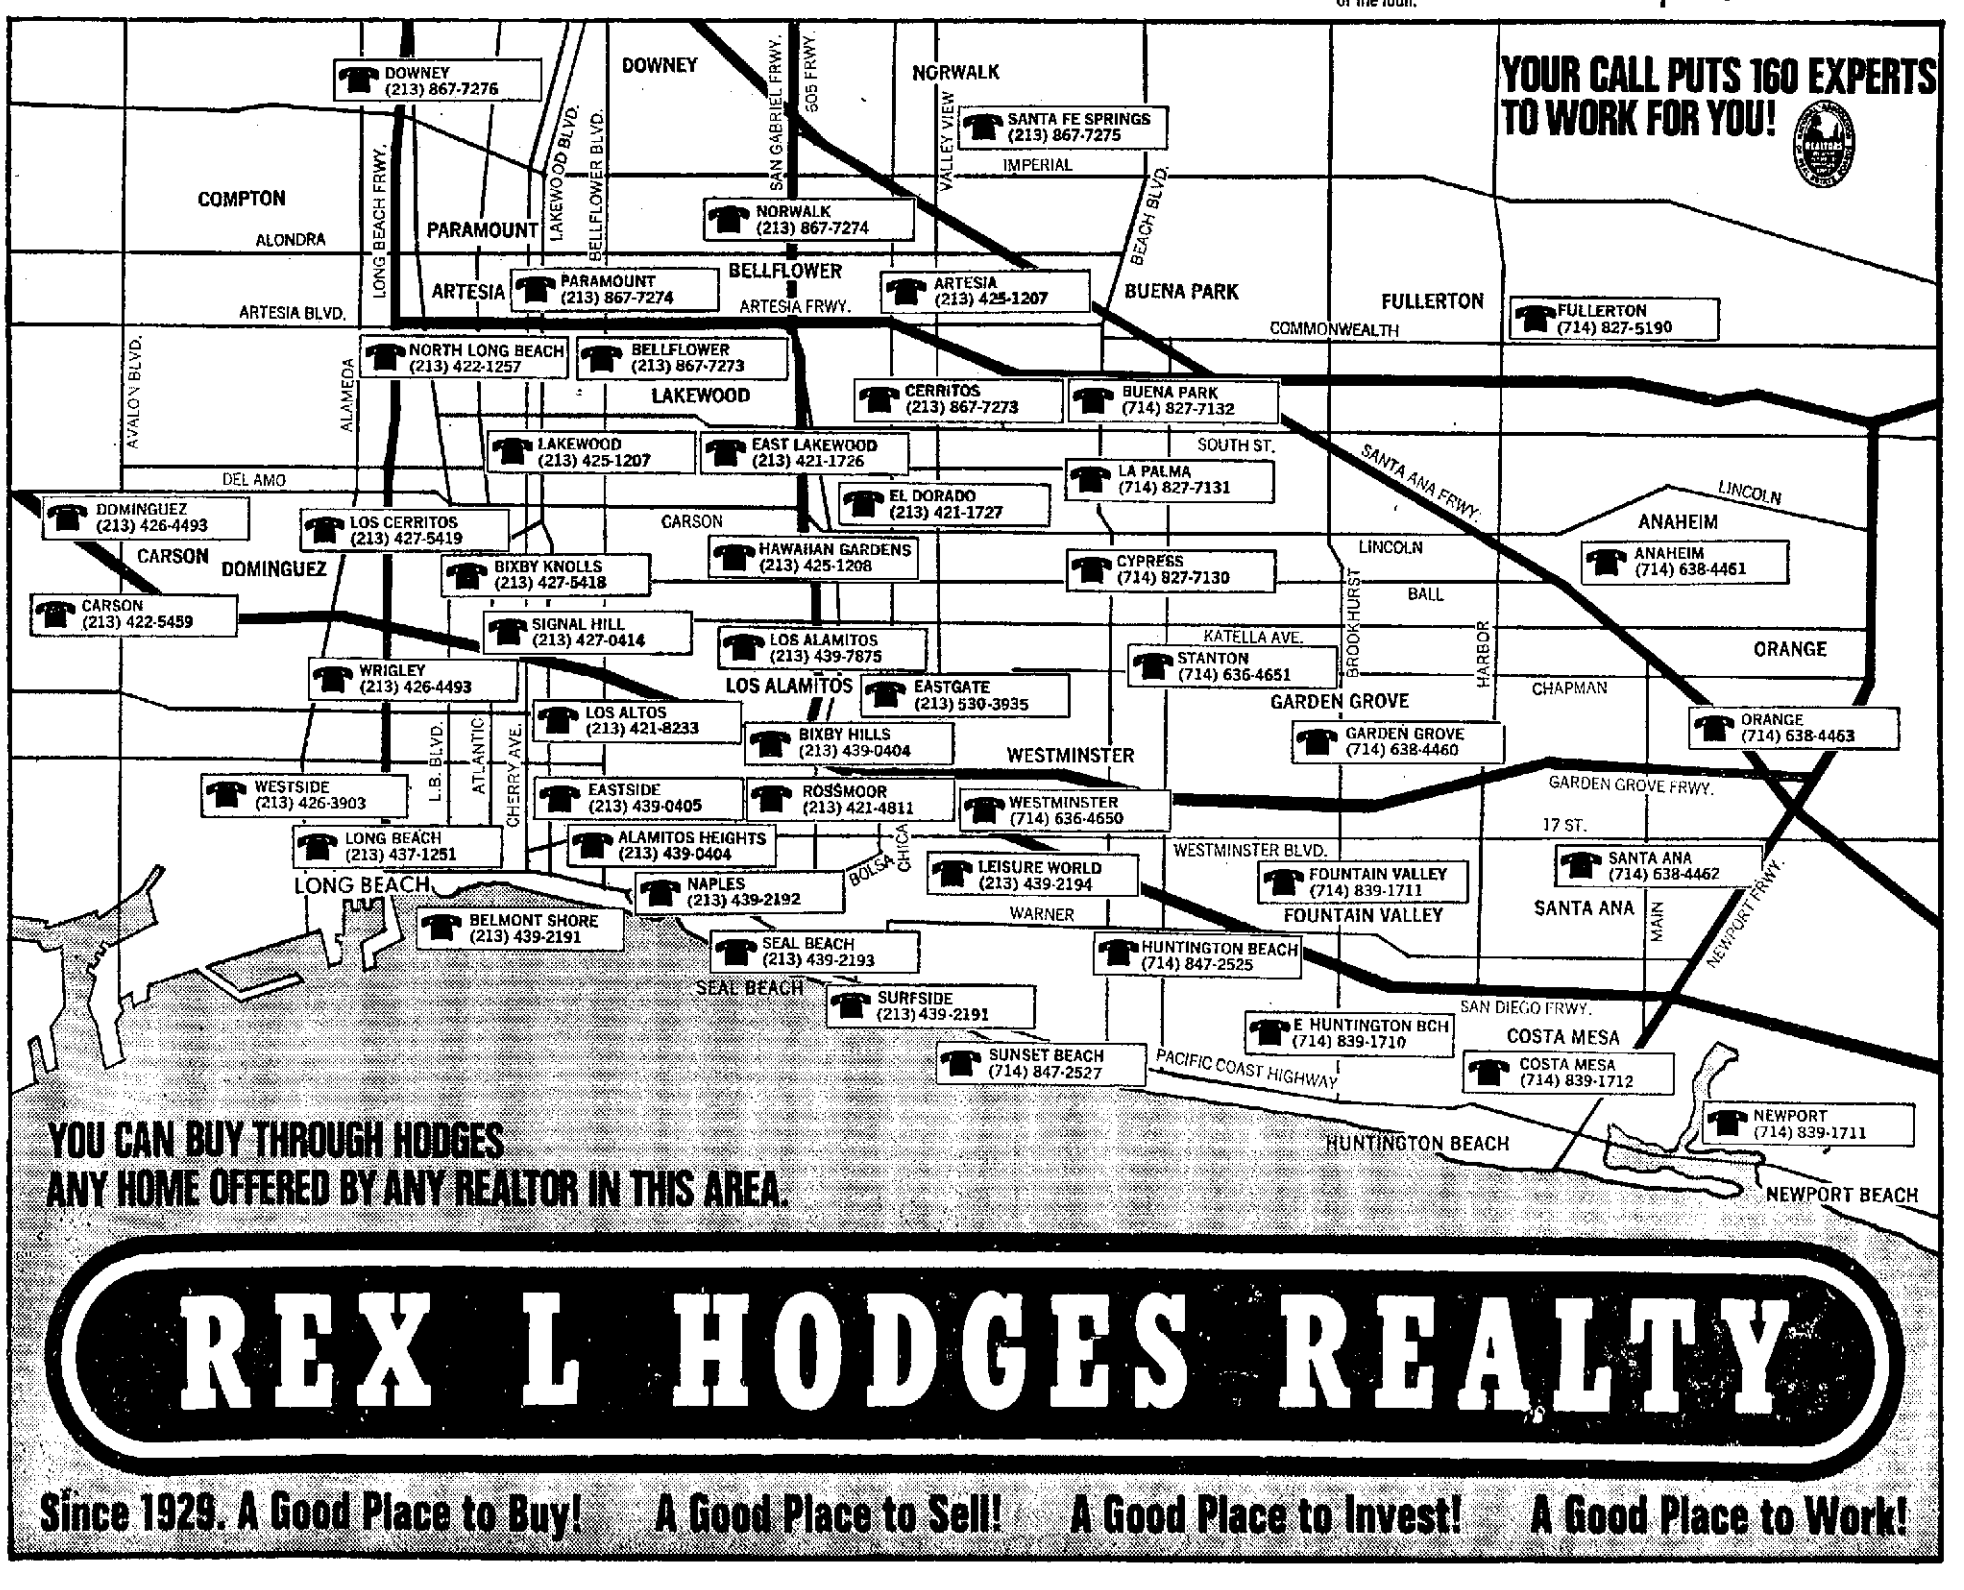

Free home buying selling booklet reprinted due to many requests

Due to the great volume of requests from the public, Rex L. Hodges vice president Earl Christensen has ordered an additional 15,000 copies reprinted of their free booklet, "Secrets of Saving Money When Buying or Selling a Home."

"Our original supply has been completely exhausted," Christenson explained. "Apparently people who've picked up the booklet at one of our offices have told their friends. After all, it does answer nearly every question that the average buyer or seller might have about residential real estate."

The booklet has been very popular ever since its introduction last fall by Hodges, the area's oldest and largest realty firm. Subjects covered in its pages include how to find the right home, establishing a fair price, financing, tips on making a home more salable, equity loans, and many other subjects. Readers are even informed of additional services such as legal advice which may be obtained without cost when buying or selling a home.

While the second printing lasts, the booklet is still available free of charge at all Southern California Rex L. Hodges offices.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF NEW S & S HOME . . . selling at new Granada Park in Norwalk

S & S OPENING IN NORWALK

Many extras offered at Granada Park

An enthusiastic crowd of over 1,000 persons visited the grand opening of S & S Construction Co.'s Granada Park in Norwalk, according to the firm's general sales manager Mark Bader.

S & S, a subsidiary of Shappell Industries, Inc., introduced its third new residential community this year as part of an aggressive and accelerated building program aimed at providing quality homes at realistic prices and manageable monthly payments.

The new homes sell for as low as $29,950.

The homes are being built at the corner of Bloomfield and Alondra in Norwalk.

Six furnished and decorated model homes, demonstrating the wide selection of floorplans and exterior stylings, are located in Cerritos near the corner of Artesia and Bloomfield.

A sales-information center is also located at that site.

S & S, NOTED FOR ITS innovative design and construction techniques, includes many extras for the convenience and benefit of its home buyers.

Granada Park features genuine lath and plaster construction throughout and invites visitors to try the famous "Knock On The Wall" test.

Also included in the purchase prices are wall-to-wall carpeting, ceramic tile kitchens and baths, cast iron sinks and tubs, block wall fencing and cedar shingle roofs.

The homes feature a wide selection of large master bedroom suites, bonus rooms, formal dining rooms, private sun balconies and big living rooms with soaring two-story ceilings.

Exteriors have heavy wood beams and stone trims to enhance the custom-look of the community, Concrete driveways, often an "extra" item in other homes, are included.

Drawing considerable comment from visitors and buyers are the "Parents' retreat" rooms which are included in some plans to allow privacy from other family activities.

THE ALL-ELECTRIC PATIO kitchens have built-in ranges and the housewives' delight, continuous cleaning ovens.

"Granada Park represents the experience and expertise gained in over 16 years of successful developing and building award winning homes in the United States," says S & S general manager Gerry Dirksen.

The model homes may be reached by taking the Artesia Freeway east from the Long Beach Freeway or west from the Riverside Freeway to Bloomfield, then south to Artesia and right one quarter-mile.

CERRITOS SALES TOP $23 MILLION

750 families at home at Larwin's Tempo

Sales have passed the $23 million mark at Larwin's Tempo single-family community in Cerritos, one of Orange County's fastest growing locations.

More than 750 families have moved to Tempo since the community opened.

"Tempo homes are often the choice of young families who are buying their second home, and want a reasonable price along with a full range of amenities in a solidly built home. Experience has taught them to seek out a good value," stated Greg Petrello, Tempo sales manager.

Tempo homes are priced from $26,490, with VA, Cal-Vet, and conventional financing available.

Features such as rear yard fencing with front gate, carpeting in selected rooms, and Garden-View kitchens with electric range, dishwasher and self-cleaning oven are included at no additional cost.

"TEMPO homes are designed with growing families in mind.

"Homebuyers appreciate features such as secluded master bedroom suites with private bath, wood-burning fireplaces, huge family rooms with walls of glass, custom-finished kitchen cabinetry, and walk-in closets," Petrello said.

Seven decorator-furnished models are now on display at Tempo-Cerritos. They are available in both one and two-story plans with two to seven bedrooms, and up to three baths.

Homes are available in 37 distinctive architectural exteriors.

"Among the most popular and reasonably priced plans offered at Tempo is the Starter I, which allows a family to grow into their home according to their needs and budget," stated Petrello.

"THE Starter I is a two bedroom home with room to grow. The homebuyer can add a rumpus room, a den or study, or up to three additional bedrooms. Many young families appreciate the flexibility and economy of the Starter I," Petrello said.

Tempo-Cerritos can be reached from Los Angeles by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to the San Gabriel Freeway. Proceed south to the Artesia Freeway, going east to the Norwalk Boulevard exit, south to Artesia Boulevard and left to the community.

From the Long Beach area, take the San Diego Freeway to the San Gabriel Freeway, north to the Artesia Freeway. Go east to the Norwalk Boulevard exit, turning right to Artesia Boulevard, and left to the models.

IN ADDITION to single-family homebuilding, The Larwin Group, Inc., has major divisions in multiple-family housing, financial services including mortgage banking and real estate investment trust management, recreational communities development, and commercial property development.

Larwin is a subsidiary of CNA Financial Corporation, a Chicago-headquartered holding company with more than $3.6 billion in assets.

CMC ground broken

Ground was broken for Communication Mfg. Co.'s $1,300,000 addition to its Long Beach facility at 3300 E. Spring St.

Jim Garrett, president, turned the first shovel of ground which will add 22,000 square feet of space for engineering, research and development and 38,000 square feet of plant manufacturing space.

CMC officers present for the ground breaking were Jack Shelton, vice president and director of sales; B. R. Lloyd, secretary-treasurer; Vincent Huston, vice president and director of government communications and Orrin O'Dea, vice president-engineering.

THE addition will house the engineering, production, marketing, advertising and sales departments with a complete showroom for display of CMC products.

CMC develops, designs and manufactures labor saving test and maintenance equipment for the telephone industry.

Leisure World in new look

Mutual 42, the newest neighborhood in Rossmoor Leisure World, Laguna Hills, has opened with an all-new look, announced Leila Wendelken, vice president of marketing.

Mutual 43, an adjacent neighborhood that will contain similar residential units also opens this month.

Mrs. Wendelken said the two mutuals represented a total of 161 residences with eight models on view.

Homes range in size from one-bedroom, one-bath to three-bedrooms, two-baths and in price from $24,900 to $35,900.

Four of these homes represent an entirely new concept in Leisure World. They will have attached garages with automatic garage door openers, and space for laundry utilities will be provided within the homes.

These four models were decorated by Blake Designs, Inc. of Sherman Oaks.

"THE 'NEW LOOK'," said Mrs. Wendelken, "is also the plaza concept in Mutuals 42 and 43. Surrounded by open landscaped areas, many of these plaza homes, two to five together attached by a common wall or garage, will be clustered around a manicured, landscaped entry court."

Also available in these new Mutuals are the La Brisa and the Casa Vista. These are the popular hillside residences offered in other neighborhoods.

The hilly terrain has been utilized in the planning of these two-story buildings.

The La Brisa, with four residences on each level, has been designed with only a half-flight of stairs to each home.

And the Casa Vista, with four units on the top level and two below, has no stairs; each homeowner enters his residence from a street level.

LOCATED HIGH IN THE hills in Leisure World, many homes will have views and some will be within walking distance of the 27-hole golf course located in Leisure World and Clubhouse Two.

"One residence, our El Doble," said Mrs. Wendelken, "features an exiciting new floor plan that has two identical master bedroom suites divided by the living room and dining area. This is specially desirable for two women or two men who wish to share expenses and enjoy equal facilities."

Homes will be all-electric. Included will be refrigerators and built-in ovens, ranges and disposals.

Some plans include such special features as self-cleaning ovens; serving counters; and walk-in closets. All the homes will have patios which in many plans will be fenced.

ROSSMOOR LEISURE WORLD is a master-planned adult community designed to provide a "total living" environment.

Residents enjoy private streets, 24-hour security and a network of landscaped greenbelts that winds through every neighborhood.

Also provided for their convenience and pleasure are commercial and medical centers; a private transportation system within the community; and many community recreational amenities, such as clubhouses, garden areas, golf courses, swimming pools, shuffleboard courts, stables, bowling greens and tennis courts.

Present population is nearly 14,000.

Rossmoor Maryland, another Leisure World, is located in Silver Springs, Md. and to date, nearly 1800 adults reside there.

RECENTLY, ROSSMOOR announced plans to develop Leisure World Golden Hills just east of Mesa, Ariz.

Construction has begun on this 2000-acre community planned to house more than 20,000 adults.

It will be a joint venture between Rossmoor and Western Service Corporation, a subsidiary of Western Financial and Western Savings and Loan Association.

Other planned communities being developed by Rossmoor are called "New Worlds" and are for [illegible] adult [illegible]. They are located in Laguna [illegible], Chicago, Glendale, Ariz., and Silver Springs, [illegible].

[illegible] World model homes in Laguna [illegible] daily from 9 a.m. to dusk and can be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway to El Toro Road off-ramp and following the signs to the model site.

New window films said to save homeowner dollars

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Real Estate Editor

Fading, by sunlight, and high air conditioning costs are two worries of Southland homeowners which may be partially solved.

Two new reflective window films, designed to permit maximum visibility while reducing solar heat, glare and ultraviolet rays, have been released by 3M Company.

It is an addition, spokesmen said, to the company's solar control films available in the past.

This new set of films lets in a higher degree of visible light than standard reflective window films, and is intended for use where maximum light is important as well as a reduction of solar heat and glare.

Of course, what is good for the homeowner is also good for businesses.

Typical application of these two new films include homes where maximum view outside is desired day and night, along with restaurants, store fronts and ground-level glass areas where lighting can be a problem.

The 3M people say the new films are particularly suited to tinted glass where it can minimize additional light reducton but cut down on "solar loading."

The products being introduced have a lighter aluminum vapor coating than other films in the company's line, allowing not only more visible light to enter but also cutting down on exterior reflection.

They are capable of reducing 50 per cent of the transmission of solar energy, 3M says.

Use of any of the films improves air conditioning efficiency and helps to reduce costs by lessening the load on cooling systems, it was said.

By reducing penetration of ultraviolet light, a major cause of carpet, furniture and drapery fading has been almost eliminated.

The films are adhered directly to windows and, once installed, can be cleaned with soft cloth and non-abrasive cleaning material, 3M adds.

Realtors' Day

Representatives of Rex L. Hodges Realty participated in a special Realtor's Day at the Cypress Branch of Security Pacific Bank, which included free refreshments and an opportunity for the bank's customers to find out about real estate services available locally.

Realtors' Day was an idea conceived by the bank manager, Mrs. E. K. Rhone.

Ray Hillhouse, manager of the Hodges Cypress office, agreed as soon as asked to provide sales people and literature for the occasion.

Among those participating from the Hodges organization were Dave Jones, Phil Konan, and Barbara Courtney.

Bank customers received free copies of helpful literature published by Hodges, including their booklet, "Secrets of Saving Money When Buying or Selling a Home."

The bank, at 9927 Walker St., reported reaction to Realtors' Day was "very favorable." Many customers said they had not been aware of the many financial services available to home buyers and sellers through cooperation between realtor and banker.

Encouraging signs

Homeshoppers turned out in record numbers at Southern California new home developments during the first three weeks of 1972, according to Tract Action Report, a weekly compilation issued by the Marketing Services Division of Walker & Lee, Inc., Anaheim-based real estate firm.

Announcing the unprecedented turnout of prospective home buyers, George Fulton, director of the marketing services, said:

"After the customary holiday lull, there's usually an upswing in homeshopper traffic, but we were quite surprised by the average of 130 families that showed up during each of the first three weeks of January at the 55 tracts subscribing to our report.

"Previously, the first weeks of the year have ranged between 55 to 85 families at the average tract."

"This year, the averages were 121 the first week, 128 the second week, and 142 the third week. In fact, the average of 128 families beats any week of 1970 and all but four weeks in 1971."

Added Fulton:

"The second and third week were a real surprise since they included 'Super Bowl Sunday' and 'Pro Bowl Sunday'. This meant that most men were glued to the tv both days.

"Knowing that many women would have a hard time getting their husbands to look at homes that day, many homebuilders skipped advertising. The fact that homeshopper traffic actually was up over each of the previous weeks is an extremely encouraging sign."

Income property owners to gather

Judith Dale and Marvin Schlezinger, investigators of the Internal Revenue Service, will address income property owners on the "Office of Price Commission, Rent Control Board, and Regulations" Thursday at 6:45 p.m. at Long Beach Elks Club.

Charles R. Brady, president, Apartment Association, California Southern Cities, said all income property owners are invited to the dinner meeting and that Dale and Schlezinger will cover all aspects of the Price Commission, and Rent Stabilization of "Title Six-Economic Stabilization Regulations," that were law on December 30, 1971 and amendments to the Act effective Jan. 27.

PURPOSE of the meeting is to acquaint all apartment and income property owners of the federal regulations, according to the president. He said the IRS has received more than two million calls on rent control, to date, and this meeting is designed to help the income property owners in the Southern Los Angeles County Cities.

The meeting is expected to attract more than 300 people and reservations are on a first-come basis, by phoning the Apartment Association office.

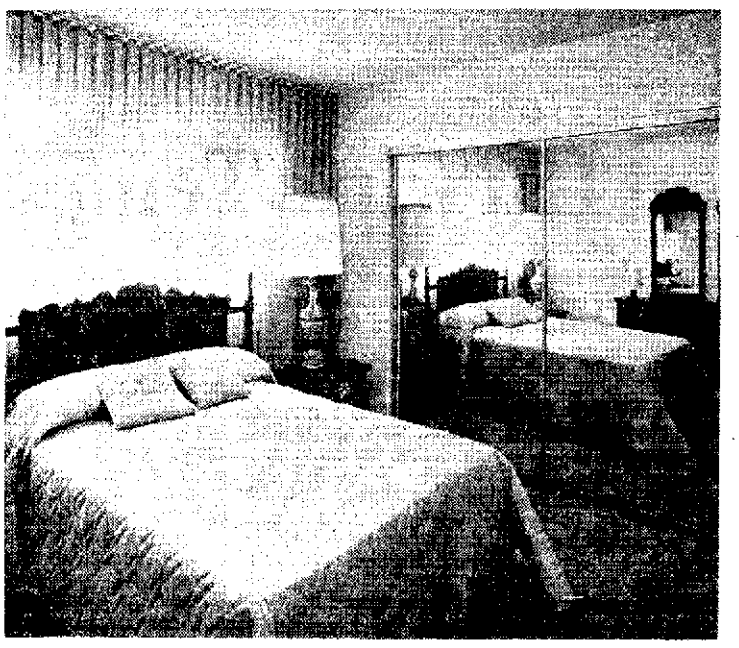

CARMENITA VILLAGE CONDOMINIUMS . . . include air conditioning, drapes

Shopping center close to Carmenita Village houses

Carmenita Village townhouse condominiums in Cerritos, between the Artesia and Santa Ana Freeways, is within a short drive of one of Southern California's largest shopping complexes: Los Cerritos Mall.

With over 100 shops and services headed by Robinson's and Broadway department stores already in service, including four theatres, another 60 are in varying stages of completion. The new increment will include an Ohrbach's and Sears department stores.

"It is," says Alex Graham, president of Market Management Co., exclusive sales agents for Carmenita Village, "an experience just to walk through the mall. It is hard to see one end from the other. Naturally, it is a delight to women and our residents here to use the facility often because they are living conveniently close to the complex.

GARDEN VILLA TOWNHOMES . . . are priced from $14,950

OTHER conveniences enjoyed by Carmenita Village owners is the nearness of both elementary and intermediate grade schools. Children walk to both. And there are many corner shopping centers featuring the usual super markets and satellite stores within a five to ten minute trip.

The two-bedroom, two-story homes, built by the DeRuff Construction Company of Newport Beach, are priced from $19,500 to $19,995 and include refrigerated air conditioning, carpets and drapes throughout, built-in range, oven hood, dishwasher and disposer, private fenced patios, front yard landscaping and sprinklers and a private recreation center with pool, playground and recreation center.

Model homes are open from 11 a.m. to dusk.

From the Long Beach area, take any convenient way to the Artesia Freeway, east to Carmenita Road exit, north on Carmenita a short distance.

McCarthy forming mortgage subsidiary

The McCarthy Company has formed a subsidiary, Constitution Mortgage Company, to initiate and place mortgages for housing constructed and sold by McCarthy in both the Eastern and Western U.S., it was announced by W. N. Kennicott, president.

Kennicott also announced the appointment of William J. Gerard as vice president and general manager of Constitution Mortgage. Gerard formerly was Los Angeles area loan production manager of the Kissell Company.

Constitution Mortgage will deal in all three types of residential mortgages—VA, FHA and conventional and will be based in Anaheim, also the home of McCarthy but will establish branches in other areas of the U.S. where McCarthy is building.

"Through the establishment of Constitution Mortgage we expect to achieve better control over the mortgage origination and placement functions," Kennicott said.

"But the formation of this new subsidiary also represents another step in our long-range plan to increase profitability by entering fields related to housing."

AT THE outset Constitution Mortgage will be engaged solely in mortgage origination and placement for housing constructed by McCarthy. Ultimately, however, Constitution will broaden its market by offering its services to other housing concerns, he said.

Gerard has been involved in the mortgage banking field since 1963.

In his most recent post at the Kissell Company, Gerard was responsible for the production of loans in California's largest metropolitan area. Earlier, at Imperial Bank in Los Angeles, he directed a program which added $32 million in loan servicing and sharply increased loan production.

Garden Villa Townhomes grand opening continues

Over 1,000 people toured the model homes of Garden Villa Townhomes, conversion garden apartments, during the grand opening celebration last week, reports Ernie Thomson, president of Vector Dynamics.

"Our initial grand opening seemed to be so popular with potential homebuying families that we have decided to continue it through this weekend so those families who were unable to see our homes last weekend will have a further chance," Thomson continued.

"We'll have refreshments again, a clown to entertain the children, a free merry-go-round, and all visitors will have the opportunity to win a free vacation holiday at the Hilton International Hotel in Las Vegas."

THE units are priced from $14,950 to $16,950 and the largest townhome contains 1,045 square feet.

Included in the full sales price of Garden Villa is wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, halls and bedrooms, draperies, built-in range, oven and disposal in wife-saving kitchens, Spanish tile entryways, private fenced concrete patios, and complete soundproofing through the use of genuine lath and plaster.

"Our low full prices and excellent terms make Garden Villa an ideal home purchase for young families just starting up the income ladder or for older folks whose children have left the homestead, or are on a fixed retirement income. The monthly payments are at a fixed rate and together with taxes, the interest paid monthly is deductible from income tax payments," Thomson pointed out.

Take the Garden Grove Freeway to the Euclid exit and drive south on Euclid to McFadden; or exit the San Diego Freeway at Euclid and drive north to Garden Villa.

Multipurpose park planned in Cerritos

Construction is under way in Cerritos on a multipurpose park which will span 20 acres of land next to Carmenita Junior High School.

Largest recreational facility ever to be developed in the Southeastern Los Angeles County city, it is scheduled to open in July as City Park East.

Under a $357,000 contract, Moulder Bros., Glendale landscape contractor, is building a football field, three baseball diamonds, two handball courts, two shuffleboard courts, two tot play areas, a wading pool and various picnic shelters.

Cerritos civic officials expect the facility on 166th Street west of Carmenita Road to become a full community center.

Geothermal power

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Favorable indications for developing geothermal power have been found in California's Imperial Valley. San Diego Gas & Electric Co. and Magma Power Co. have drilled a first test well in the region and all the temperature and salinity indications of the underground water were favorable. Several more wells will be drilled seeking a genuine geothermal pool.

Credit in rise

HOUSTON (UPI) — A 4 per cent rise in the past year in the volume of credit report requests was revealed by Associated Credit Bureaus, Inc. Collection volume increased by 7 per cent.

New debentures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., a member of the Bell system, has registered $175 million worth of 36-year debentures and $75 million in seven-year notes for a rights offering of $250 million in securities late in 1972.

Closing plant

MOUNTAINSIDE, N.J. (UPI) — Worthington Pump International Inc., announced it will soon close its Denver plant, idling 125 workers.

Leasing units

NEWTON, Iowa (UPI) — Maytag Co. has decided to lease washing machines, driers and kitchen appliances to owners of large apartment complexes. This will relieve the customer of making large cash purchase payments and of the burden of servicing the appliances, Maytag said. Maytag says the leasing program will be profitable because it expects an apartment building boom in the coming decade.

Model homes for sale at Casa Del Amo site

The Casa Del Amo model homes are for sale as the Cerritos homesite nears the completion of its sales.

Robert Solomon, head of SIR Development Company, builder of the project, announced the availability of the models and four new homes which are being built in the model street.

"We have one model of each of the four floor plans available," Solomon said, "plus two each of the Cabrillo and Balboa plans which are now being built."

"The third unit is now completely sold out," the builder added, "and only 13 homes remain in the fourth and final unit."

The remaining fourth unit homes are highlighted by the popular Cortez plan, which is a single-story home with four bedrooms, two baths, and living and family rooms.

The master bedroom suite includes an oversized closet and full bath with shower, while there is a fireplace in the living room and a linen storage closet in the hall.

The Cortez is priced at $32,650.

ALTOGETHER, six new homes will be built on the model street, with two of them already sold.

The four available homes will be Balboa's priced at $34,450 and two Cabrillo's priced at $32,750.

The Balboa is a two-story, four-bedroom, two-bath home and the Cabrillo is a single-story with three bedrooms and two baths.

The four model homes include one of each plan — the Cortez, the Balboa, the Cabrillo and the DeSoto, which is also a single-story, three-bedroom, two-bath home.

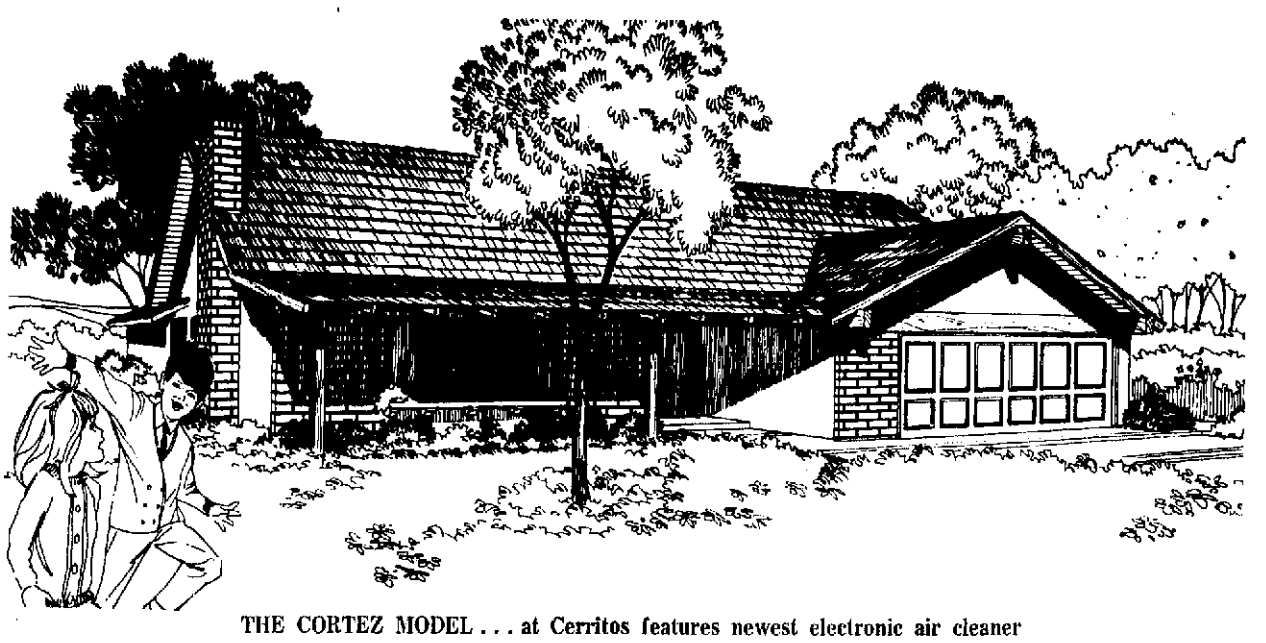

In addition to the amenities of all Casa Del Amo homes, the models include air conditioning, patios and landscaping, shag carpeting, draperies, and paneling and wallpaper on selected walls.

THE principle attraction of the final unit is electronic air cleaners, which have been installed in every home of the unit.

Mrs. Dayle Rinella, project manager for the homesite, noted: "The air cleaners eliminate all cigarette and cigar smoke and prevent a heavy build-up of dust and dirt. Nearly all pollen and similar allergies."

The air cleaners are installed in the forced air duct system of the homes, facilitating ease of installation and operation. The cost of operation is small, averaging about the equivalent of burng a 40-watt light bulb 24 hours a day.

Casa Del Amo was the first major homesite to install the electronic air cleaners on such a large scale. Previously, the units were found primarily in office buildings, hospitals, laboratories and very expensive custom homes.

THE CORTEZ MODEL . . . at Cerritos features newest electronic air cleaner

OTHER special features of the homes include wall-to-wall continuous filament nylon carpeting throughout, masonry fireplaces with gas log lighters, luminous ceilings, custom pullmans with cultured marble tops, built-in appliances, built-in dishwashers and garbage disposals, rear yard fencing and concrete driveways.

"Casa Del Amo's location is an added attraction," Mrs. Rinella added.

"The homesite is located across the street from a proposed 82-acre park. The park will include football and baseball fields, playgrounds, wading pool, covered pavilion, picnic grounds and tables, and ample parking areas."

The park, which is being financed with matching city and federal funds, will be developed by the Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department.

THE CENTRAL location of the homesite — it is surrounded by five major freeways — adds to the attraction of the site.

The Santa Ana, Artesia, San Gabriel, Garden Grove and San Diego Freeways provide rapid access to the vast array of recreational, educational, employment and shopping facilities in the Los Angeles and Orange County areas.

Homeowners can reach downtown Los Angelss in about 30 minutes and the famous Southern California beaches in about the same time. Major attractions such as Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, Anaheim Stadium and the Anaheim Convention Center are even closer.

The Casa Del Amo models are located at 20002 Teresa Way, at the corner of Teresa and Bloomfield, one block north of Del Amo Boulevard in Cerritos.

Revenue sharing urged for housing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Government regulations and government subsidies provided the chief impetus for 1971's homebuilding record, but the way in which subsidized programs are being used is making the housing problem not better, and probably worse, according to a leading mortgage banker.

Emanual M. Brotman, chairman of J. I. Kislak Mortgage Corp., of Newark, N.J. and Miami, urged mortgage bankers, homebuilders, and officials at all levels of government to work for a program that will provide the right housing, in the right place, for all income groups.

He recommended as "one way to help start doing this, revenue sharing, dispersed in such a way as to induce local authorities to share the burden of proper distribution of housing."

Brotman is president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of New Jersey, a member of the national association's Washington Committee, and a member of the advisory committee to the Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA).

"SOME OF us in the housing industry," Brotman said, "don't think what appears to be an achievement of some 2.1 million housing starts for 1971 is anything the private homebuilding industry can crow about.

"Realistic analysis of these starts shows the industry, without any government subsidies, would have produced much less than it normally did prior to the increase of government-aided programs, such as subsidized low interest rates, partial municipal tax abatements and other forms of local, state or national inducements."

A good deal of the mortgage money available for such construction, he said, "has been provided as a result of direct government regulation.

BROTMAN said "it would appear I think all subsidized homebuilding programs are a good thing —and I do. But," he added. "The way the subsidized programs are now being used, and where the resulting housing is being built is — to put it in the most gentle way I know how — wrong and without forethought about what is happening to our centers of population."

As a result of where the new housing with government aids has been built, Brotman said, "we have been, in effect, playing a game of musical chairs with the lives of our people both in the inner city and the suburbs. People who live in the inner cities now are forced to travel to the suburbs to work, and the people in the suburubs, many, many of them, are forced to travel into the inner cities to work."

AND THAT, Brotman said, isn't the worst of it. As tensions of the suburbs and the inner cities increase, and the fears between the so-called classes intensify, aided and abetted by the increasing isolation of each, he said, "we now see rapidly developing guarded enclaves of housing developments, fostered by these fears and, in a real sense, created by the way we are spending public monies to help build housing in the wrong places, not where it is needed most, but where our fears have driven us."

The suburbs and the cities, Brotman said, are really one big municipality, "with the same school problems, the same revenue problems, the same problem of crime and fears, and the same confrontations between peoples of all groups.

"The answer to these problems, of which housing is only one," he suggests, "is that we have to redesign the way we encourage housing to be built, where we build it and how we can make the suburbs and the cities both good places again in which to live and work."

REVENUE sharing is one answer. Brotman believes. "Revenue sharing," he said, "actually can become the major stimulus for producing housing where it is needed, in the suburbs and in the centers of population. Through a well-thought-out revenue sharing program, we can get municipalities to grant builders partial tax abatements for new middle income and low income housing by compensating them, unit for unit produced, with revenue sharing funds. We can relieve the necessity of confiscatory property tax levels by bringing other revenue to cities, so they no longer have to depend almost entirely on real estate taxes for income to pay for municipal services.

"WITH A lower tax rate, more housing would be built, at rents people can afford to pay, and the cities would have another major source of income (revenue sharing) to lift the threat of municipal bankruptcy.

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

There's gold in them thar midyear auto packages and Plymouth picks up the theme with a new "Gold Duster" that adds many styling and decor plusses to the popular Valiant compact.

A new vinyl roof gives exterior distinction to the Valiant Duster compact. The "canopy type" roof is free when ordered with the optional "Gold Duster" decor package, consisting of pleated vinyl upholstery and trim, carpeting, whitewall tires, deluxe wheel covers, bright drip rail mouldings and a distinctive rear deck gold tape stripe.

F. G. Hazelroth, division general sales manager, said: "The package approach — offering options and accessories in a group — has been highly successful in making it easier for customers and dealers to order.

"The Gold Duster further enhances the appeal of this popular, economy two-door coupe, which registered record sales in 1971.

"In 1969, Plymouth was fourth place in industry compact sales with 10 per cent of the market. The inclusion of Duster in the lineup boosted our market position and in model 1971, we moved to third place with nearly 21 per cent of industry sales."

The Valiant four-door and Scamp two-door hardtop, along with the Duster Coupe, accounted for 34 per cent of Plymouth sales in 1971. Of all Valiant sales, Duster made up nearly 68 per cent of these orders.

"We expect to improve our position even further during 1972," Hazelroth said, "with the Gold Duster making that model an even more attractive buy."

The basic package is a gold car with gold textured grain vinyl roof but the canopy top may also be ordered in black. There are 16 body colors from which to choose.

SAMMY DAVIS JR., the multi-faceted entertainment star who lost an eye in an automobile accident, has agreed to head the entertainment industry's fund drive to fight highway accidents.

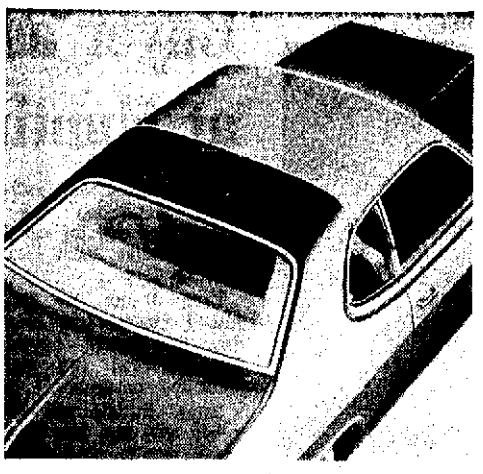

Davis accepted the position of National Entertainment Chairman of the Highway Safety Foundation.

The foundation, a privzte, non-profit organization dedicated to scientific investigation to determine the causes of traffic accidents and correction of those causes, is kicking off a $5 million fund drive.

In accepting the task in Los Angeles, Davis said he wants to do everything he can to support efforts to reduce the "fantastic" toll of more than 60,000 people killed each year, and more than 2 million seriously injured. "I was lucky, because I only lost an eye," Davis said.

"Think about the kids. Out of every 1500 kids you see, statistics say 12 will be killed on the highway, and 55 will be injured permanently," Davis said. "And what's even more tragic, we don't know what tremendous contributions to our world they might have made."

Richard Wayman, president and founder of the Highway Safety Foundation, presented Davis with a plaque commemorating his appointment at a gathering of press and foundation personnel.

Property tax out-of-date as shining knight on horse

The property tax, says Donald Schwenn, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, keeps poking itself into politics because it's "as out of date as a knight on his horse clopping down Main Street."

That's when the present property tax system started — back in the Middle Ages when taxing a lord for the amount of land and buildings he owned was a tax on his income, says Schwenn. It was an agricultural society and land produced crops, animals, timber and minerals.

The property tax survived the industrial revolution and the shift from an agricultural to an urban society and in the process its purpose became lost, Schwenn adds.

"A homeowner has no income from his property, yet he is asked to bear the burden of a large share of the cost of schools, welfare and other services shared by the whole population. The value of products made in a factory is not related to the factory's size or the land it occupies," Schwenn believes.

"The only fragment left of the original purpose of the property tax, to relate tax to income, is that someone owning an expensive house can be assumed to have a larger income than one owning a hovel.

"In my work as a Realtor I see constant examples of the injustice caused by such an outmoded tax. The elderly, for instance, retired on a fixed income are faced with skyrocketing taxes on a house they painstakingly paid for over the years and now rely on for shelter.

"As taxes go up, their chances for keeping it go down."

Seminar set at CSCLB

A seminar entitled "Interpersonal Marketing Communication: Salesmanship," is scheduled at California State College, Long Beach, for 10 Wednesday evenings beginning March 1

Instructor will be Prof. Edmund A. Cotta of the campus' School of Business Administration.

Fee for the course, including materials and a completion certificate, is $83.

Control Components building under way

Construction has started on a $1.3 million maunfacturing facility and corporate headquarters in the new city of Irvine for Control Components Inc., a subsidiary of Babcock & Wilcox, it was announced by Richard Seif, company president.

The 66,000-square-foot building is being constructed by Don Koll Co., Inc., of Irvine, on a 20-acre site at Main Street and Jamboree Road in the Irvine Industrial Complex.

Planned completion date is June 30.

The steel frame and concrete tilt-up facility will be used for manufacturing control valves for chemical processing and power generating. Approximately 17,000 square feet of office space will be included in the structure.

SELF explained his company's reasons for moving from Los Alamitos:

"We're so swamped with orders from around the world that our present plant is bursting at the seams. Since we had to move, we wanted a location where future expansion was possible.

"And, we also wanted an attractive industrial environment that would interest today's very choosy labor market. We feel that the Irvine Industrial Complex is the perfect answer."

'71 report

The re-investment rate by clients of Innovest, Inc., was over 90 per cent for the year 1971, it was announced by Gregory McKay, president.

Innovest is a financial consulting firm, specializing in tax shelters, with principal offices in Beverly Hills.

McKay also stated that of the more than $100 million expended in tax sheltered real estate acquisitions for clients, every property acquired has paid a dividend to investors every quarter.

Sees record year in home production

NEW YORK (UPI) — What's ahead in housing in 1972?

"A record year in home production, in transfer of existing dwellings, in purchase of vacation properties," according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards (NAREB).

There will be a high degree of mobility among tenants, and more young families will become home owners during the next 12 months than in any year of the past, according to NAREB's annual economic forecast.

"If the pace of current production is maintained, some 2.1 million housing units will enter the inventory in 1972," said Mrs. Catherine Martini, director of the association's research department.

"In addition," she said, "possibly half a million mobile homes will be shipped to find their way into the standing stock available for either year-round occupancy or for vacation use."

Factory created housing is likely to become an increasing source of supply.

DURING 1972, as in the past, the study indicates, two to three times as many families and individuals will buy an existing house as will acquire a newly constructed one.

"While existing homes will be bought by all age groups, young buyers, particularly those under 35 years of age, will be prominent in the market place," Mrs. Martini said. Households headed by persons under 35 comprise 26.5 per cent of all household units.

New construction, according to the report, probably will add more than 850,000 apartment units to the inventory in 1972. In addition, some rentals will become available following structural conversion, and others will result when an owner - occupant vacates and decides to offer his property for rent rather than for sale.

THE REPORT cited two major reasons why interest in vacation property will grow during 1972:

"Distances and travel time have been shortened by the extensive highway system. Moreover, the continuous shift of population toward the oceans and Great Lakes has made weekend commuting feasible for many more families than a few years ago."

A recent Census report showed that more than half of the population lives within 50 miles of the seacoast, including the shores of the Great Lakes.

Additionally, the report cited vacation home purchases made with retirement in mind. "Many fine properties are built or acquired for weekend use with a view to full-time occupancy in the future. Families in the 55-64 age category are major holders of assets and generally have completed the financing of their children's education."

The NAREB forecast said the resurgence of consumer confidence should aid business recovery. "For the first time since the economic downturn consumers are demonstrating an increased willingness to spend," it said.

CONTRIBUTING to this are cuts in federal taxes which will augment rising disposable income and the large volume of "first home" purchases by families in the under-35 age group.

Buyer acceptance seen at Huntington Town Homes

Buyer acceptance indicates Huntington Town Homes are due for early sell-out, sales agent Alex Graham reports.

Even before the furnished, models had been formally opened, buyers had reserved two and three-bedroom homes.

Some models are already sold out, less than three months after opening, he said.

The harbor area of Huntington Beach, with nearby clubs and parks, offers country club living in one of the few remaining beach sections of Orange County.

The community is far enough from heavily traveled thoroughfares to be quiet and secluded, yet within minutes of beaches that offer boating, fishing, swimming and surfing.

ATTRACTIVELY priced, offering younger families a chance to own their first home, the homes also are attracting couples who have raised their families, and want to enjoy leisure hours with no work and worry of yard and pool care.

A recreation area offers a heated swimming pool, shower and restroom facilities for the enjoyment of residents and their guests. There is a green play area for the small fry.

Lawns, garden areas, exterior painting and fences are all professionally cared for. Each home has its own walled patio. Living rooms and bedrooms are carpeted.

Prices begin at $19,400, VA, FHA and conventional terms.

Dining facility to be enlarged at Murieta

The Wier Casady Company, general contractors of Los Angeles, have begun construction on a 10,000-square-foot addition to the existing 30,000-square-foot dining facility at Murrieta Hot Springs.

This project, estimated at a cost of $500,000, is a part of the proposed $100,000 development program at the Murrieta Hot Springs Resort, 30 miles south of the City of Riverside.

The existing two-story restaurant will be expanded an additional 10,000 square feet with the new two-story addition, and will incorporate frame construction with wood siding and a tile shingle roof.

THE NEW construction will include additional meeting and banquet rooms and cocktail lounge and will provide an added seating capacity for 550 persons. Operable partitions in the meeting and dining rooms will enable the restaurant to accommodate small, medium and large groups.

Exposed-beam ceiling, genuine acoustical plaster and wall finishes of vinyl and wood will be featured in the interior of the new addition, plus stamped concrete, carpeted areas, and hardwood floors for dancing areas.

Boys Town to benefit

A special fund raising benefit for children of Boys Town of the Desert, featuring an appearance by David Ray, a member of the Los Angeles Rams football team, and an exhibition by the Long Beach State Men's Gymnastic Team, will be held this Saturday at Tara Hill, Larwin's family apartment community at 9090 Moody St., at Lincoln Boulevard, in Cypress.

The public is invited to attend the benefit which will begin at 2 p.m., in the Family Recreation Center at Tara Hill. Special door prizes, donated by local merchants, will be given away.

Movies and cartoons especially selected for youngsters will be shown, and refreshments will be served.

"WE'RE very proud to be sponsoring this benefit for Boys Town of the Desert," said Richard A. Berger, vice president of consumer marketing for Larwin's multiple-family housing division.

"It's our way of expressing interest in children. We know those who attend will enjoy the day's events, which has been organized on behalf of an extremely worthwhile cause."

All donations from the benefit will go to Boys Town of the Desert, a non-profitable charitable and educational organization in Beaumont.

Boys Town is a residential child care community for boys from ages 11 and up, who are placed by welfare and probation departments in the state.

Tara Hill in Cypress is one of 12 apartment communities in Southern California developed by the multiple-family housing division of The Larwin Group Inc., of Beverly Hills.

Shapell Industries, Inc., reports 67 per cent growth

Shapell Industries, Inc., developer and builder of residential communities, announced last week revenues for the year ended Dec. 31 increased 67 per cent over 1970, and net income rose 26 per cent.

Revenues in 1971 reached $54,263,000, up from $32,434,000 reported in the previous year.

Net income totalled $5,095,000 or $1.45 a share based 3,523,254 average shares outstanding, as compared to $4,050,000 and $1.15 a share on 3,520,854 average shares outstanding in 1970.

Nathan Shapell, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said the record results in revenues and earnings were achieved through substantially increased activity in several of the company's operating areas.

S&S Construction Co., the main operating subsidiary of Shapell Industries, opened 10 new single-family and townhouse projects in Los Angeles and Orange Counties, bringing the total number of active developments to 15, as compared to seven during the 1970 year.

Shapell noted sales in the past few months have been at all-time high levels, indicating that 1972 should be another excellent year for the company.

Approximately one thousand units of HUD 236-subsidized rental housing were delivered or in process of construction by Shapell Government Housing, another wholly-owned subsidiary, during 1971.

"We expect this sector of our business to continue to grow significantly as the nation fulfills its commitment to provide decent shelter for all its citizens, regardless of income level," Shapell said.

IN DECEMBER, Shapell Developers, Inc. sold its first major conventional multifamily project for an amount in excess of $6 million. The 420-unit family complex was more than half completed, and was booked into 1971 figures on a percentage of completion basis.

Shapell Industries of Northern California expanded its operations in the San Francisco South Bay region substantially during 1971.

TADCO names executives

Edward F. Kincade Jr. and James E. Gillanders have been named vice presidents for Transamerica Development Company, Los Angeles-based real estate activity of Transamerica Corporation, announced Ralph D. Wenger, president of TADCO.

Kincade, a graduate of Brown University, has been associated with TADCO for two years as assistant vice-president of marketing.

His previous professional experience includes marketing and real estate activities for Mobil Oil Corporation and as Eastern and Mid-Western Zone Director of Marketing for ITT Levitt and Sons.

As vice president-marketing, his areas of responsibility will continue to include market research, product design, advertising, public relations, merchandising, sales and sales administration and customer relations for TADCO and its subsidiaries.

GILLANDERS received his undergraduate work at the University of Washington in Seattle and his masters degree from Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

Since October 1970, he has been the real manager for Allied Construction Co., residential developers located in Phoenix and a division of TADCO.

His responsibilities include the coordination of land acquisitions, design elements, construction and sales for the Arizona and Colorado markets. He previously was associated with Kaufman & Broad, Inc. as project manager for Northern California and with The First Worth Corporation, a diversified company based in Fort Worth.

The thrust of TADCO's overall operation is divided into five major divisions: housing, recreational land sales, primary home site sales, mobile home parks and manufactured modular housing.

PRIMARY home site sales are concentrated in California at Diamond Bar and Palos Verdes.

At Diamond Bar, TADCO has converted this 8,600 acre ranch holding to three major areas of development: 1) sales of land to major home builders and development corporations; 2) development of commercial centers; 3) the sale of developed lots to estate home buyers and investors. The latter is called The Country and has a $1 million equestrian center, night lighted tennis courts and a 132-acre park.

The total Diamond Bar community now has 15,000 residents with an ultimate population of 90,000 expected.

At Palos Verdes the company is involved with Great Lakes Carbon in the total development of 6,200 acres of residential and commercial property.

Mobile home buyers need to update depreciation ideas

"Many prospective mobile home buyers and lenders are fooling themselves about the depreciation of mobile homes, for it is far less than they believe," says Dan Evans of Del Prado Mobile Home Parks, developers of six mobile communities in Orange County.

"Lenders and dealers have been widely convinced that depreciation is 50 per cent in five years," Evans said.

"A survey recently released by the First National City Bank in New York reports mobile homes depreciate an average of 10 percent in the first year and five per cent in each suceeding year with a total of 45 per cent in eight years," he said.

THE STUDY, Evans noted, says that "even after 15 years, when most units will be discarded as year-round housing, they will retain considerable resale value — between 20 per cent and 35 per cent of the original cost."

The study also reported that the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration — which will insure mobile homes for terms up to 12 years at true interest rates as low as 7.9 per cent — are very seldom used.

Workshop for Irvine residents

Officers and representatives of some 30 community associations from planned developments on Irvine ranch lands will meet Saturday in the first working conference of its kind conducted on the west coast.

More than 300 persons will attend the conference at the Newporter Inn which includes speakers and workshop sessions dealing with community association-related concerns.

Association memberships to be represented cover some 11,000 homeowners in four cities, Irvine, Newport Beach, Tustin and Laguna Beach.

In Irvine Company developments community associations own, manage and maintain green belts and recreational facilities.

They also enforce aesthetic and architectural standards established as part of the development's design.

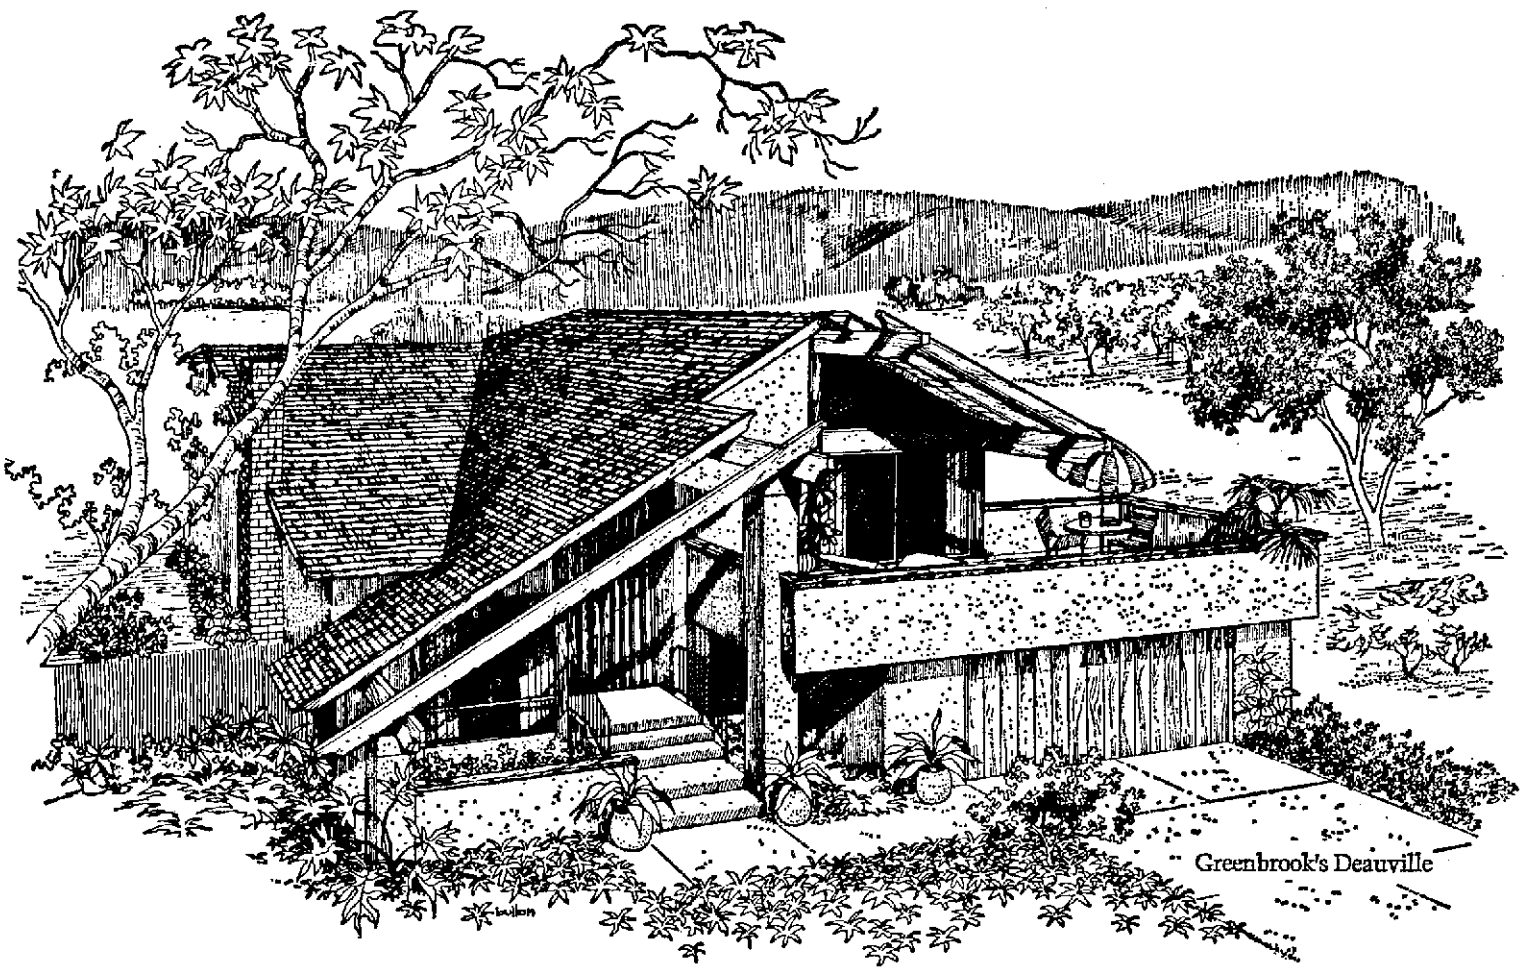

In addition, associations in many communities have become a means of coordinating social, cultural and education programs serving residents.

New town rising in Arizona

A $5,000,000 home-building program by Dell Trailor Construction Co. of Phoenix, inaugurating major residential construction at the master-planned community of Fountain Hills, Ariz., 19 miles northeast of Scottsdale, has been announced by Robert P. McCulloch Jr., executive vice president of McCulloch Properties, Inc.

Construction will begin this month on the first of 220 residential units, each of which will have a view of Fountain Hills' landmark centerpiece — the world's tallest fountain, nearly 600 feet high.

Unconscious alive, healthy in Strub Stakes win

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

Unconscious, last year's Kentucky Derby favorite, who had been sidelined seven months before coming back to the races four weeks ago, was very much alive and healthy Saturday as he scored a rousing half-length victory in the $130,300 Charles H. Strub Stakes at Santa Anita.

Only third choice of the crowd of 51,353, the huge Calbred paid $10.40. Triple Bend gained place money, finishing ¾ of a length ahead of the favored Good Counsel.

Rated perfectly by Bill Shoemaker who scored his 91st victory in a 100-grander, Unconscious dispelled any doubts that an injury he suffered in the Kentucky Derby still bothered him.

Shoemaker kept the chestnut colt just off the pace from the beginning of the country's first 100-grander this year until the field turned for home. Shoe then dug into Unconscious and the colt responded in brilliant fashion, holding off late bids from both Triple Bend and Good Counsel.

Invested Power set the pace for nearly a full mile of the mile and ¼ chase, with Kfar Tov and Unconscious right behind him.

Wing Out gained the lead at the mile pole but lost it almost immediately to Unconscious, who wasn't headed when he gained command.

"This colt is remarkable," beamed trainer John Canty, who did a remarkable job himself getting Unconscious ready for Saturday's race.

"He's only been back in training since November, and he had all kinds of problems during his layoff. He suffered a minor injury in the Derby last May and we returned him to California.

"Then we shipped him to New York for the Belmont Stakes and discovered there he had a bone chip in his knee, so we had to operate on him.

"When he returned to the races four weeks ago, I was concerned because Unconscious finished a dull seventh. But I knew he was completely healed 10 days ago when he won his next race in very convincing fashion.

"It's a shame Unconscious wasn't healthy in the Derby because I've always privately felt he was much superior to Canonero

Shoemaker figured Unconscious was ready for a big effort in Saturday's race after the victory 10 lays ago.

"He galloped out strong after that other race," remarked Shoe. "And that race was bigger than it might have looked. He didn't like it when I hit him, but he came on again.

"I learned something that day. He doesn't like to be hit, so I just hand-rode him through the stretch today.

"When Wing Out moved up outside of me, I had to steady Unconscious for a few strides and then I just did get out before Triple Bend came up on the outside.

"If he'd gotten there a few jumps earlier, I'd have been in trouble. Tri-

No Emmy for Cal State but Aztecs fall, 85-68

By JIM McCORMACK

Cal State Long Beach's still-sputtering basketball team pulled away from San Diego State in the final nine minutes Saturday and rolled to an 85-68 Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. victory.

The win was an important one for the 49ers (19-3), keeping them on top of the PCAA standings with a 6-2 record.

"A win, any kind of win, was important to us," 49er coach Jerry Tarkanian reported after the regionally-televised game. "Our kids had their confidence shaken by the loss to Fresno and we needed to get one today."

To some degree, Saturday's game, in the campus gym, went much the way as the game with Fresno, except that this time the breaks went to the 49ers.

Thursday night, for example, the 49ers had three men foul out. Saturday, San Diego had three men foul out. Thursday, Fresno shot 36 second-half free throws and Cal State five. Saturday the 49ers shot 25 tosses in the last 20 minutes and San Diego 13.

"It hurt us to lose our big men," San Diego coach Dick Davis admitted after 6-7 Chris McMurray, 6-11 Ken Barstow and 6-6 Larry Jones had fouled out of the game.

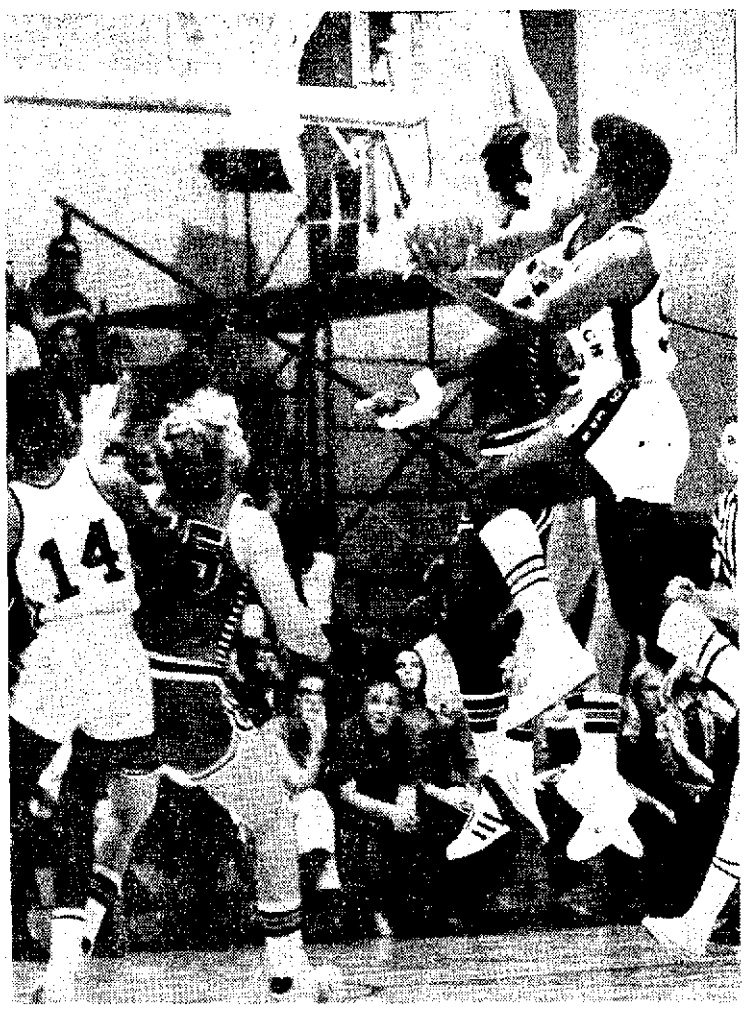

"The game was no surprise, though. We expected it to be rough. We just didn't have much chance of beating a team like Long Beach without those three kids."

McMurray got into trouble right after his three-point play with 16:48 remaining gave the Aztecs their only lead of the game, 43-41.

McMurray then drew his third and fourth fouls within a span of 20 seconds and had to leave the game. Nate Stephens, the victim of both fouls, made two shots to tie the game at 43.

The 49ers took the lead for good after Barstow,

USSR helps Yanks win hockey silver

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — The Soviet Union's powerful ice hockey team closed out the competition at the 11th Winter Olympic Games today (Sunday) with a gold-medal victory that also gave the silver to the United States, the Americans' first hockey medal since their upset triumph in 1960.

For surprises, the U.S. silver-medal finish in hockey had to share the spotlight with Francisco Fernandez Ochoa's stunning upset victory in the men's special slalom that gave Spain its first medal of any kind in Winter Olympic history.

Russia, winning the Olympic hockey title for the third consecutive time since being upset by the Americans at Squaw Valley, built up a 4-0 lead over Czechoslovakia and then held on for the 5-2 victory and its eighth gold medal of the Games.

The loss left Czechoslovakia with a 3-2 record and six points, the same as the United States, but the Americans got the silver because they had beaten the Czechs.

The U.S. silver was set up when Finland upset Sweden, 4-3, earlier today, giving the Swedes a 2-2-1 mark and five points.

The silver medal was a tremendous accomplishment for the young U.S. team that had to beat Switzerland the day before official Olympic competition opened to even qualify for Group A and a chance at a medal.

The American team watched the final game between Russia and Czechoslovakia from the stands and cheered for the Russians.

"It's strange rooting for the Russians," said U.S. goalie Mike Curran, who was the hero of the Americans' three victories. "I watched these teams play

Heard leading Hope, but here comes Arnie

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

PALM SPRINGS — Jerry Heard held his two-stroke lead, Arnold Palmer mounted one of his famous charges and young Johnny Miller was the victim of clicking cameras and raucous fans Saturday on an eventful fourth day of the marathon Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Heard, playing in virtual obscurity at Bermuda Dunes, ran his 72-hole total 13-under-par 275 with a 2-under 70, giving him a two-shot bulge over old Bob Rosburg and young Lanny Wadkins, both of whom broke par at tough La Quinta.

But Rosburg, the temperamental veteran, and Wadkins, the 22-year-old rookie out of Wake Forest, are not given the best chance to challenge Heard for the top prize of $29,000. Palmer and Miller are.

Had Miller not been in the group just ahead of Spiro Agnew, the 24-year-old might have shot several strokes better at the easy Indian Wells course. Had Palmer not missed some makeable putts, he also might have been closer to the lead.

As it turned out, Miller carded a 71 and Palmer still came charging with a 66. But they are four strokes off the pace, and that may be too much ground to make up against Heard, who has been remarkably consistent with rounds of 66, 70, 69, and 70.

"I may need a 63 or 64 to win," said Palmer, who was disgusted that he failed to birdie the easy 18th hole, a 450-yard par-5. He plays today at Indian Wells, and it is the kind of course which can yield low scores if the golfer drives it straight. But one slip and a ball can easily go out-of-bounds.

Miller knows he will shoot better today, if only because he won't have cameras clicking behind him and unruly fans trying to get into position to see Spiro Agnew, the vice-president who drew thousands of galleryites Saturday.

The 24-year-old Mormon was in the group just ahead of Agnew, Frank Sinatra, Bob Hope and Doug Sanders. It was like being in the middle of a rooting section during a football game.

Walton paces Bruin rout

'Bring back Lew,' moans Husky coach

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

It was difficult, but Marv Harshman managed a grin as he emerged from the Washington dressing room at Pauley Pavilion Saturday night after his Huskies had been defeated by UCLA, 109-70.

"Talk about Alcindor," sighed Harshman. "I almost wish he was back. This guy is fantastic."

The Washington coach didn't have to explain that he was referring to UCLA's 6-11 sophomore center, Bill Walton.

The towering redhead from Helix High in La Mesa had uncoupled Steve Hawes, one of the best centers in the history of Washington basketball, during the course of an evening that was heavily applauded by 12,310 fans.

Before leaving the game with 7:47 remaining, Walton had made 27 points and tied his best rebounding mark with 24. Seventeen of those rebounds came in the first half, tying a Pauley Pavilion record.

What made Walton's accomplishments so impressive was the caliber of his opposition. Hawes came into the game with a 21.1 scoring average, compared to 19.9 for Walton, and had a 14.0 rebounding average to 13.9 for Walton.

Hawes, who had his first four shots blocked by Walton, including a fallaway hook, made one of nine shots and two of five free throws for four points. He recorded nine rebounds before fouling out with 8:54 left.

Life of Riley as Troy romps, 78-66

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

Ron Riley hit career highs for points and poise Saturday night, returning from a halftime brawl to lead USC to a 78-66 victory over Washington State at the L.A. Sports Arena.

The 6-8 senior scored 32 points, including 18 big ones in the second half after tangling with the Congars' Morris Griffin on the way to the dressing room at intermission.

The Trojans needed all of that to keep a comfortable cushion against the marksmanship of WSU guard Dan Steward, who scored 29 points on 14-for-26 gunning, 21 in the second half when the Congars went strictly to long range.

The Trojans led all the way from Riley's two early free throws at 7-6 and firmly re-established themselves as factors in the Pacific-8 race with only one defeat, which they hope to reverse on their home court March 10.

Riley appears to be providing the leadership they momentarily lost with the injury to Paul Westphal, but his self-control got a severe test from Griffin, a 6-5 aggressor from New Jersey.

"We got into a little pushing under the basket," Riley said, "and I guess he was still a little angry at halftime. I was walking to the dressing room and he pushed me from behind, hard enough to knock me off my feet. I got up and started punching him until somebody grabbed me."

A full-blown uprising that has been the unhappy sour theme of this basketball season was in prospect for the second half, but the rival coaches managed to cool everybody off

Candidate for 'most unforgettable character'

"When I go to France I only stay one night, because they still want to ask me question. In Belgium I know I'm pretty good. I'm still buried there. It was fun, you know. I have a lot of adventure."—Pierre (Bertys) Perry.

When Mando Ramos fought Pedro Carrasco in Spain last November, manager Jackie McCoy hired a friendly old guy who had been hanging around to help work the corner.

On the night of the fight Pierre Perry reported for duty dressed in white from head to toe, hung his white cap on a peg in the dressing room and said, "I'll be right back."

A few minutes later a Spanish soldier entered, took the cap and announced, "He won't be coming back."

"We didn't see him again," McCoy said. "We thought they'd taken him out and shot him."

Even if they had, Perry would probably still be kicking around. Now 76, he has been shot, bayoneted, blown up and darn near electrocuted, but just keeps turning up in unexpected places, often to the embarrassment of very important people.

"We have had a lot of fun," Perry says with a heavy French accent, and then proceeds to relate a life's tale that could not have been lived by a younger man and would be too incredible to swallow if Perry did not produce the documents—and the scars—to substantiate most of what he claims.

IF HOLLYWOOD DID the story, it would need a composite of Steve McQueen, Maurice Chevalier and Peter Sellers to play the role. Boxer, war hero, spy, rogue —Perry has done it all. His nickname "Bertys," he says, was bestowed by the Duke of Windsor.

He started fighting professionally when he was 15 and had 250 bouts, including a supporting match to a Georges Carpentier main event at Monte Carlo in 1910.

In 1915 he was Jack Johnson's trainer when the first black heavyweight champion lost his title to Jess Willard in Havana. Johnson later claimed—for money, it was said—that he threw the fight. Perry assures that it was so.

"He was afraid to go back to America because they were going to put him in jail for marrying a white woman," Perry says. "But he had a paper from an American congressman that promised him he would go free if he lost the title to a white man."

According to Perry, Johnson was guaranteed $70,000 by promoter Jack Curley and agreed to fall in the fourth round. The bout was scheduled for 45, "and," Bertys says, "it was 115 in the shade, and we were in the sun."

Curley had not produced the $70,000 by fight time, so Johnson refused to dive until the money was up. He assigned Perry to keep checking the box office.

"I was supposed to make a French salute," Perry says, "and show Johnson the box of money, then he would lay down. I made about 20 trips to the box office. But Curley was playing a trick. He thought Johnson was not in shape and Willard would knock him out.

"After about 25 rounds Willard looked like he was ready to fall down, so they gave me the money. In the 26th round Johnson give his chin—and Willard miss three times. Finally he touch him barely and Johnson went down.

"The canvas was so hot that it burn my hands, and Johnson watch the referee with his hand over his eyes, and when he say '10' Johnson jump upon his feet. His back was burned."

THE PURSE STILL was only $56,000 and the agreement about immunity was a fake.

Perry was a pilot but couldn't buy his way into the air force in World War I, and was captured when his group got lost behind German lines. He and another prisoner — "a Belgian marathon champion" — escaped from the prison train, though, and made their way 200 miles to Belgium, walking through woods and fields by night and hiding in haystacks in the daytime.

Once, foraging for food, Perry was surprised by an elderly German soldier in a farmhouse and stabbed him through the neck with his own bayonet.

"I regret it all my life, what I did," Perry says. "I should have knock him in the head."

Eventually they made their way to Brussels—after Perry dispatched another German by running him through the neck, too, and dumping him down a village well—and a Cardinal arranged for Perry to hide out in the house of a Belgian actress.

"He told me, 'She's only 30 years old and she's beautiful, but I warn you—her sweetheart is a German colonel, the boss of all Brussels.' The German came to see her about every day, and I had to hide for two or three hours."

RICH ROBERTS

The actress had a sideline—smuggling Belgian refugees across the nearby border to Holland.

"Maybe I can help you," Perry told her. "So I stay with her, and the German still come to see her, but I become the sweetheart of her, too!"

ONE RAINY NIGHT Perry was almost electrocuted when he cut the barbed wire. On his 23rd trip "they caught me finally and a German put his bayonet through my belly and also shot me twice in the head.

"They sent two Belgians to bury me, but I wasn't dead. They took me to their house, a doctor put iodine in my belly, like a cow, and I didn't die. My tomb is still there, with my French name. The people still bring flower there."

Along with Eddie Rickenbacker, Perry was decorated after the war and led a comparatively dull existence as a fight manager and promoter—except for a brief career as a flying gun runner for a European revolutionary—until World War II came along.

"I was in Paris when the Germans were three miles away," he says. "I bought an old bomber, painted swastikas on the wings and flew over the treetops to Portugal."

Before he left, Perry had witnessed a demonstration of the world's first helicopter by its inventor, Louis Breguet, who had already sold it to Russia. When Perry told U.S. military leaders of this, he was commissioned to obtain the plans for America any way he could.

Frenchmen were bribed, a safe was left open and—to foil the Russians—Perry stole some dynamite and blew up the only working model of the machine. He and a companion then bought a fast car, crashed a barricade of waiting gendarmes at the border and fled into Switzerland.

PERRY CAN PRODUCE the secret code he used to communicate with U.S. officials during the caper. He can also produce photos of himself laid up in the UCLA Medical Center for a year-and-a-half after vengeful Russian agents blew him through a wall.

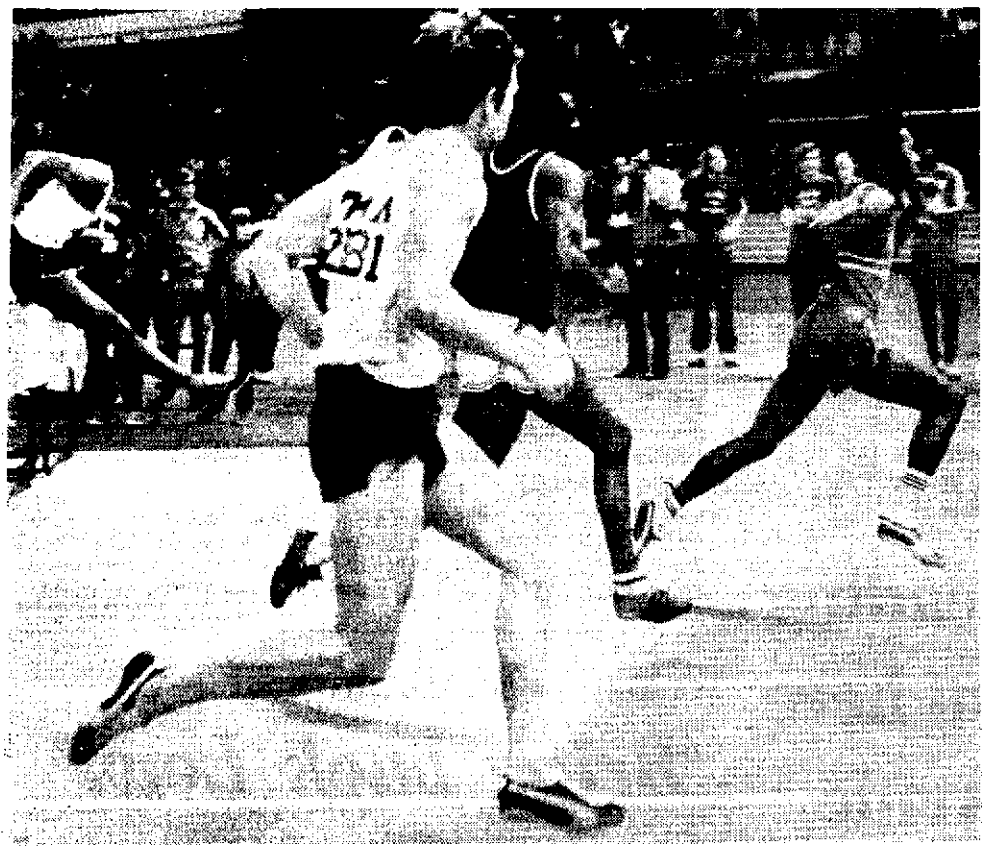

He is still reluctant to return to France, although DeGaulle once wrote a letter to Perry's mother saying all was forgiven. Left without a country, the U.S. granted him a quickie citizenship. He'll show that, too.

In his latest escapade, Perry claims to have gotten Mando Ramos into shape to fight Carrasco by providing him with some super-vitamins not available in the U.S. That's why, Perry says, the Spaniards refused to let him work Mando's corner.

"They told me," Perry relates, " 'Bertys, you can't help our enemy.' "

Perry will be a spectator only Friday night, but he won't be lonely. His regular companion is a blonde who sings at a Southland watering hole.

Perry, soon to be 77, explains with a wink, "She is my chauffeur."

Milburn, Branch in record form

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hurdler Rodney Milburn of Southern California and sprinter Cliff Branch of Colorado broke indoor records in the 120 yard high hurdles and the 100-yard dash Saturday night in the fourth annual Astrodome-Federation National Indoor track and field championships.

Milburn, the world record holder outdoors at 13.0, broke the indoor mark with a 13.4 run, shaving .1 off the time set by Willie Davenport in this meet four years ago. Davenport finished second to Milburn with 13.5.

Branch, a native of Houston and a member of Colorado's nationally ranked football team, ran the 100 in 9.3 to better the time of 9.4 set by Nebraska's Jim Green four years ago and Southern California's Lennox Miller in the Astrodome Jan. 24, 1969.

Gerald Tinker of Memphis State, who finished second to Branch in 9.4 tied the old mark he set in this same meet in 1970.

Tinker finished only inches behind the Colorado speedster and Willie Deckard of Southern California was third in 9.6.

Illinois' two mile relay team tied the indoor record of 7:19.8 set by Wisconsin in this meet last year. Lee Labadie sparked the Illini victory with a 1:46.7 third leg. Other members of the quartet were Robert Mango, 1:51.9, David Kamerer, 1:49.8 and Ronnie Phillips, 1:51.4.

Nebraksa was second at 7:21.9 and Villanova thidr at 7:24.1.

Edesal Garrison of Southern California won the 440 in 45.7, a tenth of a second off the indoor mark set by Fred Newhouse of Prairie View two years ago.

George Young, a three-time Olympic distance runner, won the invitational two mile in 8:28.1 and Dave Wottle of Bowling Green won the mile in 4:03.7.

Feuerbach wins in last indoor test

OAKLAND (UPI) — Valeriy Borzov, one of Russia's top candidates for a gold medal in the Munich Olympic Games, began a tour of the U.S. indoor track circuit by winning the 60-yard dash in 6.1 seconds at the Athens Invitational Saturday night.

The time was the best ever by a Soviet sprinter for the distance, but .3 of a second off the indoor record.

UCLA star Warren Edmonson was second to Borzov and also was timed in 6.1. The curly haired Russian took the lead at about the halfway point and held off Edmonson to the tape.

Al Feuerbach of the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, indoor record holder in the shot put, ended his winter schedule of competition with a winning heave of 67 feet, 1 and ¾ inches. That beat former Olympian George Woods by ¾ inch, and 1968 Olympic champion Randy Matson was third at 66-4½.

The 24-year-old Feuerbach, whose record is 69-4½, was 6-0 in the indoor season against Matson. He lost once to Woods, who is on a comeback.

Feuerbach is going to concentrate on training the rest of the winter and pass up remaining indoor meets, including the AAU championships.

Martin McGrady of the California International Track Club won the 500-yard run easily and set a meet record of 56.9.

Lee Evans, who has been battling McGrady most of the season, was absent.

Bears fall to Beavers

BERKELEY (UPI) — Oregon State defeated California 74-68 to climb past the Golden Bears into fifth place in the Pacific-8 Conference basketball standings Saturday night.

Oregon State was sparked by junior center Neal Jurgenson who had 25, with 15 in the second half. He scored mainly on hooks and jumpers from around the key.

Ansley Truitt's 18 points topped Cal, which is now 3-5 in the Pac-8. Oregon State is 3-3.

Ryun's mate makes his own mark

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) Mark Winzenried, former Wisconsin star now running for Club West of Santa Barbara, broke the indoor record for the 1,000-yard run in 2:05.1 in the 12th annual Mason Dixon Games Saturday night.

Winzenried, bespectacled teammate of famed miler Jim Ryun, pulled away from Czechoslovakia's Josef Plachy to shatter Ralph Doubell's record by four-tenths of a second. Doubell set the mark Jan. 24, 1970 at Albuquerque, N.M.

Army captain Mel Pender exploded out of the blocks and withstood a closing rush by Dr. Delano Meriwether to win the featured 70-yard dash. Both speedsters were timed in 6.9 seconds, one-tenth of a second off the indoor record.

Henry Jackson of the Army Athletic Assn. won the long jump with a leap of 25 feet, 2¾ inches as Ralph Boston, former indoor record holder, attempting a comeback, could do no better than fifth.

Tow-headed Scott Wallick of Miami of Ohio cleared 17 feet, 4⅛ inches in the pole vault to top the meet record by three-inches. Indoor record holder Chris Papanicolaou of Greece finished third at 16 feet behind second place Steve Smith of Cal State Long Beach who also broke the record with a height of 17 feet, 1½ inches.

BRUINS—

amazed by what Walton had done to Hawes and the potency of the other Bruin players.

"From my knowledge, Hawes has never been dominated so much," said the Washington coach. "You just have to be present to feel the futility of trying to play against Walton and the Bruins, especially here."

Harshman said he was reluctant to put UCLA coach John Wooden on the spot but, when pressed for a comparison, said "I think this is John's best team."

"I just can't remember when I felt so awed by a team as I did this one," he admitted. "And they did it so easily. John has so many people who can come in and not lessen the talent on the floor by much."

Wooden was more subdued with his praise, but there were moments when it appeared he might break his stated rule against comparisons.

"It would be hard to imagine a better performance than Walton gave us," said the UCLA coach." His shooting, shot-blocking, intimidating, everything . . . they were all great.

"I was tremendously happy to have Lewis Alcindor and I am tremendously happy to have Bill Walton. That's saying enough."

The Huskies, with guards Louie Nelson and Paul Dudley furnishing the spark, made it a ballgame for nearly a half, trailing by only nine at 38-29 with three minutes remaining. Then the Bruins staged a typical blitz and ran their lead to 46-32 by halftime.

Nelson, formerly of Compton high, had 19 points and Dudley 15 for the Huskies.

UCLA received 41 points from its center position, Swen Nater getting 14 and five rebounds as Walton's substitute. The Bruins had a 65-40 advantage in rebounding and Walton wound up with eight blocked shots, seven in the first half.

"We'll have to play them differently next time," laughed Harshman, whose Huskies get another crack at the Bruins in Seattle next Saturday afternoon on Hughes Sports Network television.

Asked if he meant a slowdown, Harshman replied: "No, I don't mean changes on offense. I'm talking about defense. We'll probably come up with some gimmicks."

Nothing else has worked against the Bruins, who now have won 19 without a defeat this season and 34 in a row over a two-season span. Gimmicks, and some gifts from the gods, might be the answer.

Lee whips flu, Vasquez, too

By BARRY UNGLES

Light-heavyweight Terry Lee had to fight off the flu and then Amado Vasquez to take a unanimous decision in the main event Saturday night at the Long Beach Auditorium.

Lee, who had been battling the flu all week, grabbed a 6-4 score from refree Larry Rozadilla and 4-2, 5-4 scores from judges Bobby Rings and Chuck Hassett, to win the 10-round event.

The decision was a tough one for Lee to come by, as the former California light-heavyweight champion, was coughing throughout the fight.

"I couldn't even breathe after the first round, and I knew it was going to be tough to win," said a tired Lee. "I feel I can beat Vasquez with no problem, but with just getting over the flu, it made it hard. I could have called off the fight, but promoters don't like that too much."

The decision got a bad reaction from the crowd who felt that Vasquez should have won. The reaction was because Vasquez dominated the late rounds of the fight but it was in the first six rounds that Lee won the fight.

The 10th round was also Lee's as the 27-year-old hammered Vasquez with solid rights.

Lee now is 26-6-2, while Vasquez's pro record fell to 31-10-3.

In the semi-main, David Diaz, from Long Beach, also bagged a unanimous decision, defeating Chichi Ontrevaras, from National City. The one-sided scores for Diaz read 6-0, 4-2 and 5-1 as the light-weight dominated the fight completely.

The fans at the auditorium were also treated to an exhibition fight between the world's No. 7 rated heavyweight, Mac Foster, who battled Henry Culpepper for three rounds.

Lonnny Travis, from Balwin Park, scored a unanimous decision over Dennis Mancino, from Los Angeles, in the only amateur prelim.

Williams leads Trobabes' win

Guard Gus Williams scored 23 points to lead the USC Frosh to a 72-56 win over UC Irvine Saturday night in the L.A. Sports Arena.

Williams also grabbed 12 rebounds.

It was the Trobabes' 12th victory in 13 games and fifth win in a row.

Tribe spurt sinks Ducks

STANFORD (UPI) — Stanford scored 12 consecutive points in the final two minutes and held on Saturday to defeat Oregon, 82-78, in the Pacific-8 conference.

The victory was the fourth in eight conference games for Stanford while Oregon, winless in the conference, took its sixth consecutive defeat.

The Ducks went ahead 73-66 with 3:35 to play before Stanford scored the next 12 points to pull it out. Claude Terry hit two field goals and Dave Frost added a field goal and four free throws in the rally.

before the second-half tip.

Washington State coach Bob Greenwood visited the Trojan room and spoke to Riley, and all of the coaches huddled back out on the floor, then laid it on the line to their players.

"I didn't say nothing the second half," Riley said. "I just kept my cool. I thought about it and decided that if I got into anything I might not play any more games for USC."

Riley, who with his 16 points in Friday's 85-68 win over Washington totalled 48 for the weekend, moved up two spots on the USC all-time scoring ladder to seventh place with 989 points, behind Bill Sharman with 1,066.

In coach Bob Boyd's revamped offense, Riley is back inside and far more effective, especially on the boards. He had 14 rebounds Saturday after 17 Friday, and he's even scoring from outside when he wants to.

"Every time I hit I felt like I had more confidence," he said.

Griffin gave him no more trouble after fouling out with 11:50 to play as several of the 5,030 Trojan rooters taunted him, "Morris . . .Morris."

Griffin also drew a technical from referee Rich Wader when he refused to raise his hand for the scorer.

Steward had been listed as six-feet even at UCLA Friday but the USC program had him at 5-11. Perhaps the Bruins cut him down to size, but he was unstoppable firing over Dan Anderson and only USC's early surge kept him at bay.

Mike Westra, a 6-10 sophomore, muscled in the Trojans' first three buckets and blocked six shots. "but," he said. "I got tired real quick."

Bruce Clark, the other tall man up front at 6-8, still isn't in good enough condition to help much — no points Saturday and only two Friday — but that indicates that USC can only get better from this point.

A vote against Winter Olympics

The Winter Olympics, which conclude today in Sapporo, Japan, were as big a dud as a damp firecracker, in my opinion.

From start to finish, the 11th version of refrigerated "peace on earth and goodwill to men" was a farce.

The farce started with the hardshelled octogenarian, Avery Brundage, who long has outlived any usefulness as head of the International Olympic Committee. It ended with a 20-year-old blonde from Downey, Jo Jo Starbuck.

In between was a goat, Austria's Karl Schranz, who was stripped of his Olympic Games' credentials by the Brundage bunch because of so-called "commercialism" which happens to be exercised also by every other man, woman and child who puts on skis, skates or snowshoes.

THE TRAGEDY must open with Brundage, an 84-year-old wealthy dictator who doesn't understand that those not within his means simply cannot afford to compete day and night, month after month, and year upon year without some sort of financial assistance.

Unfortunately, Brundage is an American. For the most part, American contestants receive little remuneration below-the-table. But when they do—and I don't consider an American's endorsement of a product wrong—the wearer of the red, white and blue are the first to receive the Avery wrist slap.

It's okay, in Brundage's mind, for a Russian to be state-supported, but it's very dirty for an American or an Austrian to make an endorsement.

THE CASE of Jo Jo Starbuck is a major one in point if you're considering the validity of the Winter Olympics.

The little lady had to be chagrined when she finished out of the money with Ken Shelley in figure skating pairs competition.

Nobody likes to lose a medal, but perhaps some in the audience figured Miss Starbuck's denunciations of the refrigerated judges' scoring was a simple case of sour grapes.

Hardly.

The Downey lass reported a Russian judge said she had performed "very well and you (and Shelley) will win in 1976."

"Listen, sweetie," remarked Jo Jo, "I'll be 24 by then, and I'm tired now."

Her day in Sapporo was one that Jo Jo had been aiming for during her entire life. To see it snuffed by a prejudiced board was completely unfair.

AUSTRIA'S SCHRANZ suffered the lowest below-the-Brundage-belt of all.

Karl was drummed from the Olympic ski slopes without a hearing or without a defense by Brundage's kangaroo court.

I think columnist Red Smith summed it beautifully with these words:

"Never has that clutch of overripe, self-appointed, self-perpetuating playground directors brought off a more transparent exercise in face-saving and never in all his years as Defender of the Faith has Avery Brundage, the noblest badger of them all, been in finer form."

Brundage is a self-appointed demigod. For what reason he has been allowed to exist in his current chair is a thing I'll never understand.

ARTHUR DALEY wondered why there should be a Winter Olympics!

Why, indeed?

This snow activity doesn't flow naturally from the original Olympics that ran in unbroken sequence for 1,170 years before being halted for more than 1,500 years, and then resumed by Baron Pierre de Coubertin in 1896.

Eleven European countries and a mere two from the American continent—Canada and the U.S.—have reaped medals. More than 90 per cent of the ski medals have been hogged by only five nations.

THE POLITICS connected with the Winter Olympics aren't one bit connected with a true spirit of athletics.

The Summer Games has a lifeboat.

It can draw upon some true amateurs. The same can't be said of the snow bunnies.

A guy or doll who leaps upwards of six-feet won't set the world afire with his or her endorsement of tennis shoes.

On the other hand, or in this case, foot, the skier or skater has a built-in advantage. That would be a captive audience which drools to the tools utilized by such as Jean-Claude Killy, "Prince Valiant" of the 1968 Winter Olympics.

Actually, why should there be a Winter Olympics?

The Summer Olympics features track and field. People from Tunisia, New Zealand, Kenya and Ethiopia have won gold medals in this area of sport.

Mexico, Denmark and Australia have spawned gold medalists, while Venezuela and Argentina have been honored with boxing champions. Turkey and Bulgaria have copped wrestling medals, Egypt and Iran weightlifting titles.

If you're from Russia, Switzerland, The Netherlands or Norway, you've got a good shot at a Winter Olympics medal. If you hail from somewhere else, you might as well get lost.

Who needs it?

who replaced McMurray, turned the ball over on an offensive foul. Cal State then went on top, 45-43, when Jones was called for goaltending on a shot by Leonard Gray.

The Aztecs stayed within one until the 49ers forced successive turnovers and first Ed Ratleff and then Gray scored. Again, Gray's basket was an official's decision as Barstow was called for goaltending.

McMurray returned at this juncture and scored seven of his game-high 25 points to keep the Aztecs close. The surge ended at 10:08 when the 6-7 center drew foul No. 5.

Chuck Terry made the two free throws, the first of eight the 49ers would hit in the next three minutes, and the 49ers were on the way to their 52nd consecutive home-court victory.

Jones gave the 49ers four of the eight free throws with his fourth and fifth fouls and left the game with 8:29 to go.

Barstow followed at 5:13 and Stephens made one of two tosses to give Cal State a 72-63 lead at that juncture.

The 49ers went to a delay game with 3:43 to play and rattled off a 9-1 spree (five points by Terry and four by Eric McWilliams) to blow the game open.

"We're still not playing well," Tarkanian said after willingly accepting the win. "We're not fluid. We just can't seem to get untracked."

There were some bright spots, however. Four of the five 49ers starters, for example, hit 48 per cent of their shots or higher. Ratleff was tops, pointwise, with 21. He made eight of 17 shots. Terry followed with 20 points (6-12) while Gray (6-12) and Stephens (5-8) each had 14 points.

Cerritos nips Mesa, 66-63

By PAUL ROGGIA

A steal by Larry Gallery with 57 seconds remaining led to three Cerritos free throws which turned out to be the margin of victory as the Falcons bested San Diego Mesa, 66-63, in a South Coast Conference game at Cerritos Saturday night.

Mesa, usually a zone-press team, confounded the Falcons with a seldom-seen man defense to take a 34-30 halftime lead.

Cerritos tied the game at 39 and took a six-point lead, 54-48, with nine minutes to go, only to have the visitors tie it up again at 63.

When it appeared Mesa was going for the final shot, Gallery stole the ball and the Falcons quickly called time.

Gallery took the game's last shot with four seconds left. He missed but was fouled and made one of two free throws. George Rodriguez was fouled on the in-bounds pass and made two free throws to ice the win.

Norm Maggard scored 17 points to pace the Falcons, while 6-10 Dave Feenstra pulled down 13 rebounds.

San Diego was led by Emlow Henry's 19 points.

HOW TO TAKE FUN OUT OF GOLF

By DICK HARRIS — Cartoons by WILEY SMITH

LESSON NO. 2—Golf is a sport to be enjoyed. It usually helps loosen you up to have a few "belts" before tee-off. Then, to keep that "buzz" on, carry a bottle in the bag or a few extra beers in the cart for a nip on each tee. And don't worry about the litter. The greenskeepers will take care of it.

The 'Canadien Curse' strikes down Kings, 6-5

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

MONTREAL — Club de Hockey has a wealth of legends. Their pictures and exploits transform the Forum from a giant arena to a gorgeous tribute to hockey greatness.

But no player holds the stature in Montreal of the famed Canadien Curse. It's as certain as today's sermon that a visiting team while leading or tied shall suffer a penalty in the game's final two minutes and Montreal leading or tied, shall not be penalized.

The latter occurred Saturday afternoon as referee Dave Newell overlooked a Canadien infraction in the closing minutes. The miscue cost the Kings a 5-5 tie as rookie Guy Lafleur's goal brought Montreal a 6-5 victory with 22 seconds remaining.

"We were beaten by Newell, not the Canadiens," fumed coach Fred Glover. "The way we came back, we deserved at least a point (a tie)."

Glover's post-game address was so punctuated with invectives, the Free Press wouldn't print it. Newell had missed calls all afternoon, so the abrasive language was warranted.

Earlier he had whistled off defenseman Bob Woytowich for hooking Yvan Cournoyer. Montreal scored on the ensuing powerplay to snap a 1-1 tie.

"I'd say the call on Bob was very questionable," continued Glover. "But the one he missed on Guy Lapointe was out and out ridiculous."

Setting the stage, the Kings had fought back gallantly three times from two-goal deficits in the final period.

They simply refused to die, though pulverized to the point of disorganization from Montreal's fierce checking. Ralph Backstrom, playing against his former teammates, found the net twice in a three-minute span for a 5-5 deadlock.

Ralph was off on another dash when Lapointe rammed a knee into his thigh at the Canadien blue line with 1:20 to play. The Forum crowd of 17,190 sat in disbelief when Newell failed to blow his whistle or raise his arm.

Montreal's fans are considered the most knowledgable, yet rabid, in hockoy. They had braved a day-long snowstorm, one that turned the French city into a giant Sno-Cone, to see the contest.

The Kings were still pounding their sticks against the boards in outrage when Lafleur drilled home a 10-footer to ruin Billy Smith's National Hockey League debut.

Backstrom, quiet and well-mannered, was flaming afterward. "It was right in the middle of the ice, obvious to everybody. I was already around him. How could Newell let it go?

"I played here 14 years and I know what this crowd can do to an official," Backstrom added. "Sure, it was late in a tight game, but he's got to have the guts to call a penalty. He doesn't."

Confronted, Newell said, "I didn't see it."

The referee's job is to watch the puck at all times. Maybe he should trade in his striped shirt for a seeing-eye dog and a white cane.

Though beaten, Smith's stamina and fortitude were amazing. The 21-year-old was fired upon close to 70 times. Only 48 of those reached him. At least a dozen missed the posts by a whisker or nearly took his head off.

His defensemen stopped an additional 10 with their bodies, but were also responsible for most of Montreal success at the net. Paul Curtis allowed Cournoyer to slip between he and Smith and convert a perfect Frank Mahovlich pass for the game's first goal.

most every other shot," said Miller, who rarely gets upset. "If it wasn't a camera clicking in my backswing, it was some guy who was bombed yelling at Sinatra, who was coming up the fairway behind me."

Miller said he was happy to shoot 71 "under the circumstances." He said he likes large galleries, "but the way people acted out here today upset me. Palmer can grin and bear it, but I cant."

It took a super finish for Miller to stay in contention. He went out in 38, then closed with birdies on the last three holes, sinking putts of 7 and 12 feet, then misreading a 10-foot eagle putt on the 18th hole.

Palmer probably was thinking eagle, too, on the short 18th. But he hit his 3-wood second shot poorly and then wedged his third shot 18 feet past the cup and missed the putt.

The king of the desert, a four-time winner here, probably realizes that the missed opportunity on the 18th, plus his four penalty strokes Friday, are likely to keep him from catching Heard.

Heard indicated he would play the par-45 cautious today, and that may be a mistake. Sometimes it isn't easy to protect a lead, especially with a man like Palmer in contention.

"If I play fairly good, I should make four birds tomorrow," said the 24-year-old Visalia native. "I think 68 will be good enough to win."

Heard had 16 pars and two birds at Bermuda Dunes Saturday. He holed 3 and 20-foot putts for his birds and never once came close to a bogey. He hit 17 greens in regulation.

"I consider it a good break to have played before only 100 people, most of whom were my friends," said Heard.

Rosburg shot 70 at La Quinta, and he was happy. "I was lucky to make par on the first two holes and I had to putt great to keep from getting some bogies," he admitted.

A non-winner on the tour since 1961, Rosburg returns to the course today where he shot 66 in the first round. If he does it again, and Heard duplicates his third-round 69 at Indian Wells, then Rosburg will have his long-awaited title.

"I like the position I'm in," said Rosburg.

Wadkins carded a 69 at La Quinta, the best round in four days on that course, but he may find the pressure too much today. He will be in a threesome with Heard and Palmer.

"I've played with Palmer six times as an amateur and twice as a pro," said the youngster who attended Wake Forest on a Palmer scholarship. "I'm going to play aggressive today. I'm driving the ball good and I think I can birdie the par-5."

Fairway's the safest place to be

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Vice-president Spiro Agnew and his playing partners—Frank Sinatra, Doug Sanders and Bob Hope—are greeted with "placards" at first tee Saturday at Bob Hope Desert Classic at Palm Springs. Agnew, who once plunked Sanders on the head with a tee shot, this time drove down the middle of the fairway.

Agnew shoots 'about 92'

Whew! Spiro hits straight

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

PALM SPRINGS — "You have to have faith in Greeks," laughed Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder, who usually doesn't let sentiment cloud his business acumen.

The world's most famous oddsmaker had given 100-1 odds that Spiro Agnew, for the first time in three years, would not hit a spectator with his drive off the first tee in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Agnew didn't even come close. In fact, the vice president survived a prank by Bob Hope and then uncorked a 220-yard drive that split the fairway. Thousands of fans watching Spiro heaved a collective sigh of relief.

Hope had put a plastic, exploding ball on the tee that Agnew hit first. The vice-president learned of the chicanery earlier and went along with it.

It was the second shot, not the first, that enabled everyone to have a fun time, however. When Agnew drove it long and straight, the pressure was off and the gags began. They lasted for five hours.

Hope, never one to miss a laugh, had arranged for printed signs to accompany the vice-president off the first tee. Hope's scriptwriters couldn't have done better.

"Agnew helped build our hospital ... and fill it," said one placard. "We love you Spiro — Lloyds's of London," said another. "Try the fairway, you'll like it," stated a third.

Francis Sinatra, a retired singer, and Doug Sanders, an old pro, were the fearsome foursome, but they didn't get near the attention that Hope and Agnew did.

According to Sanders, the vice-president shot "about 92." Agnew birdied the 14th hole, canning a 35-foot putt, and had four pars.

The reason there was no official score was that he didn't play all the shots where they landed. The secret service agents, who served as caddies, wouldn't allow him to go past certain roped off areas.

For the most part, Agnew played conservative and to the right. After all that's his political posture.

"Bad shots don't bother him," said Hope, who came into the press tent to tell about the round but couldn't prevent himself from cracking jokes.

"Sinatra played pretty well, too, considering it was daytime," quipped the tournament sponsor.

And what about Hope's game?

"I have a good short game, but unfortunately, it's off the tee," said the comedian. "I could play better, but I only get to golf once a day."

Hope is a 12-handicapper out of Lakeside.

It really wasn't one of Bob's better rounds. He sliced the ball several times, including off the first tee. He took a 'milligan' and was asked to justify it.

"It's my tournament, isn't it," he replied.

Marquette win streak is at 19

Combined News Services

Marquette University, firmly entrenched as the nation's second-ranked college basketball team, continues to wait quietly in the wings for a downfall by UCLA.

The Warriors increased this season's winning streak to 19 games Saturday night, overpowering Air Force, 79-56.

Marquette's offense was perfect for the first eight minutes of the contest, as the Warriors sank the first nine shots they took from the field and their first five free throws. When Allie McGuire finally broke the string with 12:04 left in the half, Marquette had a 23-6 lead.

Jim Chones led a balanced scoring parade for the Warriors, clicking for 24 points.

Three powerhouses from the South Atlantic —North Carolina, South Carolina and Maryland — also won easily Saturday.

North Carolina, the country's No. 3 team, established a new scoring record in the 14th annual North-South Doubleheader, thrashing Georgia Tech, 118-73.

Kevin Joyce pumped in 28 points to spark sixth-ranked South Carolina past Davidson, 86-71, while Tom McMillen's 27 points led Maryland past Long Island, 78-60.

Eastern standout Pennsylvania handed Cornell its fourth successive loss, scoring a 98-61 win over the Big Red.

Luke Witte's rebound basket with 55 seconds remaining gave Ohio State a 64-62 victory over Purdue and assured at least a share of the Big Ten title. In other conference games, Michigan routed Illinois, 105-83; Michigan State dumped Iowa, 100-91; Indiana tipped Wisconsin in overtime, 84-76, and Minnesota defeated Northwestern, 78-55.

Highly-touted Brigham Young was upset by Arizona State, 99-95.

LAKER GAME ON TV TODAY

The Lakers, their eight-game winning streak snapped by Boston Friday night, will try to regroup forces today in a nationally-televised game against the Baltimore Bullets. Tip-off is 11 a.m. on channel 7, KABC.

Wilt Chamberlain, the Lakers' 7-foot-1 center in his 11th NBA season, needs 45 points to surpass the 30,000-point career milestone.

A week ago at the Forum, the Lakers routed Baltimore, 151-127.

Pacific riddles Diablos, 113-95

STOCKTON (UPI) — John Gianelli and Jim McCargo combined for 52 points Saturday night to lead University of Pacific to a 113-95 Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. win over Cal State Los Angeles.

Gianelli, a 6-foot-10 center, tallied 26 points and pulled in 27 rebounds. McCargo, a 6-foot-5 forward, matched his teammate's points and grabbed 15 rebounds.

Michael Jackson poured in 40 points for the Diablos.

It was the 37th consecutive Tiger win in the Stockton Civic Auditorium.

UOP is now 6-2 in the league and tied for first place with Cal State Long Beach.

Olympics belonged to Ard--and Avery

Dutchman flew the highest

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Ard Schenk, the Flying Dutchman, and Galina Kulakova, a 29-year-old Soviet school teacher, emerged as the individual standouts of the 11th Winter Olympic Games, which end today.

But credit Avery Brundage with the longest field goal. He booted Austria's Karl Schranz out of the Olympic Village all the way back to Vienna—10,972 miles by actual measurement. It's a new Olympic record.

Here are the high and low spots of these controversy-marked ice and snow championships in frigid but immaculately manicured Sapporo:

Top Male Performance: Ard Schenk, winner of the 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 meters speed racing—the first sweep since Hjalmar Anderson of Norway did it in 1952.

Top Female Performance: Galina Kulakova, winner of the gold medals in Nordic skiing—5-kilometer, 10-kilometer and relay.

Prettiest Female Competitor: Janet Lynn of Rockford, Ill., U.S. figure skater, 108 pounds of blonde, dimpled charm.

Handsomest Male Competitor: Ard Schenk. Female Japanese interpreters wanted to have him bottled.

Biggest Upset: Marie-Therese Nadig of Switzerland over Austria's World Cup champion, Annemarie Proell, in the women's downhill and giant slalom ski races.

Greatest Team Improvement: East Germany, a country of 17 million, battling the Soviet Union, the sprawling giant of 230 million, for medal honors.

Biggest Disappointment: U.S. figure skating. Only Janet Lynn's bronze medal. A shutout for the men for the first time since 1936.

Major U.S. Surprise: Barbara Ann Cochran's victory in the women's slalom.

Major U.S. Single Fall-down: failure of either Anne Henning or Dianne Holum to take a gold in the 1,000 meter free skating. The world record-setter, Henning, had to settle for a bronze.

Goofiest Sport: The luge. Imagine sliding down a hill, feet first and flat on your back at nearly 80 mph.

Biggest Mismatch: Suzy Chaffe, 25 and 122 pounds, vs. Avery Brundage, 84 and 200 pounds, in Suzy's one-woman campaign to have the IOC restructured and democratized.

Greatest Injustice: The low markings of the judges against Mark and Melissa Militano of Dix Hills, N.Y., just because the New York teenagers refused to skate in the formal straight-jacket.

Most Unfair Competition: Figure skating. The judges are the most politically motivated and the most tradition-steeped in all sports.

Strongest Quote: Austrian Karl Schranz on Avery Brundage: "He's like a Roman emperor. Thumbs down and you're dead."

Greatest Single Thrill: The victory of Japan's Yukio Kasaya leading the 1-2-3 sweep by Japan in the 70-meter ski jump. All nations rejoiced that the Japanese, winning their first gold in the Winter Games, should be thus rewarded for staging such an excellent and hospitable Olympics.

Biggest Controversy: Karl Schranz' ejection from the Games for permitting himself to be photographed for commercial purposes. The Austrian emerged as an international hero.

The Most Long-Suffering: All the mothers of the competitors, Bless them. There's not a decent fingernail left in the lot.

DELIGHT & DESPAIR

OPPOSITE ENDS of Winter Olympic spectrum are offered in this tableau. Sweet success is etched on face of Mrs. Stein Baas-Kaiser of The Netherlands after her record setting victory in women's 3,000-meters. But for Swedish skier Meeri Bodelid disappointing finish in cross country event brought only hanging head and tears.

WINTER OLYMPICS

six times, and I've always been in favor of the Czechs, being they were the underdogs and what-not. But in this particular game we had to be with the Russians to get us a silver. I feel we've accomplished as much here as the 1960 team that won the gold medal."

The eight medals earned by the U.S. in this year's games breaks their previous record of seven set at Grenoble, but the hockey medal was the first achieved by the U.S. male athletes at Sapporo.

The other gold medal handed out on the final day went to the Soviet Union's men's cross-country skiing team, which won when Vyacheslav Vedenin, the 30-kilometer gold medalist, came from behind in the last few hundred meters.

Ochoa beat Italian cousins Gustavo and Rolando Thoeni in pulling his Alpine surprise.

Ochoa, one-third of the Spanish Winter Olympic team — the other two members also are Alpine skiers — took the lead after the first run with a time of 55.36 seconds and kept it when he completed the second run in 53.91 for a total time of 1:49.27.

Gustavo Thoeni, winner of the giant slalom who was eighth after the first run in 56.69, took the silver medal when he whipped down the course in the fastest time of the day, 53.59, for a 1:50.28 total.

Rolando Thoeni placed third in 1:50.30.

The Soviet Union cross-country relay team earned its gold with a time of 2:04.47.49 for the 40 kilometers, or 24.8 miles. Norway was second in 2:04.57.06 and the bronze medal went to Switzerland in 2:07.00.06.

It was a fantastic triumph for the Russians and Vedenin, who was trailing Norway's anchorman, John Harviken by more than a minute as they started the last leg.

Vedenin's come-from-behind victory was a big disappointment to Norway, which was the defending Olympic champion.

The United States finished 11th.

Volleyball win for Hangars

The Long Beach Hangars girls volleyball team won 16 consecutive games Saturday to capture the championship of the U.S. Volleyball Assn. tournament at Millikan High.

Flo Hyman and Donna Hess led the Hangars to their final win over San Diego, 15-3, 15-8.

Rosewall, Laver in net finals

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Rod Laver defeated Tom Okker, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, Saturday night to enter the finals of the U.S. Professional Indoor Tennis Championships here today.

Top-seeded Ken Rosewall beat Arthur Ashe, 2-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-2, in the other semi-final earlier, setting up an all-Australian final.

Ashe, and Bob Lutz, former U.S. Davis Cup teammates, qualified to meet Australians John Newcombe and Tony Roche in the doubles final by beating Okker and Marty Reissen, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6. Ashe and Lutz won the decisive tie-breaker game, seven points to two.

UCLA scores ninth rugby win

The UCLA rugby team ran ints 1972 record to nine wins without a loss Saturday by beating visiting University of British Columbia 22-7 at Westwood.

High scorer for UCLA was Bruce Barners, who scored on three penalty kicks for nine points and made a two-point conversion in the annual UCLA-UBC match at the UCLA campus.

THE BIGGEST SELLING SMALL CAR IN EUROPE VS. THE BIGGEST SELLING SMALL CAR IN AMERICA.

This year, millions of Americans will go out to buy their very first small car.

Many will find themselves confused as to which small car is best.

Which is why we think it might be helpful for you to know that in Europe, where they've been comparing small cars for three generations, they buy more Fiats than anything else.

Volkswagens included.

One of the big reasons for this is the Fiat 128, which we're bringing to America for the first time this year.

OUR PERFORMANCE VERSUS THEIR PERFORMANCE.

The most obvious difference between the Fiat 128 and the Volkswagen Super Beetle is the engine.

Ours is in front—theirs is in back. We have front wheel drive—they have rear wheel drive.

Front wheel drive gives you better handling because the wheels that are moving the car are also the wheels that are turning the car.

Front wheel drive also gives you better traction on ice and snow. (As proof, last year, the Fiat 128 won the Canadian Winter Rally, which is run over ice and snow the likes of which we hardly ever see in the States.)

You'll also notice, if you glance at the chart on the right, that under passing conditions the Fiat accelerates faster than the Volkswagen. (If you've ever passed a giant truck on a highway, you know how important that is.)

For instance, the Fiat 128—which has self-adjusting front disc brakes—can bring you to a complete stop in a shorter distance than the Volkswagen, which does not have disc brakes.

Secondly, the Fiat 128 has rack and pinion steering, which is a more positive kind of steering system generally found on such cars as Ferraris, Porsches, and Jaguars. The Volkswagen doesn't.

And lastly, the Fiat comes with radial tires; the Volkswagen doesn't.

OUR ROOM VERSUS THEIR ROOM.

The trouble with most of the small cars around is that while they help solve the serious problem of space on the road, they create a serious problem of space inside the car.

And while the Volkswagen is far from the worst offender in this area, it still doesn't give you anywhere near the amount of space you get in the Fiat 128.

As you can see on the measurement chart, the Fiat 128 is a full 10 inches shorter on the outside than the Volkswagen. Yet it has more room on the inside than an Oldsmobile Cutlass, let alone the Volkswagen.

Compared to the Super Beetle, it's wider in front, wider in back, and 5 inches wider between the front and back seat. Which should be good news for your knees.

And in the trunk of the Fiat 128, where lack of room is taken for granted in small cars, you'll find 13 cubic feet of room. In the Volkswagen you'll find 9.2.

OUR COST VERSUS THEIR COST.

Aside from the fact that the Fiat 128 costs $167 less than the Super Beetle, there's another cost advantage we're rather proud of.

According to tests run by the North American Testing Company, the Fiat 128 gets better gas mileage than the Super Beetle.

Now we don't for one minute expect that, even in the face of all the aforementioned evidence, you will rush out and buy a Fiat. All we suggest is that you take the time to look at a Fiat.

Recently, the president of Volkswagen of America was quoted as saying that 42% of all the people who buy Volkswagens have never even looked at another kind of car.

And we think that people who don't look before they buy never know what they've missed. FIAT

Mando, Carrasco in encore of 'non-fight'

The picture-book boxer with the Hollywood star profile gets another chance at beating the bar room brawler Friday night following the "fight that has never been held."

Pedro Carrasco, the handsome Spanish matador, won a Nov. 5 fight last year in Madrid over youthful brawler Ramos of Long Beach when the local referee disqualified the Californian for low blows. The news media of Spain blasted the decision and the World Boxing Council subsequently ordered another fight for the WBC world lightweight title.

Their meeting at the Los Angeles Sports Arena over 15 rounds will determine the king of the class. The WBC said this bout should be fought "as if the other fight had never been held." In fact, the earlier bout goes into the record books as "no decision" for each fighter.

Carrasco, in the earlier fight, was badly beaten when he was awarded the fight by referee's decision. The official record shows that the Spanish fighter hit the deck four times. Ramos' manager Jackie McCoy said it was five times. Matchmaker Don Chargin says six.

In any case, it was a stunning performance by the eventual loser. Ramos, because Carrasco has lost only one fight, a decision, in 125 matches. In fact, the handsome matador actually his hobby when not fighting — hasn't got a scratch on him. His slender, dark good looks drew comment about a movie contract when he landed in Southern California.

"I'm going into this fight with a lot of confidence," says Ramos. "That's because I'm in much better shape for this fight. My training has gone very well and I feel great."

Asked if he was surprised at the earlier decision, Ramos smiled and said, "I didn't know what was happening. It happened so fast."

Mando said the only reason he took the bout was "I had a lot of bills to pay and I thought I could make a little money. That was the only reason for fighting him in Spain."

Obviously, he said he was glad the rematch was in his backyard, so to speak.

Ramos, 23, is the youngest man ever to win the world lightweight title. He captured it three years ago to the day of his coming bout, Feb. 18, 1969, when he defeated Teo Cruz.

Mando has kayoed 20 and is 35-4. Carrasco has flattened 71 of his 125 opponents.

Ramos will receive $53,000 and Carrasco $60,000.

Floyd's not ready to tackle Frazier

NEW YORK (UPI) — While a near capacity throng screamed "Floyd, Floyd, Floyd" as the tenth and final round began Friday night, heavyweight champion Joe Frazier left his ringside seat, hurrying for an exit.

In the ring, Floyd Patterson was dutifully winning the last stages of his bout with Oscar Bonavena, and winning them big. He wasn't hurting the Argentine at all, but it looked good—and Oscar was still Oscar, flailing away and never finding the suspected china chin of Floyd.

Frazier had seen enough. So had most ring experts. And so had Floyd himself.

The former two-time heavyweight king, sagacious at 37, admitted he was not yet ready to challenge Frazier.

Obviously, Bonavena, who came closer than any man to defeating Frazier, is not ready either.

Promotional hopes had been that either Floyd or Oscar, by scoring an impressive win, could legitimately get a title shot. Hopefully, Floyd, although he went in the underdog, would win, and the strange admiration New York fans have for him would insure a solid gate draw with Frazier.

But Floyd and Floyd's followers were not deceived. His fans were delighted with his victory, but admitted that he would have no chance against Frazier at this time—and time is one thing that is beginning to toll on Patterson. His legs, his fists, his power are 37 years old, and so is the wise head that dictates he not risk the ring with the brutal head-on charge of Frazier.

So who fights whom?

Patterson's unimpressive performance moved nobody up, but it did accentuate the importance of young George Foreman.

Foreman is a long way from being ready for Joe, but it will make his next bout vital for his long range plans. The likely opponent would appear to be Jerry Quarry.

Frazier, his handlers say, wants to fight soon, and they have a couple of people in mind. The last time they said that they came up with Terry Daniels.

Bruins, Fresno split twinbill

FRESNO (UPI) — Fresno State College and UCLA split a baseball doubleheader Saturday, the Bulldogs winning the opener, 4-3, and the Bruins taking the seven-inning nightcap, 11-0.

UCLA pitcher Gary Robsen had a no-hitter going for 6 2-3 innings of the short nightcap before Bulldog first baseman Larry Shepherd broke it up with a single to left.

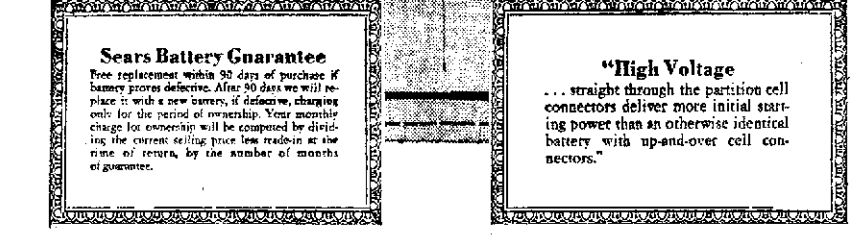

Aztecs defeated by Valley State power

NORTHRIDGE (UPI) — Catcher Pat Russell hit a grand slam home run in the first game and a three-run homer in the second to power Valley State to a pair of baseball wins Saturday over San Diego State.

Valley won the first contest 12-8, the second 10-4.

Broncos win third

SANTA CLARA (UPI) — Santa Clara collected its third successive victory in the young baseball season Saturday, defeating UC-Davis 6-1, 5-4 in a doubleheader.

Baseball just around corner

NEW YORK (AP) — Three new managers, including Bill Virdon of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, and an unusual number of traded stars start heading for Florida, Arizona and California this week as major league baseball spring training camps begin to open.

The New York Mets will have the first players on hand, with pitchers and catchers scheduled to report to Manager Gil Hodges at St. Petersburg, Fla., Tuesday. Virdon, replacing Danny Murtaugh, will meet the advance contingent of his Pirates just one day later at Bradenton, Fla.

Ken Aspromonte, Cleveland's new manager, and Del Rice, the new field boss of the trouble-plagued Angels, both will greet their first arrivals Feb. 24. The Indians will train in Tucson, Ariz., the Angels in Holtville, and Palm Springs.

Both the Indians and Angels were among the teams involved in major off-season trades. The Indians traded pitcher Sam McDowell to the San Francisco Giants for pitcher Gaylord Perry and acquired controversial outfielder Alex Johnson from California. The Angels also traded another star away, sending shortstop Jim Fregosi to the Mets.

Other stars joining new clubs include Frank Robinson, traded by Baltimore to the Dodgers; Richie Allen, shipped by the Dodgers to the Chicago White Sox; first baseman Lee May, acquired by Houston from Cincinnati, and outfielder Rick Monday, dispatched by Oakland to the Chicago Cubs for pitcher Ken Holtzman.

One entire team also is changing uniforms, for every holdover member of the Washington Senators will be working for the new Texas Rangers when the club opens its Pompano Beach, Fla., training quarters to pitchers and catchers Thursday.

The Pirates, Atlanta and Chicago White Sox have the earliest reporting date for veteran infielders and outfielders, Feb. 21. The latest is March 1, for Montreal, St. Louis, Milwaukee and the Angels.

Here are the clubs, their training sites and reporting dates for rookies and veterans:

Vike track coach is optimistic

By CHARLIE MACK
Staff Writer

When the Long Beach City College track team opens its season Tuesday, new head coach Don Mulligan will welcome back several returnees from last year's Viking squad.

There will one conspicuous absentee when the Vikes entertain San Diego City College at 2:30. Fred Batiste, the Metropolitan Conference field performer of the year last season, will miss the first few meets as he is competing for Lute Olson's basketball team.

A virtual one-man squad, Batiste is being counted on by Mulligan to compete in the following events: 440-yard dash, 220-yard dash, high jump, long jump, triple jump and mile relay.

Mulligan calls the Poly sophomore "the most talented City College track athlete since Dee Andrews."

Mulligan, who is assisted by former LBCC head man Joe Lanning, looks for the Vikings to be strong during their dual-meet season.

"We should have a good dual-meet team," he says. "We're deep in every event except the high jump. I think Bakersfield and Pasadena are going to be the teams to beat in the dual meets, but it's possible we can give them a good run."

Besides Batiste, Mulligan returns a promising group of distance runners from his cross-country team that finished second in the Metro this fall.

Heading the parade is sophomore Glenn Harmatz. Harmatz has run 4:13.9 in the mile and has toured the half mile in 1:53.6.

The real boost may come from Larry Greer. As a high school junior, Greer led the nation with best times in the three mile (14:11.4), six mile (30:54.0) and 10,000 meters (31:53.0).

Other performers Mulligan is counting on heavily are Lou Lauriano in the 440 and mile relay, Ron Sasser in the three mile and John Schmickrath, also in the three mile.

Rockets, Mary Star clash for division title today

By CHUCK MEDICK

The Long Beach Rockets and Mary Star of San Pedro battle it out today at 1:30 p.m. for the championship of the home club division of the Southern California semipro baseball league.

Mary Star earned the spot when Max Anderson tossed a near perfect game last Sunday to shut out the Crenshaw Pros, 3-0.

Manager Jack Graham of the Rockets will start with Don Rowe on the mound, followed by Mike Coble in the fourth and Ray Brown in the seventh.

Gene Dusan, property of the Boston Red Sox, will be behind the plate for the Rockets. Don Anderson will be at first, Ed Crosby at second, Greg Stitzinger at short and either Rand Rasmussen or Buddy Pritchard at third.

Besides Anderson, Mary Star has Jack Peres, a very fine hurler, and manager Paul Zuback is undecided as to who will start. But Greg Hill will catch, Don Clark will be at first, Chico Vaughn will be at second to name just a few. Clark, the property of the Cleveland Indians, is hitting .375 for the season. The outfield is composed of three of the fastest players in Southern California. Bobby Brooks is in left, Johnny Cain in center and Ron Hendricks in right.

Doctor: Eunuchs possible in sport

NEW YORK (UPI) — Can a star professional or amateur athlete be or become a eunuch?

Yes, according to a prominent sports physician, if that athlete is a victim of steroid abuse.

Speaking to the fifth annual Symposium on the Medical Aspects of Sport, Dr. Max M. Novich, who has served as physician for U.S. Olympic and Maccabiah game teams, declared that the abuse of all drugs by athletes has become a world-wide problem, and that the immature athlete is unaware and uninformed of the possible drastic side effects of drug usage when it is either unsupervised or over-indulged.

The steroid drugs, Dr. Novich told the symposium sponsored by the Medical Society of the State of New York, are dangerous in that adverse reactions can strike at the reproductive system.

Steroids are used by athletes desiring to gain weight and strength, and are consumed by football players and weight lifters in particular.

Prolonged or heavy usage of steroids can lead to depressed testosterance (sperm production) which may not start up again after drug use is discontinued. The decreased libido contributes to increased eating, the doctor observed.

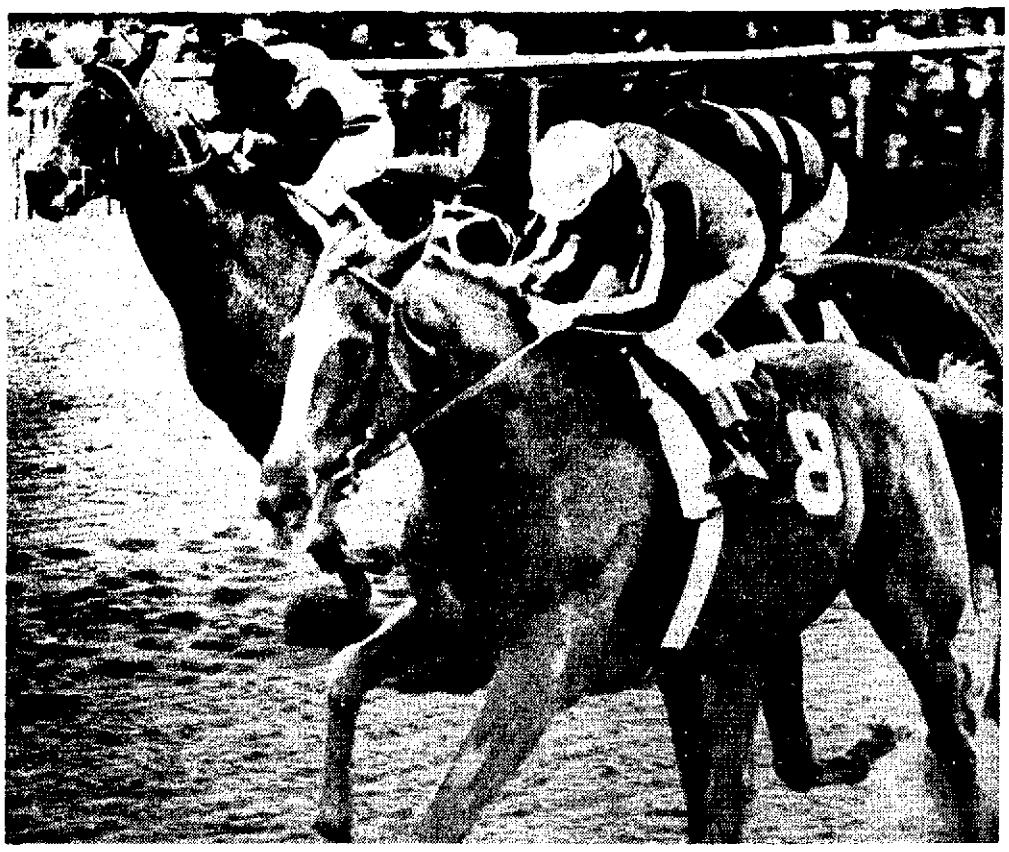

"Are we now creating among our athletes a new kind of eunuch peculiar to the 20th century?" Dr. Novich asked. "History is replete with information about very large and strong men who were used as body guards and custodians of harems during the heyday of Islam who were in fact eunuchs. Are not the athletes who take this drug to put on weight and become larger and who develop aspermia, testicular shrinkage, decreased libido and infertility similar to eunuchs of yesteryear? For years, farmers have been castrating roosters into capons, first by instruments and presently by injection in order to develop fuller and sweeter tasting breast meat. Bulls are castrated surgically to become steers for better meat producing cattle. I believe these implications merit some scientific investigation."

That professional athletes have been taking drugs has long been known to medical men, Dr. Novich contended. The administration of such drugs has been haphazard, left to non-medical men such as trainers and coaches and "many unconscionable coaches and trainers and other athletic handlers who hand out harmful drugs to their athletes without any understanding of the physiological responses that result from its use," the doctor charged.

Professional football players have a high regard for amphetamines, the doctor claimed. "Their regard was so high for this drug that they would take it without checking into its name or dosage . . .they are so hopped up after a game that they have to be brought down with liquor or an oral depressant. My personal opinion about amphetamines is that it makes the football player more vicious then he is already. It also may make him less aware of pain," he reported.

Continuing his analysis of the problems Novich spoke of the use of marijuana.

"Marijuana is used by athletes no more or less than in the general population. Smoking pot after a game is frequently done to relax tired, bruised, elated or even depressed players. In low doses it resembles the disinhibitory effects of alcohol . . .in high doses it is certainly hallucinogenic. In all my experiences with athletes, I have never seen this drug used before a game. Use of it can lead to altered sense of space and time. Mood, judgment and functional ability can also be altered as well as impairment of coordination . . .marijuana in athletes can lead to hard drugs like heroin, especially when the athlete is going downhill."

UNCONSCIOUS KNOCKS 'EM OUT

Bill Shoemaker urges Unconscious through the final yards to victory in the $130,300 Strub Stakes at Santa Anita Saturday. To rear is Triple Bend, second; with Good Counsel third.

ple Bend got right up alongside of me, but that big horse of mine is tough and hung in there."

Don Pierce, aboard Triple Bend, claimed his colt "ran a super race, but we just couldn't get by Shoemaker. When Shoe and I moved together, neither one of us had set our horses down yet. Triple Bend tried, but we just couldn't get there."

"Good Counsel ran a big race," commented rider Angel Cordero, "but the two leaders came out a little in the stretch and I had to change my course."

Canty said Unconscious definitely would run in the Santa Anita Handicap March 11.

"I'm interested to see how my big baby shapes up against Cougar II," smiled the Irishman. "I think after today's race we definitely have some chance against Cougar."

Unconscious' ninth win in 21 races netted him $85,300. His career winnings now total $281,000.

Happy owner Arthur A. Seeligson was asked how Unconscious arrived at his name.

"When you can't lose at anything—poker, craps, golf or whatever—you're unconscious," grinned Seeligson. "That's what I thought of this colt the minute I set eyes on him.

Ten other four-year-olds will agree that Unconscious lived up to his name Saturday afternoon.

TRACK TOO SLIPPERY, RACES OFF

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) Hazardous track conditions, caused by thawing of the ground, forced cancellation of the last seven of nine scheduled races at Latonia Race Course Saturday.

Track stewards and jockeys decided to halt racing after the second race. One rider was thrown from his thoroughbred in the first race but was not badly hurt.

WHA tabs NHL stars in 1st draft

National Hockey League stars Pit Martin, Gerry Cheevers, Mickey Redmond, and Roger Crozier were among players selected Saturday as the World Hockey Assn. went through the second phase of its draft.

The fledgling organization previously had permitted its 12 teams to place on a select list four players who would be untouchable to the others.

A list of the first 10 rounds was announced without the order, but six teams volunteered their first selections. Four of the six were veteran pros and only one was a true raw amateur.

Canada horse, jockey score

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — Speedy Zephyr, a Canadian horse ridden by a Canadian jockey, outran even-money favorite Mr. Pow Wow in the mud Saturday to capture the $72,600 Canadian Turf Handicap at Gulfstream Park.

Ron Turcotte urged the 4-year-old son of Restless Wind to an immediate lead and was in command from the gate to the wire, winning by a length while the heavily backed Mr. Pow Wow trudged home third.

Seven horses from the original field of 16 were scratched after the race was shifted to Gulfstream"s sloppy dirt track as the rain-soaked turf was considered too dangerous.

Speedy Zephyr, a 7-1 shot, paid $17.20, $7 and $3.60 to a crowd of 21,611, largest of the current Gulfstream meeting. Knight Counter, a 15-1 outsider ran second and returned $11.60 and $5. Mr. Pow Wow paid $2.80 to show.

Speedy Zephyr ran the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:43 and 3-5. Charles Rathgeb's horse won four stakes races in 1971, including the $70,000 Manitoba Derby. Saturday's earnings of $43,560 boosted Speedy Zephyr's winnings to more than $144,000 for the past two years.

Knight Counter with Ken Knapp riding earned $14,520 and Mr. Pow Wow with Jacinto Vasquez up, made $7,260.

Tia Pan finished fourth followed by Ejemplo, Roman Scout, Rough Place, No No Billy and Dot Ed' Pouesky. No No Billy was the crowd's second choice at 5-1.

Pro Bidder wins another

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Pro Bidder, rushing to his fifth consecutive victory, took the lead entering the stretch and won the featured $25,000-added Native Dancer Handicap at Bowie Race Course Saturday.

Winning by two lengths over Edward P. Shamy's Joy's Fella, Pro Bidder became one of the favorites for the $100,000-added John B. Campbell Handicap Feb. 26.

Juckey George Cusimano held the Dee-Gee Stables' horse on the rail just behind the leader for the first half mile, then took command to finish the six furlongs in 1:10 2-5 and pay $5.40, $3.80 and $2.40.

Joy's Fella returned $5.80 and $3.40, while Jammrae Stable's Tsunami, which took an early lead in its first stakes effort, held $2.60 to show.

9-2 shot wins Bayou Handicap

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — French Settler stayed near the front all the way then surged ahead for a one-length victory in the $15,000-added Bayou Handicap at the New Orleans Fair Grounds Saturday.

The winning time for the mile and 40-yard race was 1:42 3-5 and French Settler paid $11.60, $5.20 and $3.00. Boxin' Miss was $6.00 and $4.00 to place and Amber Melody $2.80 to show.

49ers split two

Cal State Long Beach rode a four-hitter by Mark Fishback to a 3-2 victory over Cal State Fullerton and a split of a doubleheader with the Titans Saturday at the 49er field.

CSLB's leaky fielding produced seven errors in the first game, enabling the Titans to take a 6-4 win.

Glen Berberet went three for seven with two RBI and Billy Barker posted two hits in seven trips, accounting for three RBI in the two games.

DeHaven, Massick to coach stars

George Massick of St. John Bosco High in Bellflower and Dick DeHaven of Millikan will coach the South in the fifth Kiwanis

DeHAVEN MASSICK

605 All Star football game, Friday night, July 10, at Cerritos College.

The South, which was bolstered for the first time by the addition of athletes from the six Long Beach schools last summer, hopes to match its 38-34 victory last July which snapped a three-game North winning streak.

Massick, 35, is a graduate of Lynwood High, Compton College and Whittier College. He has been as St. John Bosco the last five years, the past two as head coach.

DeHaven, 33, has been in the Long Beach school system 11 years and has coached at Jordan and Millikan high schools. He became head coach at Millikan in 1970 and has a 8-8-2 record since then.

THE PRUNTER, under a smooth ride, attended the early pace with little need of urging, drew out to a commanding lead in midstretch and held VIOLONOR safe in the final stages. The latter was slow to find an even stride while on the inside, moved out to rally around horses on the final turn and closed steadily in the final furlong. MAGIC HOPE II raced close up from the outside, had his best bid on the final turn and weakened late. HILL RUN raced within easy striking distance then lacked a closing kick. GREEK WATERS shared the early lead and tired. MY LITTLE MAN took up and broke stride early. WHITTINGHAM was dull. GAUCHO STAR hit the rail and lost his best action on the far turn.

UNCONSCIOUS broke alertly then was taken in hand early while racing between horses, moved nearer the pacemaker on the far turn when saving as much trouble as possible, rallied after settling into the upper stretch, got the lead near the furlong pole and responded late to hold TRIPLE BEND safe in a hard drive. The latter broke cleanly to be unhurried early, caught his best stride while in heavy traffic and being poched at the half mile pole, got clear on the outside into the stretch, rallied to move up and challenge the winner but could not get by despite his determination. GOOD COUNSEL lacked early speed, rallied from the outside leaving the five sixteenth pole and lost much of his punch in the final sixteenth. WING OUT rallied hard when approaching the far turn to manage a slim lead on the final turn then weakened in the drive from along the inside. VEGAS VIC lacked early speed and could make little impact. AUTOBIOGRAPHY had a clear path on the outside but failed to muster a rally. HIS MAJESTY attempted to tug inward early from the outside and weakened midway. INVESTED POWER went to a long lead midway on the backstretch and faded when headed. Stripers breaking tackle at Havasu

Striped bass are breaking up tackle for anglers at Lake Havasu and, at this writing, there is a new leader in the derby currently being conducted by the Lake Havasu City Marina.

Howard Eichman, Lewiston, Idaho, and Van Smith, West Yellowstone, Mont., came south to get away from the minus-zero weather, went to Havasu and Howard now leads the pack with a 20-pound, 1-ounce striped taken while trolling a Mirro-Lure about 18 feet down, and at the lower end of the lake.

Oddly enough, Eichman "blew" seven other hookups with stripers even though he was using 20-pound-test line. Twice, the fish straightened out the hooks and twice his line was broken.

Eichman caught his fish Thursday, just one day after Richard Krause, Oceanside, had taken the lead with an 18-10 fish. Krause had caught a 30-pounder before the derby got under way several weeks ago. He was using a Bomber Waterdog on that big fish.

Van Smith, fishing with the new derby leader, got a 15-pounder on Wednesday. All of the stripers so far have been taken on lures of various kinds, and all have been caught in water from 18 to 25 feet deep.

Several anglers fishing around Bird Island in the Bill Williams Arm of Havasu have caught smaller stripers.

THE STRIPED BASS DERBY, as well as the largemouth derby, lasts through April 2, with the top fish taking $200 in cash, the second $100 and the third $30. The largemouth anglers are a bit discouraged inasmuch as the largest fish so far has only weighed a couple of ounces more than three pounds, far below the average in previous years.

Introduction of striped bass, an anadromous fish, several years ago into Havasu Lake has caused considerable controversy among freshwater fishermen. The black bass catchers — and there are thousands of them — claim that the stripers have grown so large that they eat all the small bass fry.

There is no doubt that the stripers have grown and there is good reason to believe that they have spawned successfully, but the theory that stripers eat the largemouths leaves room for doubt.

One thing is certain: Largemouth bass fishing has declined in all the Colorado River lakes since the Eisenhower (Glen Canyon) Dam was finished and Lake Powell was almost filled.

That first year when water was filling Powell started a decline of bass propagation in Lake Mead. Bass spawning beds were exposed and eggs were ruined. It may take several years for the big largemouths to appear on stringers at Lake Mead. Meanwhile, the federal government and Nevada are turning Mead into a tremendous trout lake by planting rainbow trout and silver salmon.

NORM DYE OPENED SHERWOOD LAKE Thursday and the usual overflow crowd was there to fish mostly for planted trout. Norm, like other lake operators in Southern California, has discovered that bass, crappie and bluegill are not reproducing fast enough to keep the fishing crowds happy.

Sherwood lies in the thickly wooded Malibu Mountains just 70 miles from Long Beach and may be reached via the San Diego and Ventura Freeways. It is a beautiful lake, with giant oaks throughout the area. There are many expensive residences along the shores of Sherwood. Some of those people fish the lake; others do not.

Yet, with all that pressure, Sherwood continues to produce enough warm-water species for people who know how to fish it. For instance, on the opening day, a man armed with a tackle box of Purple Bandits (that's the name of the lures) caught five bass that weighed almost 14 pounds.

Somebody else, using cheese, got a 6½-pound catfish.

Dye will continue to stock the lake until June if the water remains cool enough to support trout. Dye therefore has put Sherwood in the same category as Irvine, Vail, Casitas, Cachuma, Puddingstone, Anaheim and other lakes. Planted trout are with us, and if California lakes remain fishable, it will require plants of the Department of Fish and Game and also of private hatcheries to keep the action going.

SAN DIEGO'S YELLOWTAIL DERBY has almost fallen apart. For one thing, the time of the derby has been cut in half. It will start April 1 and end June 30, with an automobile as the top prize.

Also, the derby will have only one sponsor, Point Loma Sportfishing Landing. H&M Landing pulled out of the derby two years ago. Fisherman's Landing pulled out this year.

The derby is sponsored by the San Diego Junior Chamber of Commerce, but landings have to pitch in considerable amounts of money to sustain the rich prize list. Decline of yellowtail fishing at the Coronado Island, plus other factors, is the cause of this year's curtailment.

Normally yellows start to show at this time of year, but Dick Gaydosh, one of San Diego's top skippers, says no yellowtail have been sighted yet. Even white sea bass, once the top fish in the winter months at the Coronados, are very scarce.

Barred perch are hitting along the strand from Sunset Beach to Huntington Beach, but the fish are small. Blood worms and crawfish are the best baits. Corbina of varying sizes are hitting crawfish baits in the warm water channel of the San Gabriel River, says a sport from Joe's Bait and Tackle in Sunset Beach.

At Everts' it's tennis everyone!

TWO-FISTED CHRIS EVERT

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Crossed tennis rackets of wrought iron hang decoratively above the number of 1628 NE 7th Place.

Chris Evert lives there.

Inside, an overworked telephone is off the hook. Jimmy Evert, master of the house, tries to catch up on last week's family bookwork. Momma Colette peels potatoes and announces, "roast beef tonight."

A teen-age gourmet applauds.

"We're trying to regain some sort of normalcy," says Jimmy. "As much as we appreciate all the attention given our household, there comes a time when you must shut out the world . . . catch up on being a family."

Enter Clare, age 4.

"Watch my serve, daddy," she demands, cocking a plastic fly swatter. Swoosh, the tot cuts and misses a ping pong ball. "I do better without the ball," she explains before skipping away.

Cute, cocoa-haired Chris Evert stole New York's somewhat-steely heart last summer with an astounding rise to the semifinals of the U.S. Open at fabled Forest Hills

Chrissie was an overnight heroine.

Last weekend, Miss Evert — now 17-stroked into the headlines again by crushing $100,000-a-year star Billie Jean King 6-1, 6-0 in the Women's International across town at Fort Lauderdale Tennis Club.

Billie Jean was the one who finally trounced Chrissie five months earlier in the semis at Forest Hills.

"It's unbelievable what's happening around our house," said the father. "People call from around the world, most wanting Chris for tournaments. I've learned to say 'no' in two minutes instead of 30."

Reporters camp on the Evert doorstep. Little Clare can hardly swing her fly swatter without striking a TV camera. A Sports Illustrated crew had just spent two hours filming Chris in her bedroom.

One writer called from Germany the day before.

From Chris' two-fisted backhand to Clare's wild fly swatter, everything in the place spells tennis.

Drew, 18, is a senior at St. Thomas Aquinas High School who hopes to enter college next fall. He's the No. 3 junior in Florida.

John, 10, is ranked ninth nationally in the 12-and-under classification.

Daddy still tells the kids about his 1941 national indoor junior title. As for mom, she's a "social player who gets out on Mother's Day, Christmas and Easter."

That's not the entire cast.

Jeanne, a 14-year-old beauty who weighs a scant 90 pounds, scored an upset of even greater magnitude than Chrissie's publicized beating of Billie Jean King.

She chopped down veteran Rosemary Casals in the first round of the International, a shocker that sent Rosie growling to the airport for an early trip home.

Now, when tournament promoters call, they ask for both the Evert girls. "It's about time," grins Jeanne, "that some of those phone calls were for me."

"Our kids start playing tennis seriously at age 6," said Jimmy. "We begin knocking balls to them and it may take a week for the little guys to get one back across the net. Soon, they begin to pick it up. A few weeks and they're hungry for competition."

Despite the fountain of Evert talent, Chris remains the central figure. Her immediate goal is a good showing at Wimbledon in July, but dad will only permit the England trip "if she makes the U.S. Wightman Cup team as a singles player."

If all goes well, Chris will be a pro this time next year.

"Maybe she can win some money, it'll help pay some bills," said the smiling father.

"It cost me $2,000 to keep her going last year, but it'll be less in 1972. People are eager to pay Chrissie's expenses now."

Under United States Lawn Tennis Association rules, Chris and Jeanne can receive full expenses for "amateur" excursions. That includes air fare, lodging, food, etc., for the girls and one chaperone.

"Chris can't turn pro until 1973 under USLTA rules," said Jimmy, "and if she takes a dollar in prize money before then, she'll be barred from all competition."

She can, however, rake in all the rackets, tennis balls and on-court clothes needed.

LIQUORI VS. RYUN IN COLISEUM MARCH 4

Marty Liquori, who didn't lose a race last year, and Jim Ryun, holder of three world records, will clash in the mile headliner when the Champions Meet premieres the $165,000 all-weather track in the Coliseum on March 4.

They last met at Philadelphia a year ago, with Liquor winning by two yards in 3:54.6 to Ryun's 3:54.8. Only Kip Keino of Kenya ran faster last year — 3:54.4.

Other early entrants include three-time Olympian George Young in the two-mile, Don Quarrie of Jamaica, Jean-Luis Ravelomanantsoa of Madagascar and Dr. Delano Meriwether in the sprints, and world record holders Rod Milburn (hurdles), Lee Evans (400), Randy Matson (shotput) and Rob Beamon (long jump).

Wyman tackling TV drama series

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jane Wyman hopes to become the first actress of the 1970s to star in a weekly dramatic television show, a rare breed indeed.

Not since Barbara Stanwyck headed the cast of "The Big Valley" has a female held down the top spot of a drama on the tube.

Mary Tyler Moore, Doris Day, Lucille Ball and others are delightful in situation comedies, but they are in an entirely different category.

Miss Wyman, who won as Oscar in 1948 for "Johnny Belinda," has the essential credentials for returning to a weekly drama. She starred for three years in "The Jane Wyman Show."

"That was an anthology series," the actress said. "And everybody knows there aren't enough stories in the world for one performer to play a different role every week.

"Loretta Young, who is a dear friend, had her anthology show on the air at the same time. We used to exchange scripts once in a while.

"I'd send a script over with a note saying, 'this sounds more like you than it does me.' "

JANE WAS SITTING in the Universal Studios commissary. Her eyes were bright with enthusiasm for her new project, "Dr. Amanda Fallon," which will be slipped into "The Bold Ones," substituting for one of the doctor episodes of that umbrella series.

"I play a pediatrician," she said. "And NBC is very high on making it a regular series.

"I saw the show before it was necessary to film some added scenes. I never get too excited about my work because there is nothing you can do once a movie or TV show is finished.

"But I really like the woman I play in this show. I'm in the right age bracket to play a doctor with real authority."

Jane was asked why she was willing to plunge back into the demanding world of a regular television show when she can make guest appearances and an occasional movie.

"I'm unencumbered now," she replied.

"The children are grown and I don't have a lot of possessions to worry about. I've sold my house in Beverly Hills and at the beach.

"I welcome the opportunity to do something I like. If I weren't comfortable with this character I wouldn't do the show."

Jane said she is not motivated by a desire to see that women are returned to equal footing with men on the tube.

"I DON'T EVEN know what the woman's freedom movement is about," she said. "I've been liberated all my life.

"The reason there are so few women in dramatic series is that they are mostly action-adventure stories. It can be ridiculous when the producers stretch a point and try to put females in roles meant for men.

"Playing a pediatrician is something else. There is plenty of adventure and action. The show can bring in all kinds of relationships for the doctor and her patients."

EARL WILSON'S BROADWAY

Treacher 'works way up to waiter'

NEW YORK — "After 50 bloody years being a butler and valet," said Arthur Treacher, now 77, as he sipped a martini with campari instead of vermouth, "I've worked myself up to a waiter."

The famous Jeeves of the movies, later Merv Griffin's TV buddy, was speaking at Joe's Pier 52 restaurant of the 200 "Arthur Treacher's Original Fish 'n' Chips" shops in the U.S. he has lent his name. After a cigaret, he tackled a dozen oysters and added, "Only interesting thing is that I get money from it. Rahther nice at my advanced age to have a thing like this fall into m' lap, wasn't it?"

"I was in my dressing room when I was called on the phone by Bob Hope, who says there's a man in Columbus who knows his brother Fred who wants to talk to me. This man Bob Davis has bought the oldest fish 'n' chips house in London. Well, they have the original recipe and the secret batter with the malt vinegar. And I do like fish 'n' chips, I do. Thank God I do! We have several shops on the island. One day for Gawd's sake do drawp in and see us. You can get a hell of a lot for about $1.25. You can also get a lot for 90 cents."

JEEVES SAID that "Since I do nothin', I'm delighted to go to openings if they need me." He would be happy if somebody were to put together a new movie about Jeeves.

"We'd better hurry, old friend, because the children of today won't know what the hell a butler is, will they?"

He believes that his successful interpretation of P. G. Wodehouse's "Jeeves" began one day in a picture with Lupe Velez.

"She was screaming and being temperamental. I was standing in a doorway getting some air. She said, 'My boy friend is as tall as you.' I said, 'Really?' She went away hurt. Chuck Reisner, the director, said, 'You're bored, aren't you?' I said, 'I hate it.' He said, 'Play it that way.' So I was supercilious, hating my employers."

HE BUTTLED OR valeted with Shirley Temple, Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Roland Young, Robert Young, Robert Taylor, Irene Dunne, Rosalind Russell, Tyrone Power, David Niven, Jack Benny, Penny Singleton, Hazel Dawn, Billy B. Van, Milton Berle. "The best actor," he maintained, waving to a waiter for a second martini with campari, "was Frank Morgan. He could do anything."

He values the friendship of Merv Griffin whom he calls "a very dear man."

"One day he phoned me, 'We're going to open the show with you and me in a duet. Do you know so-and-so?' I said I didn't. He said, 'Of course you do. It goes boom-tee-boom-boom.' I asked if I should come in and rehearse it. He said, 'You just rehearsed it!' "

Treacher and his wife, who now live quietly in Douglaston, L.I., never were partygoers in Hollywood or New York.

"I don't think any of these stars wanted you to feel equal to them. If they asked me what I thought of their last picture, I was afraid I'd say 'I hated it.' "

He feels a little that way about TV. "Don't watch," he said. "Bad for the eyes, bad for the ears," he said. "I'd rather read."

When he's touring, people often tell him: "I see you on Johnny Carson's show every night." He doesn't correct them. Now as he arose from the table, he had trouble untangling himself from it.

"Never be tall," he said with a muffled groan, "and never be old."

THE WEEKEND WINDUP . . . Kirk Douglas turned down a $40,000-a-week, 10-week deal to tour in "1776" next summer; he'll be busy movie-making. . . . Playboy magazine mailed Howard Hughes a copy (with articles about him) to his Nassau hotel hideout. It was returned: "Addressee Unknown."

Danny Thomas, who'll be in the Bob Hope-Chrysler golf tourney, says he enters it because "it gives me a chance to get exercise, meet greater golfers — and make a complete idiot of myself." . . . The Jackson Five rock group was added to Alex Cohen's updated Hellzapoppin' " TV special. . . . Mrs. Corbett Monica is co-authorizing a cookbook, "Diet Revolution."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A friend of Bobby Vinton's asked a doctor about his weight problem, and after an examination the doctor announced, "I found your problem — you're suffering from an overactive fork."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: An ulcer is something that indicates the victim is in the big money — either making it or owing it.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The corkscrew opens the bottle, and the bottle opens the man."

—Evan Esar

EARL'S PEARLS: It's strange how people always announce they're going on a diet after they've eaten a big meal, never before.

One of the Ringling Bros. circus' trained bears will be in the film "We Barely Made It to the Moon," and someone wondered how she was chosen for it. "Oh, you know Hollywood," shrugged a trainer," — dated the producer." That's earl, brother.

N.Y. Negro jail head says cons need chance

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first Negro ever to head the New York City jail system said Saturday it is "drastically wrong" to expect prisons alone to handle the job of reforming criminals.

Correction Commissioner Benjamin J. Malcolm said in a local (WOR) radio interview that the business community must share the task of rehabilitating ex-convicts.

"I think the community must be involved, inside the prison and after . . . I'm talking about employment," Malcolm said.

The commissioner said laws barring former criminals from certain types of employment should be revised.

"I'm not saying that they've got to give him priority . . . I'm saying they've got to give him his chance," he said.

Malcolm said inmate councils are being formed in some of the city's jails to improve communication between the prisoners and the staff, but he dismissed the idea of unionizing convicts as "a bit way-out."

He said unionization implies an equality between inmate and administrator which does not exist in prisons.

Guilty stowaway decides to pay airline fare

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — An unidentified air traveler — apparently a transcontinental stowaway overcome by conscience — has paid $250 belatedly to an airline here, an airport spokesman said Saturday.

An envelope addressed to the airline was found on its ticket counter at Port Columbus Airport. It contained a $100 bill, a $50, $100 in $1, $5 and $20 bills, and a note.

"This money is owed your airlines for a long time . . . I forgot about it for over 10 years," the note said. "Please send it to New York or Los Angeles."

SITE GOING TO THE BIRDS

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Norfolk didn't spend $30 million for a cultural and convention center to let it go to the birds. But it appears the birds are getting it anyway.

Architect E. Bradford Tazewell Jr. said Thursday the city has discovered that sea gulls are eating the insulating material and rubberized outer covering of the costly new dome and they've pecked some holes in the roof as large as teacups.

Tazewell said the city hasn't come up with a solution. City officials turned down a suggestion to decorate the top with scarecrow, and he said there doesn't appear to be any chemical sea-gull repellant on the market.

Swap meet.

Meet us halfway, and we'll swap skilled training for a little of your time. It comes down to this: you scratch our back, and we'll scratch yours. We think it's a pretty good trade.

Here's how: Join the Army Reserve. Want to learn helicopter mechanics, electronics, or a medical specialization? Or administration and finance, heavy-vehicle driving? There are many, many others to choose from depending upon the specific skill requirements of your local unit.

After you've finished a short tour of active duty (from 4 to 6 months) that also includes skill training, you'll return to the Army Reserve unit which you joined near your home. While on active duty training, you get about $300 a month. Plus quarters. Plus food. Plus medical care. Plus PX and commissary use!

It's the kind of training that'll put you ahead in civilian life...for a lifetime. And all the time you're going to meetings and taking training in your skill, you're getting paid for it.

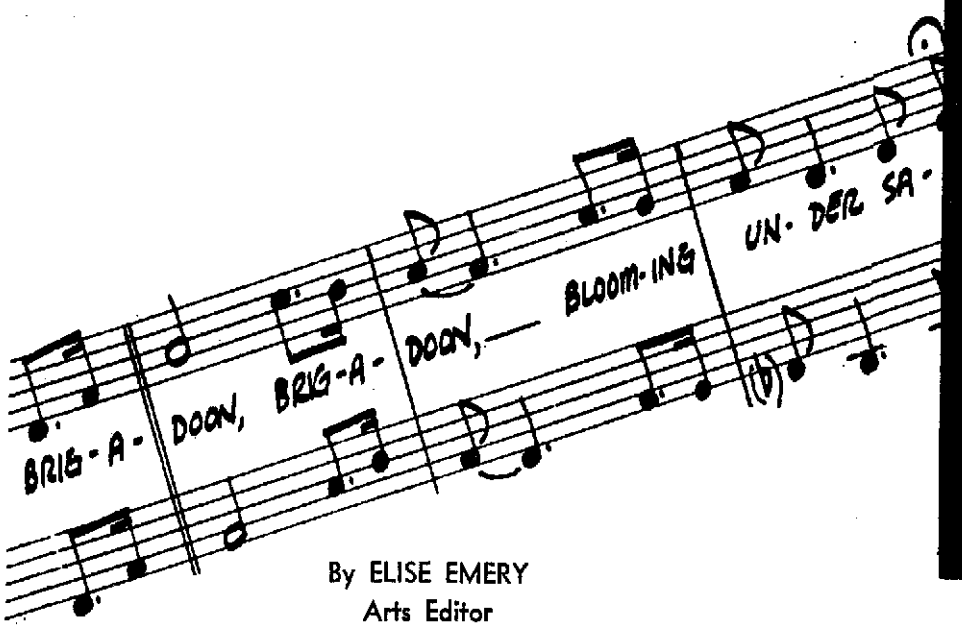

If you're a guy who wants to direct his own life, a guy with purpose, come to our swap meet. We've set it up so it'll pay you. On purpose. The Army Reserve.

Brigadoon

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

When two men of genius work together successfully for 18 years, then split apart, what happens?

They join forces again, as inevitably as magnet and steel.

An example: Lerner and Loewe.

From the time they met in 1942 until "Camelot" opened in 1960, author Alan Jay Lerner and composer Frederick Loewe enchanted, entertained and enthralled audiences with their productions: "Day Before Spring" in 1945, "Brigadoon" — their first major hit — in 1947, "Paint Your Wagon" in 1951, "My Fair Lady" in 1956, "Gigi" in 1957, "Camelot" in 1960.

Then, Loewe announced that he was retiring to his Palm Springs estate "to live the most beautiful life possible." Lerner continued to work, but it seemed the two wouldn't collaborate again.

Meanwhile the world went on enjoying revivals of their shows, whistling and singing their songs.

Long Beach Civic Light Opera first did "Brigadoon" in the fall of 1959. It was one of the most successful productions in the company's long history.

When CLO's audiences were polled at the end of last season they balloted overwhelmingly for a repeat of "Brigadoon" this year, the 25th anniversary of the production.

So the lilting, haunting show, set in the misty Highlands of Scotland, will have a three-weekend run of nine performances Feb. 25 through March 12. Performances will be in Jordan Auditorium, 6500 Atlantic Ave.

FURTHERMORE, Mayor Edwin W. Wade has proclaimed March 11 as Lerner and Loewe Day in Long Beach and there is, says Lerner, "a 10 to 1 chance" that both men will attend that evening's performance of their show. Members of the original cast and others connected with the first production on Broadway also have been invited. A special guest will be Lillie Messinger of Beverly Hills and her husband, Prince Alexis Thurn-Taxis. It

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Hearts 'in' at 'Love Inn'

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

A REMINDER that Monday is St. Valentine's Day and if you have not selected an appropriate greeting for the object of your affections, you have exactly no shopping days left, the selection will probably be poor and you might have to make one yourself.

Shades of kindergarten days.

Sandi Shadden got started early — like two months ago — on her Valentine project.

She shopped the "goody" stores, like Moscatels, for supplies including lace doilies of all descriptions, styrofoam, sequins, glitter and then she went home and "untrimmed" some of her daughter Laura's outgrown dresses (Laura is 11) to add to the variety of ribbons and laces.

She also bought stamps and invitations for 50 women.

The invitation merely said "Come to a Love Inn" with the date and place and no other explanation.

When the gals arrived, they found card tables laden with the aforementioned treasures, pots of glue and scads of scissors.

The guests were instructed to make a Valentine for "your lover." Bette Potts made ten. This caused some speculation until she explained that she had somehow missed the childhood pleasure of Valentine creating and was making up for lost time with quantity rather than quality.

Although there were no prizes awarded for the most outstanding valentine, Charlene Sundgren received kudos for her creation of an enormous paper heart with flowers cut from scads of different patterned doilies.

Nancy Frank created a glamorous number in silver and sequins.

Linda Benson got the vote for looking the most like a Valentine in an old-fashioned red and white dress.

I just re-read that last line. Time was when you called some one's dress old-fashioned, it meant they were not wearing the latest style.

Strange how words change their meaning through the years. Now anything old is new.

Hostess Sandi also outdid herself in the bakery department and guests could take time out from their creating to sample some of her kitchen creations such as pound cake and Valentine tarts accompanied by picture-pretty bowls of fruit.

Samplers included Joann Gray, Bea Scott, Carolyn Steuber, Margie Piezer, Hilda Foasberg, Carol Johnson, Pat Watkins, Midge Abbott, Sue Cannon, Jerry Eldred, Sally Dillon, Cindy Patricare, Lou Palmer, Pat Wilkerson, Peggy Maxwell and Micki Leffler.

DR. ERIC and Audrey Widell are just back from ten days in our nation's capital where they went sightseeing in the snow.

While Eric attended medical meetings, Audrey and the younger Widells, Carla and Rick, toured the famous landmarks.

The children persuaded Audrey to make the long (830 steps) walk down from the top of the Washington Monument. She is recovering nicely.

SOUNDS of Happy Birthday were heard at the home of Harriet Russell and husband, Bill.

Occasion was the 80th birthday of Harriet's mother, Edith Reno. Co-hosting the surprise champagne buffet were Edith's other daughter, Dorothy Abercrombie, and husband, Jack.

Surprise was engineered with the help of the Russell's son, Jim whose wife (also a Dorothy) was having a birthday on the same day.

Edith thought the party was for Dorothy and never tumbled until the guests shouted surprise.

Among those who came to offer congratulations were Edith's brothers, Carl Swartz and wife, Julia, from Yucaipa, Irving Swartz and wife, Vaude, from San Diego and a gaggle of five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

CHAMPAGNE AND COMPLIMENTS flowed at Studio Trois when owners Jean Hartt, Eleanore Smith and Shirley Boyington presented paintings and collages by Hildy Utecht.

Noted artist Fran Soldini came to look, admire and exclaim over Hildy's use of soft colors and "great taste."

Others echoing her remarks included "Mac" and Syble Amos, Dick and Mary Lou Landes (Mary Lou manning the guest register) Loraine Miller Collins, Alberta Sagehorn and Margaret Klein.

I had an interesting chat with Grace Kimball and Ray Fosholdt in the "petite gallery." For those of you who have never been to the Studio it is located in the powder room which is a must see.

Done in elegant red flocked wallpaper hung with mirrors as well as paintings, the room is presided over by a gold cherub holding flowers.

Eleanore popped in to tell us the gals call it the "red head" and its deliberate elegance is designed to encourage student-artists to clean messy brushes and leave the room sparkling clean afterward. The idea must work as the room is a real showplace.

Would you believe its accessories include "Sun Country Red" toilet tissue and Kleenex?

Among others coming by to congratulate Hildy were Don and Liz Wallace, Linda Brown, Rick and Robin Horn, Camilla Waters, Chuck and Naomi Chandler, Helen Newcomb, Phil and Jean King, Don and Audry Helmer, Ginny Parker, Judge Mal and Joan Lucas, Fred and Pauline Jacobson and Elaine Taylor.

Of course Hildy's husband "Pete" and younger daughter Hilary were there to share her big night.

Sewing bee precedes 'Sew New' style show

Sewing up baskets of cloth flowers to be used as table decorations for the Co-Workers Society annual fashion show are Mmes. Rodney Nisbet, left, Jeff Skinner and Peter Gundersen, chairman. The noon luncheon event is scheduled Thursday in California Heights United Methodist Church, 3759 Orange Ave.

"Sew New for '72" is theme of the style show to be presented by Stretch 'n' Sew, with commentary by Jeanne Haegey. Proceeds benefit John Tracy Clinic, Hillside Enterprises and Braille Institute. Information and reservations may be made with the church office.

Cats invade Rochelle's for annual meet

From Beverly Hills and Burbank and Orange County they will come—black cats, gray cats, white cats, striped cats.

They'll be at Rochelle's Convention Center, 3333 Lakewood Blvd., Saturday and next Sunday for the championship cat show sponsored by the Crown City Cat Club.

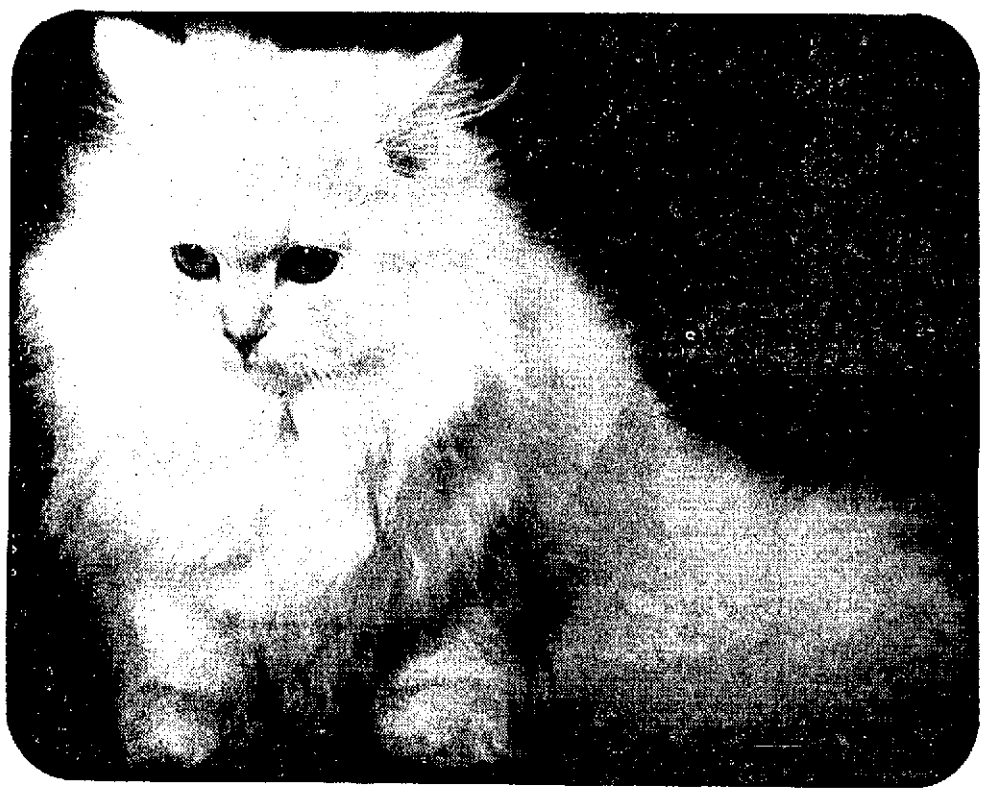

Among entrants in this year's event will be a Burmese Spay which has received Royal Merit and Grand Champion ratings, a Seal Point Siamese, which is the top scoring cat in the region and has been rated second best in national competition and a Chinchilla Silver Persian, which is working towards its Grand Championship rating.

Judges for the show will be Marion Hall of Tulsa, Okla., George Evans of San Francisco, Will Thompson of Burbank and Marge Naples of Long Beach.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days. Donations will be accepted.

BLACK BART, a three-year-old Seal Point Siamese will be among the many entrants in Crown City Cat Club competition.

WORKING TOWARD his Grand Championship rating will be Ivy Sweet Dream of Car-Toma, a Chinchilla Silver Persian, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Richter of Los Angeles.

AT WIT'S END

Hoarse cry for equality

By ERMA BOMBECK

When Women's Liberation comes out for "Equal Colds," I will join it.

I don't mind dancing backwards. I don't mind my buttons being on the wrong side of my blouse. And I don't mind having to ask for a key everytime I want to go to a service station restroom. But just once I would like to have my cold given the same respect as a man's cold.

A few weeks ago when my husband had the sniffles, he took his cold to his bed, summoned three medical opinions, insisted I mail the children out of the state, installed a dumbwaiter in his bedroom (me!) and wrote to ABC insisting he would make a great two-part series for "Marcus Welby, M.D."

Two days ago I awoke to pain. My head was feverish, my lips cracked. My throat was dry. I was nauseous. Every bone in my body begged to be put to rest. "I do not feel well," I said to my husband. "In fact, I don't mean to be dramatic but I think I am dying."

"DOES THAT MEAN you're not going to get dressed?" he asked, impatiently looking at his watch.

"You don't understand," I said, "It is pure penance to breathe. My head aches. My eyes feel like round razor blades, and it's only a matter of minutes before I go to that big utility room in the sky."

"I feel the same way when I sleep too long in the mornings," he said.

"But it's only 6:30," I said huskily.

"So, eat a little bacon, hash browns covered with catsup and . . . where are you going?"

You've heard it, Sisters, now what are we going to do about it? I propose we initiate federal legislation to make women's colds legal in all of the 50 states and to be protected under a new law called: Bombeck's Equal Cold Opportunity Bill.

THE BILL would provide that women would receive more than 15 minutes to get over a 24-hour virus.

Under Equal Opportunity, her cold would be granted the right to stay in bed and would be exempt from car pools, kitchen duty, laundry, bowling and visiting the sick.

Any husband who degrades and taunts his wife's cold with such remarks as, "Maybe it was the pot roast," or "You're just bored," or "If it hangs on till Spring you'd better see a doctor," or "Get on your feet. You're scaring the children," will be liable to a fine.

Any husband who mentions bacon and hash brown potatoes to a dying woman would be put away for 50 years — without benefit of trial.

Toastmistresses slate seminar on leadership

A community leadership seminar for women is scheduled Saturday at Pepperdine University, 8035 S. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles, co-sponsored by the university and the Founders' Council of Toastmistress International.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. in the auditorium. There will be a lunch break at 12:30 p.m., with the session concluding at 3:30.

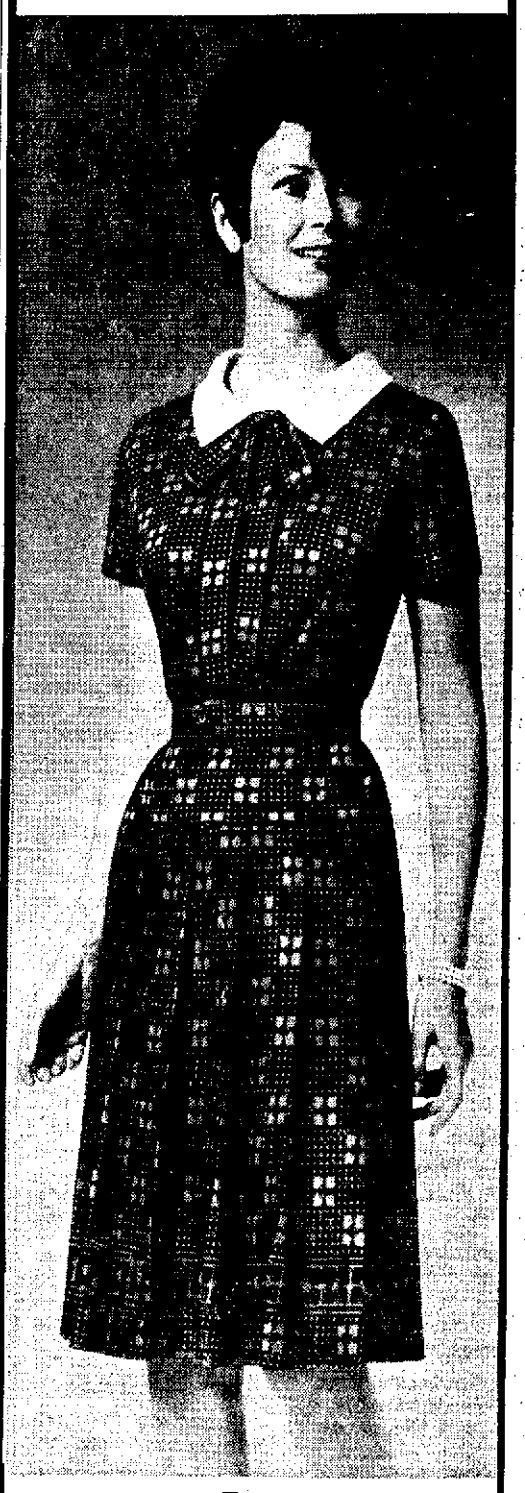

Among group discussion leaders are Mrs. Ina Potter of Long Beach, past international president of Toastmistresses, and Mrs. Jerry Burns, past state president of the California Association of Parliamentarians.

Mrs. Wilma Kietzman, 5925 W. 85th Place, Los Angeles has further information.

A LOVELIER YOU

Put an end to nail abuse

By MARY SUE MILLER

Do you wonder why nails break and split. The poor things are abused, that's why! We spend hours on manicures and then turn around and use our nails to open tough cords on packages. The strongest nails will not stand up to such malpractices. Weak nails, although fortified with hardener, collapse in tatters.

Only count the ways you abuse your nails, and you will gain a better insight as to why they split and break. It cannot all be from systemic or dietary deficiencies as sometimes claimed. Or we'd be a sorry group. Shall we start counting?

1. Do you dial a telephone with your finger, instead of a dialer.

2. Do you spend hours writing longhand or sewing without the protection of a sewing guard on your finger.

3. Are you ungloved when you plunge your nails (and hands) into drying household detergents?

4. Do you slit sealed envelopes with your nails?

5. When you trim your cuticles, you don't jab at them — do you?

6. Nor do you clean under your nails with a sharp instrument?

7. You are never so abusive as to file away the selvage of the nails at the inside corners — are you?

8. You would not think of chewing your nails — not you?

9. How about the habit of table tapping — yes or no?

10. You skip using a strengthener — a clear protein liquid or a shielding enamel?

With "yes" answers, your nails are down for the count!

Lovelier hands

Do you have a hand problem? Send today for LOVELIER HANDS, a leaflet that covers every step in a quest for hand beauty. It tells how to keep the skin and nails groomed; how to overcome weak nails, polish-chips, discolored knuckles, prominent veins, wrinkles; how to use the hands with poised grace. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Independent, Press-Telegram, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin.

First step is finding assistance

By Joanne Norris
Staff Writer

A week isn't much time to straighten out the tangled web of the alcoholic.

But Memorial Hospital is discovering that concentrated doses of medical care, education and just plain "rapping" are making some headway in curing one of the nation's acute problems.

In November the hospital opened Southern California's first alcoholic unit in a non-profit community hospital. Most hospitals admit alcoholics only to "dry out," then send them on their boozy way with rehabilitation confined primarily to private institutions or sanitariums.

But Memorial, sensing the need in the community for a two-pronged treatment program, began admitting alcoholics for medical treatment coupled with a program to find out their needs and direct them to appropriate facilities.

Working with the patients is Mrs. Mary Ellen Auckland, formerly with the Los Angeles Council on Alcoholism and, she frankly admits, a reformed alcoholic.

After many years as a heavy-drinking Navy wife, Mrs. Auckland has been sober for 10 years. And like many alcoholics, she is devoting herself to helping others with the same problem.

AS STAFF ASSISTANT in the alcoholic unit, she is the liaison between staff and patient, between patient and family and between patient and community.

If the idea of Alcoholics Anonymous is appealing, she can arrange for A.A. members to address the patients at the hospital or can take patients to A.A. meetings.

If they would like to visit the county health department's clinic for individual or group counseling, she can arrange that.

If they prefer longer term institutional care, she can help them find a satisfactory place or can get them admitted to a group living arrangement such as House of Hope.

"We don't have much time," says Mrs. Auckland. "The average patient stay here is five to seven days, so we try, first of all, to get them to admit they have a problem and then figure out a program for them when they leave."

Although there is no time limit on the hospital stay, the idea is not to do long-term rehabilitation, but to inform and guide alcoholics toward other sources of help.

THE ALCOHOLICS must be admitted to the hospital by a doctor. Although physicians traditionally have been reluctant to accept alcoholics as patients, the number admitting them to the new unit is growing, the hospital reports.

If a patient arrives at the emergency room very drunk, the hospital staff usually can find a physician to admit him, Mrs. Auckland said.

"There're almost always physical problems as a result of the drinking, or from an accident," she added. "And, besides, they need a chance to get rid of the booze before they can sort out their problems.

"You can't solve other problems if you're drinking."

In certain environments, excessive drinking is easy to mask.

MRS. MARY ELLEN AUCKLAND

"When my husband was in the Navy we were in a social situation where lots of drinking was done and was accepted. It was a long time before I, or anyone else, suspected I had a drinking problem."

SOME OF THE CLUES that ultimately convinced her she needed help were: Not remembering the next day what had happened the night before, wanting to go on drinking when others quit, trying to figure out a way to get more to drink on the sly, drinking too fast, not wanting to go anywhere unless it involved drinking . . .

Mrs. Auckland found help toward sobriety on her own. She knew a group to contact, she did and it worked for her. Other people grope through various programs, get discouraged and give up.

It's her job now to show them what options are open and to encourage them to try them all.

Her 8:30-to-5-days in the new unit in Memorial West are as varied as the difficulties of the people she serves.

SOMETIMES she'll take patients to visit the public health clinic or to a meeting of A.A. She shows movies about alcoholism and sits in on patient group sessions.

"Am I an alcoholic?" one man wonders aloud during one of the sessions. He explains he has had no more than three to four drinks a night for 30 years, but, because his marriage was collapsing, he went on a bender and tried to take his own life.

Now a patient in the alcoholic unit, he worries not only about whether he belongs there but about the cost. And about what he should do when he gets out.

"Who am I?" a woman patient asks. Her life is devoted to a semi-invalid husband. Drink and crocheting are her only companions during the long evenings when he is asleep. Her life is one of selfless devotion . . . and one of booze.

She has difficulty reading, doesn't relate well to people, especially other women.

Groups are difficult for her. Perhaps individual therapy will be the answer.

There are other drinkers with other problems. Ages have ranged from 29 on up. More men than women have been admitted and both sexes have come from all economic levels.

Some drink just beer and try to kid themselves into believing they aren't heavy drinkers because they don't touch the hard stuff.

Others, pridefully say, "I'm not a beer drinker. I could never touch that junk."

No matter what they're guzzling, it's too much and too often. But being at Memorial may be the first step in the other direction.

Bad times overcome by actress

By Joan Hanauer
UPI Writer

NEW YORK — Mercedes McCambridge looked incredulously at the picture of herself taken on the night in 1950 she won an Academy Award for her first movie, "All the King's Men."

"Has anybody ever looked so young?" she said with a sign and a grin.

She was on top of the world then. She had been called radio's greatest actress, playing in everything from soap operas to such favorites as "Inner Sanctum," "I Love a Mystery" and "Lights Out!" She had starred on Broadway, then won an Oscar in her movie debut.

"Radio serials — that was a great way of living," Miss McCambridge said in an interview at her New York hotel, where she is living while starring in the new Broadway play, "The Love Suicide At Schofield Barracks."

"Maybe that always happens — you think 'the good old days' were the best way of living. That was the time when nobody worried about gaining a little weight or had their noses fixed.

"There was great audiences contact — the radio audiences had to work as hard as the performers, supplying sets and costumes and everything in their own minds.

"I loved it, but the most awful thing was when you had to die. They always told you ahead of time when your character was being written out, and you'd think, 'Oh, shoot, there goes the rent money.'

"It was an awful temptation, say if you were going to be shot, and then you were to groan and the prop man would fall down with a thud — to say, 'Ha-Ha! You missed me.' At least you'd get another day's work out of it and there wasn't much anyone could do about it because the broadcasts were live. No, I never did it."

Then came her bad times — divorce, remarriage, two still-born children, another divorce, her son near death with a skull fracture. And the worst time of all was alcohol.

Miss McCambridge, who now is the national honorary chairman of the National Council on Alcoholism, doesn't use her private problems as excuses for her drinking.

"When it comes to hangups, alcoholics and non-alcoholics have them in about equal numbers," she said. "Alcoholism is a disease, an addictive disease. Our bodies don't assimilate alcohol the way 9 out of 10 do.

"Do we use it as escape? Why does anybody have even one drink? It's a mood changer, an escape from the way we feel. Everybody uses alcohol as a cop-out but for the alcoholic it's a disaster. When a person drinks, he's under anaesthesia but most people can burn it off. We can't and we're no longer reasonable."

Speaking of herself, she said that alcohol very literally nearly killed her.

"I never even drank as much as most people do," she said. "But the way it affected me was to make me physically ill. I would get bronchitis and rapidly go into pneumonia. Now I haven't had either in eight years.

"And I felt I was bad and that I couldn't live with myself."

The actress, who will be 54 on St. Patrick's day, said that today's attitude toward alcoholism reminds her of an incident in her youth in Joliet, Ill.

"When I was a little girl, cancer was supposed to be very bad, something you said, 'Shh, that's not nice. One of my aunts died and a member of the family hoped the death certificate could read something else because nice people didn't get cancer. It's the same way with alcoholism.

"I'm no Carrie Nation and I think alcohol is wonderful, if you aren't an alcoholic. If you are, it's a disease, not a moral problem."

That is why, although she does not enjoy it, she puts herself in the spotlight, spending two week periods three or four times a year speaking to groups at campuses, clubs, business firms, anywhere.

"I'm trying to bring alcoholism into the light of day where people will see it for what it is," she said. "Alcohol is the third highest killer after heart disease and cancer. And I feel a great sense of gratitude and responsibility that I'm alive. How many are dead?"

CHEF OF THE WEEK

He engineered one-pot recipe

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

He's a "Cornhusker" by birth (Scottsbluff, Neb.), but today's Chef of the Week, Clyde N. Moore, has been a California resident since 1930.

A registered civil engineer, he is the "bossman" at the Long Beach Water Department, a position he has held since Jan. 1, 1971. In fact, last year, the man who started out dealing with dirty water and now is responsible for clean water, was honored for 30 years of service with the City of Long Beach.

Corona High School and Chaffey Jr. College, Ontario, preceded his enrollment at UC, Berkeley, from which he earned his B.S. Degree in civil engineering, and completed graduate work in sanitary engineering.

Though Moore waited tables, etc. during his school days, his first real position was with Douglas Aircraft Co., Santa Monica, in 1939. In 1940, he conducted an East Bay Sewage Disposal Survey for Berkeley and that same year joined the Long Beach City Engineering Department as a draftsman.

There was an interim period in World War II, when he switched his engineering abilities to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Drafted as a private in 1941, he was discharged as a major in 1946. He spent the years 1944-45 in the Italian Theater of Operations.

RETURNING TO LONG BEACH in 1947, he served the Water Department as assistant civil engineer, as division engineer, assistant general manager, and now as manager.

There was a time when, if he learned a neighbor had subscribed to bottled water, he would be upset. But those days have long since passed.

Moore's professional organizations include the American Society of Civil Engineers and the National Society of Professional Engineers. His "water works" affiliations are multitudinous.

Moore also finds time on the executive boards of Wightman Memorial Goodwill Industries of Long Beach; Long Beach Area Council, Boy Scouts; Long Beach Chapter, American National Red Cross.

He is a past president, Long Beach Exchange Club, and a past area governor, California District Exchange Club. He is also active in Long Beach Masonic Lodge, 317, F&AM, the Long Beach Scottish Rite Consistory, East Side Christian Church and Third Nighter's Club.

When he says, "My wife, Catherine, and I have a 'full house,'" he isn't referring to a game of poker. He's referring to three daughters and two sons.

Carolyn, Mrs. Fred Baum, teaches in Rossmoor. Phyllis is a student nurse at Long Beach City College, while Betty is a senior at Wilson High and National Merit Scholarship semi-finalist Steven, a sophomore at Wilson, is a member of the water polo and swimming teams, while Clyde Jr., a civil engineer in Seattle, and his wife, Shirley, have two daughters, Kathy and Julie.

As for hobbies, camping with his family comes first, then volleyball, tennis and bicycling. He'd like to play golf, but finds there just isn't enough time.

Cooking isn't one of our "Chef's" better talents, but when he does, as his kids would say, "It's everything in one pot with Dad." His Noodles Napoli is an EXCELLENT example.

NOODLES NAPOLI

- 1 medium sized onion, finely chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced or mashed
- 2 tablespoons olive oil or salad oil
- 1 pound ground chuck
- 1 ¾-ounce can sliced mushrooms
- 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 1 6-ounce can tomato paste
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon oregano
- ¾ cup water
- 2 eggs
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
- 1 cup cream-style cottage cheese
- ⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 package (8 ounces) wide noodles, cooked and drained
- ½ pound cheddar cheese, cut in thin strips

Brown onion and garlic in 1 tablespoon of the oil; add ground chuck, and break apart; cook until brown. Blend in mushrooms (including liquid), tomato sauce, tomato paste, 1 teaspoon salt, oregano, and water; simmer for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, mix 1 of the eggs with the spinach, cottage cheese, Parmesan cheese, remaining 1 tablespoon oil and 1 teaspoon salt. Beat the second egg slightly and toss with cooked noodles. Pour half the meat sauce in an oblong baking pan (about 9x13) and cover with layer of half the noodles. Spread all the spinach mixture over noodles. Complete layers with the remaining noodles and meat sauce. Cover with foil and bake in (350 degree) oven for 45 minutes. Remove foil and arrange strips of cheddar cheese on top; bake 5 minutes longer. Serve hot. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

IN REVEALING MOMENT, Allen Johnson as Charlie Dalrymple and Cozette Walker as Jean, the bride-to-be, talk of the magical history of the Scottish town, Brigadoon, with school master Mr. Lundie, played by Bob Connor.

'Brigadoon'--enduring illusion was to Miss Messinger that Brigadoon was dedicated.

This week, Loewe in Palm Springs and Lerner in New York, talked in telephone interviews about their careers.

Both are elated about their recent collaboration after the 11-year hiatus.

What brought them together?

"Fritz retired, determined that nothing would persuade him to work again," said Lerner. (The composer is really Dr. Loewe, bearing the honor conferred on him by Redlands University, but his friends call him Fritz.)

"When we were doing the motion picture version of 'Paint Your Wagon' I sent him the script. He turned it down, but I guess it whetted his appetite. Anyway, when I sent him the script of 'The Little Prince' he just couldn't say no."

LERNER has just returned from London where filming of the show based on the story by Antoine de Saint Exupery will begin May or June. Then, in the fall, the company will go to the Sahara for further shooting. Hopefully, the motion picture will be ready to release about Easter, 1973.

Loewe, whose 13-acre estate in Palm Springs is his great pride, was quick to correct statements in his widely circulated biography. He was not born in Vienna on June 10, 1904. In his charming Viennese accent he explained, "My parents were Austrian, from Vienna, but I was born in Berlin. And I have three more years — I was born in 1901."

A musical prodigy, who debuted as pianist with the Berlin Symphony when he was 13, Loewe came to the United States in 1924. To survive he tackled every job he could get — prizefighter, pianist and postman on horseback in Montana.

Born into the wealthy Lerner family of Lerner Stores on Aug. 31, 1918, in New York, Lerner attended Harvard and Juilliard and experimented with composing. "Fortunately, in a burst of good taste, I gave that up."

The two first collaborated on "What's Up?" "I'd call it a disaster, but that's too cheerful a word," Lerner said. "You don't really learn from failure, except that you find that an idea doesn't accommodate you well. Each person has his own style. If he goes outside it, he comes a cropper."

ON THE CONSTRUCTIVE SIDE, the first show convinced Lerner and Loewe that they could work together and in 1947 came the triumph of "Brigadoon." They gathered top awards of the New York Drama Critics, winning Best Musical and a dozen other prizes.

"We did a show based on James Barrie's 'Little Minister' but Paramount turned it down," Loewe remembered. "So we decided to write our own play about Scotland and it turned out much better. 'Brigadoon' is still good today. It was recently done, both the book and the music. Because it was well done, it's lasting."

Lerner agrees. "When the show was revived five years ago in New York I was surprised to find how it held my interest, how gripping it was."

Could the two write "Brigadoon" today?

"Certainly, the values are universal," Loewe believes. "When I was a teen-ager, I did the same things young people did today, I experimented with everything I could. People don't change."

"I don't think we could write 'Brigadoon' today," Lerner said. "This is a different age, not conducive to that kind of show. That was World War II time: audiences were eager for that type of fantasy."

For anyone — if there is such a person — not familiar with the story, "Brigadoon" is set in a magic village in Scotland which appears only one day each 100 years, then fades away again for another 100 years. Two American hunters wander into the village and one, Tommy, falls in love with the Scottish lass, Fiona.

INSTEAD of being maudlin, the show is moving and convincing. "It's based on an idea Fritz suggested," Lerner explained, "that faith can move mountains."

Tommy returns to his sophisticated life in New York and to his fiancee, but, realizing that his real love is in Brigadoon he goes back to the spot where it existed. By a miracle, he is reunited with Fiona.

Isn't this a dropout from society?

"Tommy didn't drop out — love alone is a hell of a thing to give up everything for. It may not last. Tommy gave up his beautiful New York bar life to drop into real life in Brigadoon," Loewe replied.

"Dropout?" echoed Lerner. "Tommy escaped into, not from, life. He made the discovery that faith in rational thought is irrational; real answers can't be explained."

This is the theme, too, of "The Little Prince" who says, "What is really important is invisible to the eye."

Loewe added, "Love, loyalty, friendship, these are important." In an aside on Women's Lib, he commented, "Madame, Ive been very fond of women all my life. When you truly love women, it's easy to treat them right. If they want to be liberated, that's what I want for them."

AS FOR FAMILY, "The productions are my children and the songs are my grandchildren. It's very satisfying to be anywhere in the world and hear one of your grandchildren — even in a Tokyo airport on the radio."

About the creative process: "It is like love — anytime, any place."

For Lerner, "Writing is what I love, putting it into production is the work. I can't write lyrics at night — I need the concentration, clarity and freshness of morning."

As for technique, "We agree on a project, discuss the musical numbers, what the style should be. Then I give Fritz a verbal synopsis of each song and a title. He asks me whether the title should be at the beginning, middle or end of a phrase, then composes the music. I take it and write the lyrics to fit."

In the Long Beach production, leads will reunite Leanna Nelson and Dick Johnson, who starred in "Man of La Mancha." Appearing with them will be Carole Stromme, Roger Galloway, Cozette Walker, Walt La Fontaine and Kathleen Melcher. Gary Davis directs.

Lerner is optimistic about the theater and, when the current film is completed, will do another stage production. "I remember an interview I read with the black mayor of Newark who was asked if he was optimistic. 'Yes,' he answered. 'If a black man isn't optimistic, he will kill himself. If he's optimistic, the situation can be improved.'

"I DON'T really know what audiences want and I don't try to anticipate — then I wouldn't be true to myself. As a theater-goer I've always believed there's a shortage of positive statements.

"There was declining interest in the theater with its emphasis on realism. Then in 1961 along came Robert Bolt's 'A Man for All Seasons,' a statement about the nobility of man. It was a tremendous success."

Lerner and Loewe are together again because both strongly believe, "It's the inexplainables, intangibles, hopes and illusions that keep us alive.

"Great theater can give a person a two-hour vacation from himself. The next morning he can begin the day anew after a needed vacation from his own world."

MRS. CHARLES BRANTINGHAM JR.

Brantingham, Rogers wed in LDS rite

Los Angeles Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was setting for the marriage ceremony joining California State College at Long Beach seniors, Pamela Jeanne Rogers and Charles Ross Brantingham Jr.

The bride's sister, Julie Rogers, was maid of honor and the bridegroom's brother, John Brantingham, was best man.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Bernell D. Rogers of Torrance and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Ross Brantingham of Los Alamitos.

Residence in Cypress will follow a Lake Tahoe honeymoon trip for the young couple.

The new Mrs. Brantingham received her early schooling in Torrance and attended El Camino College and Brigham Young University prior to enrolling at State. She and her husband both are members of Institute of Religion Council. The bridegroom is an alumnus of Wilson High School and is affiliated with Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

WAC veterans plan conclave

DR. LOUIS L. HEYN and Claire Falkenstein study fountain (right) which she created for grounds of his Hollywood Hills home. Dr. Heyn has given the sculpture to Long Beach Museum of Art.

Fountain gift to LBMA

Sculptor Claire Falkenstein and generous donor Dr. Louis L. Heyn met this week at the Heyn residence to discuss logistics of placing a beautiful fountain on the grounds of Long Beach Museum of Art.

At the end of January, Long Beach City Council officially accepted Dr. Heyn's gift of the $60,000 fountain which he had commissioned Miss Falkenstein to create for his Hollywood Hills home. He now has sold the house and, long a supporter of the Long Beach Museum, decided that the museum grounds would be an ideal setting for his graceful fountain.

Dr. Heyn will host a private party at his home Saturday when guests will view the Falkenstein fountain from 4 to 8 p.m.

Miss Falkenstein worked for two years — from the planning stage to final installation — on the copper tubing and fused glass sculpture. The flowing water is an integral part of the design. Most of her work was done on weekends and was twice interrupted when she made trips to Europe.

The massive fountain is actually in three sections, forming a whole sculpture. The center piece weighs about 2,000 pounds, each side segment about 1,500

Set in a terrazzo pool, the fountain is both an auditory and visual work as the water streams and splashes. Long Beach Museum director Jason Wong has tentatively chosen a site on the grounds, between two groups of trees, where the fountain would break the straight line of the ocean bluff. Placement actually would increase size of the grounds, since an existing fence would be removed.

When plans for a new museum building materialize, the fountain would still be in a favored location. The sculpture probably will be removed from the Heyn home by mid-March then will be stored in a public service warehouse in Long Beach until the terrazzo pool can be prepared for its installation.

IN SAN PEDRO Municipal Art Gallery, Municipal Building, Seventh and Beacon Streets, woodcuts by Edgar Dorsey Taylor will remain on display through Feb. 20.

A dedicated observer of nature, Taylor is a native Californian who has paddled a kayak the full length of the Baja Peninsula. From this experience and other travels have come inspiration for his woodcuts. He describes them as "celebrating the visual rhythms of the land, sea and sky of the last frontier."

The woodcut, he says, is the ideal medium to obtain the stark contrasts which dominate the primitive landscape.

Although Taylor has had one-man shows in Texas, Washington, D.C., Sacramento, San Francisco and New England, he is relatively unknown by local gallery goers.

The gallery is open from noon to 5 p.m. daily except Mondays.

THE WORK of an artist who had an oil painting reproduced in the 1970 UNICEF calendar goes on exhibit Wednesday at Long Beach Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave.

Herbert L. Kornfeld also has been a regular exhibitor in Long Beach Museum of Art's rental gallery. He will show at Bullock's, Lakewood, next month.

The artist has used the docks, shipyards and back country of the Long Beach area as a basis for much of his work. His UNICEF painting was of an area under the drawbridge.

Through March 12, his work may be seen Sundays through Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m and Saturdays from 7 to 10 p.m.

TUESDAY, 75 ceramic pieces from Thailand, Cambodia and Annam (Vietnam) will go on display at Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd. Borrowed from outstanding public and private collections in the Southeast Asia, the West Coast of the United States, and Hawaii, the works demonstrate the versatility and artistry of Southeast Asian potters of the past.

These objects may be viewed through April 30 on the first level of the Ahmanson Gallery.

KEITH CROWN, professor of fine arts at USC, will be guest lecturer for Long Beach Art Association Tuesday. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Fidelity Plaza, 555 E. Ocean Blvd.

This will be the fifth in LBAA's current series of special lecture programs. It will include a filmed painting demonstration which Crown made when he was visiting professor at the University of Illinois in 1970-71. Admission is $1 for non-members.

SILK SCREENS, prints, oils, watercolors and pen and ink sketches by Jack Rutherford will be shown today, next Sunday and Feb. 27 at 4647 Long Beach Blvd., from 2 to 5 p.m.

TO HONOR artists Berniece Kelley and Susie Griep, Cypress Cultural Arts Association will host a reception Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Cypress Civic Center, 5275 Orange Ave.

The two artists will exhibit through February. The public is invited to view the linocuts by Mrs. Griep and portraiture, florals, and still lifes by Mrs. Kelley.

"WE CALL it Pottery, Paints, Prints and Piffle — that's P-i-f-f-l-e.

"Piffle is an assortment of art items that don't fit into other categories," explained Virginia Garner, conference secretary for the Idyllwild campus of USC. She was discussing the Idyllwild Art Show and Auction to be held on the Idyllwild campus Saturday, next Sunday and Feb. 21.

Artists from all art fields will donate their work; proceeds will go to the ISOMATA scholarship fund. ISOMATA Associates is the Idyllwild campus support group.

WATERCOLORS ....by Long Beach artist Bob Peck will go on exhibit at Challis Galleries, 1930 South Coast Highway, Laguna Beach, Saturday. The artist is known throughout the Southland as Mr. Scribble, who, in clown costume, cartoons for children at charity events.

The Challis show includes many sketches of small craft marinas and fishing villages, testimony to Peck's abiding love of the sea and ships. He studied at Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, formerly was staff artist for Adm. J. M. Reeves and later was artist-photographer for the Cody, Wyo., Times, then was artist for Buffums' Department Stores. Currently, he is a graphic artist for Northrop Aviation.

Principal ballet roles cast

Evening, "Romeo and Juliet" with Miss Fracci, Nagy and Fernandez; "A Soldier's Tale" with Misses Wilson, Tracy, William Carter and Levins; "The River" with Prinz, Miss Gregory, Young and Misses D'Antuono and Wilson.

March 5, "Swan Lake" with Miss D'Antuono and Nagy.

Casts are subject to change without notice. Latecomers will not be seated until there is a suitable break in the performance. Matinees are at 2:30 p.m.; evening programs begin at 8:30.

LACLO accepting season reservations

Season tickets — all seats remaining after renewal subscription orders have been filled — now may be ordered by mail for Los Angeles Civic Light Opera's coming season.

Only mail orders are available now and no orders for individual shows can be accepted. Mail orders to Los Angeles Civic Light Opera, 135 N. Grand Ave., Suite 327.

A season ticket is for the same seat on the same night or matinee in the run of each show.

Productions will be "Applause" with Lauren Bacall, beginning April 25; "No, No, Nanette" with June Allyson, Dennis Day, Judy Canova, Sandra Deel and Jerry Antes, beginning May 16; "The Rothschilds" beginning June 27; and "An American in Paris" starring Victor Borge, beginning Aug. 22.

Each show will play for eight weeks in The Music Center Pavilion with the exception of "No, No, Nanette" which will be in the Ahmanson Theater for an extended summer engagement.

Although seats are available for all performances, widest choice is for Monday through Friday evenings and Wednesday matinees.

Fred Waring in Pasadena

Unable to schedule a date in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium this year, Fred Waring will present his "Like It is — Like It Was" show in Pasadena Civic Auditorium Feb. 24.

The 71-year-old Waring has recovered so well after his heart attack that he has resumed his activity of 55 years — conducting his Pennsylvanians, glee club and orchestra.

The "was" portion of the show spotlights old favorites; the "is" features music of today.

Tickets for the single performance engagement are on sale at the box office and all Mutual ticket agencies.

Norwegian bill planned Friday

The Montagnana Trio and soprano Helena Sundgren will present an evening of Norwegian music Friday under auspices of the American Scandinavian Foundation. The program will begin at 8 p.m. in Sutro Auditorium, 4900 Wilshire Blvd.

Dr. John Yoell, author of a book on Scandinavian composers, and Dr. Edward Applebaum, professor of music at UC, Santa Barbara, also will take part. Dr. Applebaum is composing an opera based on the life of Edvard Munch.

Among guests will be George Knap Thestrup, Consul-General of Norway, and other members of the consular corps.

The public is invited without charge.

Encounter in the woods

This charming fellow, the Wolf, played by Paul Fidler of Long Beach, meets Little Red Riding Hood, depicted by Marie Alice Moreno of Corcoran, in the forest, just as he planned. Scene is from Charlotte B. Chorpenning's adaptation of "Little Red Riding Hood" to be given by the Children's Theater Company of Cal State, Long Beach. Performances, in the Little Theater on campus, will begin Friday at 7:30 p.m., Saturday at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m., and next Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Kenneth Rugg directs.

Want an end to war? Write your senator, not Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: Over the years one of the most frustrating aspects of being "Dear Abby" has been my inability to provide solutions for some problems. One in particular, since it is not within my domain to "solve," and affects so many American families.

I refer to lettters from individuals and organizations urging me to ask my readers to write to Hanoi, asking that our prisoners of war be released, or humanely treated, or allowed to communicate with their families, or that a "list" be published so that families will know whether their serviceman is alive or dead.

My dear readers, you are appealing to the wrong person. You should be appealing to your congressmen, senators, and president, urging them to bring an end to this senseless war in Vietnam.

If OUR country were being bombed, would YOU agree to release the enemies' war prisoners?

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a sweet motherless 14-year-old niece who comes to me with her problems. She has asked me so many times to tell her how to be "popular." Is there something you can recommend for her to read? I know there is no easy road to popularity, but I woud like to help her. Please?

AUNT LAURA

DEAR AUNT LAURA: Will this do? I wrote it in my column nearly 10 years ago, and it's still true:

"The key to being popular with both sexes is: Be kind. Be honest. Be tactful. If you can't be beautiful (or handsome) be well-groomed, tastefully attired trim of figure, and KEEP A SMILE ON YOUR FACE! Be clean in mind and body. If you're not a brain, try harder. If you're not a great athlete, be a good sport.

"Try to be a standout at something. If you can't dance or sing, learn to play an instrument. Think for yourself, but respect the rules. Be generous with kind words and affectionate gestures, but save the heavy artillery for later. You'll be glad you did. If you need help, ask God. If you don't need anything, THANK God!"

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your readers that holding one's hand over the telephone doesn't always block out the sound.

I know a very dear little old lady. Her children live out of the state so I telephone her daily to chat with her. She is very alert, well-informed and has a wonderful sense of humor at 86.

Several days ago I called and one of her daughters answered the telephone. After the usual "How are you's, etc." she said, "I suppose you'd like to talk to Mother," whereupon I replied, "Yes if she's not busy." Then she apparently placed her hand over the telephone, but I heard her say, "Mom, it's your gabby friend. I'll give you 5 minutes, then I'll ring the doorbell and you say we have to go."

I managed to be pleasant, but I felt very foolish not to have been suspicious of that doorbell routine. It had occurred each time this daughter was in town.

WISER NOW

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GRATEFUL BEYOND WORDS": Most small-town clergymen are overworked and underpaid, so since you say you can "well afford it," offer him a gift of cash. If he wishes to donate it to the church, let it be his option. Your letter indicates that your clergyman went far above and beyond the call of duty in your behalf, so be as generous with him as he was with you. (And if he's "insulted," you can blame me.)

Aces on Bridge

Dear Mr. Corn:

Your advice, please! We managed a very poor score on this hand. Where did we go wrong? The club king was finessable and six clubs was on. I was East.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Double	2 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Sold Out,
Dewitt, N. Y.

Answers: You were only half-right in passing two spades. While you had little more than the strength promised by your takeout double, you had it in aces and kings, thus you had great defense against four spades. I would have doubled again or bid three clubs. Since the bidding shows partner has neither spades nor hearts, he must have clubs and diamonds. West's choice was not as clear. While I am not too critical of his pass, I would have preferred a bid of three diamonds. The final contract would have depended on what action took place over three diamonds. However, you should have never expected to reach slam.

Dear Mr. Corn:

What does one do with plenty of distribution and no points? After my partner opened a standard two-no-trump bid I was not sure of the proper action with the following hand:

♥ 987643
♦ 876532

Jumped and Rejumped
Wilmette, Ill.

Answer: The correct bid is a direct jump to four hearts. A jump to game over any no-trump opening is one of the few clear "shoutout" bids in bridge. Any attempt to show both suits is inadvisable, since partner would then expect more in the way of high cards.

Everything's for the birds at Hawaii's Paradise Park

By HERB SHANNON
L. P-T Travel Editor

HONOLULU — Paradise Park is for the birds. So are your earrings, glasses, ball-point pens and bright, shiny beads.

Prominently posted signs warn of pickpocket parrots at the entrance to this 15-acre lush tropical garden in the Manoa Valley, one of the greenest gullies in the steep volcanic slopes ringing Hawaii's capital city.

There is no escape from the friendly feathered thieves. Both entrance and exit for the botanical garden trails are through the double gates and spiraling ramps of a four-story free-flight aviary stocked with a thousand or more beady-eyed birds.

Visitors find it pays to remove jewelry before entering. Curators tell of diamonds being plucked from ring settings, wrist-watches removed with a single snap of a beak, pens flying off to the far reaches of the giant screened-in cage.

THE RAINBOW-HUED parrots, cockatoos and other tropical flying fauna will eat seeds gently from your hands while eyeing your valuables. They will take anything loose and loosen anything that isn't.

Like the con men at a county fair, the birds work in teams. Festooning themselves on the head, shoulders and back of a likely prospect, one will distract the victim while the others nip off with the loot.

They also respond to the challenge of a lofty perch. Four of them descended at once on Paul Dean, Arizona Republic columnist and the tallest member of our group. Six foot two, shirt of blue, which suddenly became buttonless a dozen steps inside.

The birds ignored the rest of us, once our supply of sunflower seeds from the vending machine was exhausted. Possibly they let me alone because I threatened to let the first one going for my glasses have it right in the beak.

I think they got the message. I found a peace offering in the form of an extra ball-point pen in my shirt pocket when we emerged at the ground level of the gardens.

PONDERING THIS mystery as we strolled the jungle trails and crossed gurgling mountain streams on rustic footbridges, I finally deduced that I was the thief. The pen probably belonged to the waiter in the Chart Room of the Ilikai Hotel, where the night before we had enjoyed the hospitality of Western Airlines' celebration of its new Champagne Service policy of bubbly for everybody, including coach passengers.

More birds inhabit the open grounds of the park. A flock of pink flamingos stalk serenely in a blue lagoon, and here and there a caged cockatoo screams defiance at intruders on the paths.

Twice daily, feathered performers put on a midway pageant in a pavilion amphitheater. On cue, they ride bicycles on a high wire, trounce the ringmaster at card and shell games, parachute from a simulated rocketship and skate around the arena in their own version of the roller derby.

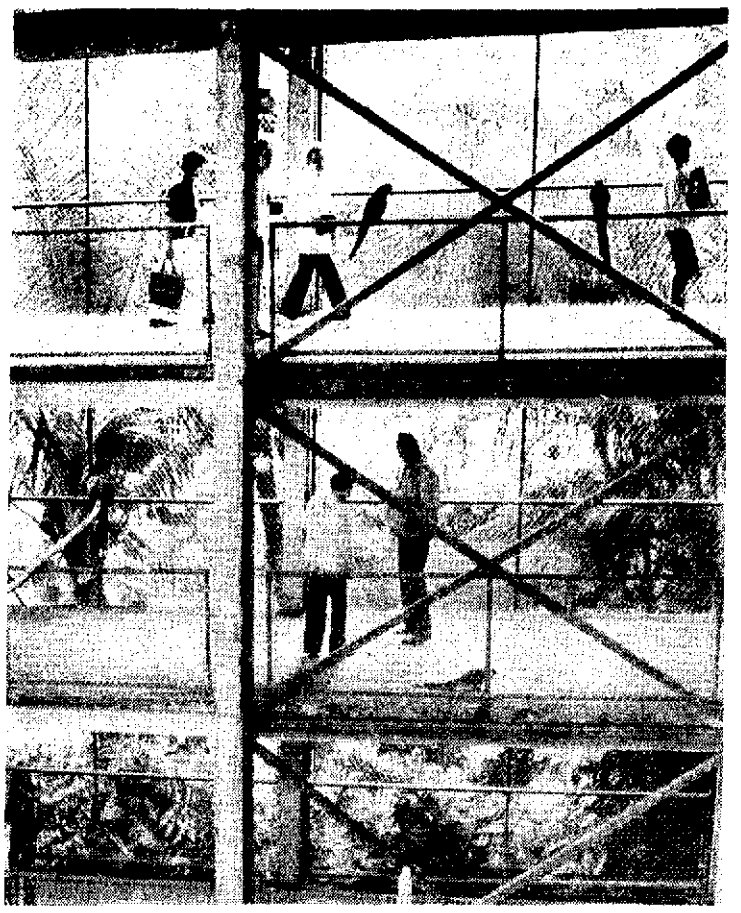

Along the footpaths through bamboo forests, the tangled maze of a Hau tree jungle, past waterfalls and pools, visitors find a profusion of exotic island blossoms. Bright red anthuriums with yellow tongues, delicate orchids and bromeliads, fragrant ginger and jasmine grow side by side in their native setting.

In the dense shade of the overgrown pathways it is easy to imagine you have seen a Menehune, the legendary leprechaun of Hawaii, darting among the breadfruit and coffee trees.

ADMISSION TO this memorable Hawaiian experience is $2.75 for adults. Open-air trams are available for those who wish to ride the wider trails traversing most of the park.

Paradise Park is 15 minutes by car from the elegant Ilikai, a high-rise hostelry anchoring the west end of Waikiki Beach next to the Ala Wai Marina. Bus tours run frequently from Waikiki and downtown Honolulu.

Our group of four booked a rental car from the Avis office in the Ilikai lobby. The No. 2 choice was in preference to Honolulu cab fares. It's the only place I've seen taxi meters on brand-new Cadillacs.

AVIARY ENTRANCE spans several levels at Paradise Park.

Hong Kong offers copter flights

Hong Kong Air offers daily helicopter service between Kai Tak Airport to Kowloon to Hong Kong island from 7:45 a.m. to 11:15 p.m.

The five-minute trip, an excellent way for visitors to supplement their photography of one of the world's most photogenic skylines and busiest harbors, costs $13.50 roundtrip, according to Trans World Airlines.

Children, 2 to 12 years of age, fly half fare on the 5-passenger copters.

Dog races scheduled

A two-day dog sled tournament will be held at Bear Valley Springs, 123 miles north of Los Angeles in the Tehachapi Mountains, on the next weekend. The races will be sponsored by the Southern California Sled Dog Club.

There will be no admission charge. Parking will also be free. Competition will be held both days from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The eight-event tournament along a five-mile course will include endurance and weight races as well as special races for children and women.

How to cut the cost of your European tour by as much as $300.*

You take a charter flight tour now being offered, for the first time ever, by the world's largest travel company, American Express.

What's the catch?
There isn't any.
American Express Company is chartering entire planes for these special tours. So your air transportation is computed at the charter rate which is lower than the non-charter rate charged by regular I.A.T.A. carriers.
This means substantial savings (up to $300* on the total tour price) to you.
This offer is open to anyone. You don't have to join any clubs in advance. Or prove membership in some organization. You don't have to do anything.

American Express, a trusted name for 122 years.
The American Express name is one of the best known in the tour business. 122 years of service testify to its reliability and trustworthiness.

Where the tours go.
Almost everywhere in Europe. To cities like London, Paris, Geneva, Rome, Florence, Brussels and many more. We have 18 different charter flight/escorted tour itineraries. With 193 different departures. There are 16-day tours, 23-day tours and 30-day tours. The land portion of the tours begin in either London, Athens or Malaga.

Where they leave from and when.
All American Express charter tour flights fly directly from Los Angeles to Europe on a Saturday and return on a Sunday.
They begin in April, 1972 and carry through the end of September, 1972, with flights leaving every weekend.

Expect first-class service.
All of the planes on the American Express charter tour flights are big, comfortable Douglas super DC-8's or Boeing 707's. The same jet aircraft used by many major scheduled airlines. They are operated by World Airways, the world's largest supplemental carrier. On board, you'll enjoy sumptuous meals, wine and cocktails.

American Express will never leave you stranded in Europe.
With American Express, you need never worry about being stranded in Europe. You have complete assurance that no matter what happens to prevent you from returning with your charter tour group, American Express will get you home. More than 800 offices of American Express Company, its subsidiaries and representatives around the world offer their assistance, if you need it.

American Express will also guarantee a 100% refund of your total tour cost if your plans change for a permitted reason and you must cancel...provided the cancellation takes place up to 24 hours before scheduled departure. All details are explained in the free "Charters to Europe" book.

AMERICAN EXPRESS Cancellation Protection
This certificate can save you hundreds of dollars in air fare charges.
American Express guarantees 100 percent refund if cancellation occurs for a permitted reason up to 24 hours before departure.

How to find out more about our European tours.
Fill in the coupon and send it to us. We will send you our new 60-page, illustrated "Charters to Europe" book. And also our 236-page "The Europe Book" containing information on all of our regular European tours. Both are free. You may also pick up copies of both books at any American Express Travel Office or at your local travel agent.

There are more hotels to accommodate crowds in Hawaii

BY STAN DELAPLANE

Honolulu, Hawaii

Warm weather and a small lull in the crush of visitors to blue Waikiki. Additional hotels may be the reason, too.

The new Sheraton Waikiki (towering over the old pink palace Royal Hawaiian) added 1,900 more rooms. When all these hotels are full, everybody on the beach have to turn over together.

GOOD NEW Japanese restaurant: The Maiko in the Ilikai Hotel. It's run by the famous Furusato restaurant of Tokyo. (They intend to open two more along Waikiki.)

All standard Japanese dishes plus an excellent sushi bar. Only sushi bar in Honolulu that I know of. (Shushi are the rice rolls wrapped in seaweed. If you are buying food in the islands, you'll find them in supermarkets.)

"We'd like to rent a house or apartment in Hawaii for the summer . . ."

Hawaii Visitors Bureau, Honolulu, will send you a free Hawaii Hotel Guide. Places are rated: Standard to de luxe. Tells prices. Whether it has a kitchen. Swimming pool. Pick an apartment hotel on the island you want.

Finding a house. That's harder. Good Honolulu beach houses rent at a whacking $1,000 to $2,000 a month. But I saw a few ads for house in the outer islands weekly papers for $300 or so.

"Our two sons want to try to get jobs in Hawaii during the summer. I've told them the long hair they wear will be against them . . ."

Correct. Hawaii is very up tight on the hippie thing. Don't know about job.

Used to be there was an on season, off season and they used summer help. But there's no off season now. Hotels keep permanent workers. MANY new hotels though.

"I hear we can buy things from Red China in Hong Kong and are allowed to bring them home . . ."

Can do. It's a fairly new ruling. But be sure to CARRY them home. Don't SHIP.

Anything shipped pays duty.

I had to pay 90 per cent on some Red China table cloths. Thought they'd come in at regular duty which is low. But no. We don't like Chairman Mao THAT well — yet. Maybe Nixon will change it after this visit.

LOTS OF Hong Kong shops always carried Red China goods. Now there are two Red China stores: Chinese Arts and Crafts at the end of the Star Ferry on the Kowloon side. Another on Nathan Road at Jordan on the Kowloon side.

Cheap imports in this one and marked up higher than the same things you'll find in other shops.

(Probably higher priced to give face. Face being more important than profit.)

"While buying in the Far East, do you bargain?"

Everywhere but in Japan. No bargaining in big department stores like Lane Crawford in Hong Kong. But in all small shops, yes.

Whatever they ask, offer half. If they accept, you were overpricing yourself anyway.

HONG KONG is the shopping town. You could take weeks trying to go through all the shops. Silks. Ivory. Japanese cameras. Pearls. Gold jewelry. Swiss watches. Brocades. Thai silk. Good prices.

But BARGAIN! East Indian stores open with the highest, incredible asking prices. Seems to be part of the game.

"It sounded good what you said about staying in Japanese inns. But how do you handle the language?"

Couple of ryokans in Kyoto where they speak some English. Some at mountain resorts and some at Atami by the sea. Japanese tourist office tells you which ones.

Ryokans where I've stayed had NO English. I had a phrase book. Didn't try to say it. I just pointed. We had some lively times.

Camels to race again at Indio annual Date Festival

The madcap and completely unpredictable camel races are again scheduled as afternoon arena entertainment for the 1972 National Date Festival, Feb. 18 to 27, at Indio.

The "ships of the desert" tie in with the festival's Arabian Nights theme.

Camels are generally associated with the deserts of Asia and Africa, but the animals also have an interesting history in the United States. Skeletal remains have been uncovered indicating the world's first camels may have roamed North America millions of years ago.

JUST BEFORE the Civil War, camels again popped into the limelight in the U.S. They were imported to be beasts of burden with the thought of establishing an overland freight route to California.

But the war started before the route could be established and, for a brief period, the Union tried without much success to press the animals into military service. Main reason for the failure was the camels kept soaring the daylights out of the more servicable Union Army horses and mules.

Some of the camels were sold for use in the mines of Nevada. Others were sold to early-day circuses and carnivals. A herd was also stationed on a ranch near Fort Tejon.

Later, remnants of the herd were in San Pedro and used to transport freight between the harbor and Los Angeles.

In 1860, Capt. W. S. Hancock of Los Angeles for a time tried a camel express between Los Angeles and Fort Mojave. But in all these ventures, the animals caused the same trouble they did with the army.

MANY OF the camels in those early days were finally turned loose to fend for themselves on the desert and, until fairly recent times, there were persistent stories of occasional camel sightings in the desert Southwest.

Now back again are the crusty camels to give the jockeys a rough ride and get hilarious boots and howls from fans in the National Date Festival's grandstand.

TRIP TIPS

Plan travels according to the year of your birth

By MARIE MATTSON

Your personality is determined by the year — not the month — in which you were born, say Orientals.

Someone speaks of being a tiger or dragon-year person rather than being Aries or Gemini.

The Oriental zodiac also influences everyday living. It's unlucky to marry in a monkey year. When a horse year coincides with the fire sign, fewer babies are born. No man will marry a fire-horse woman; she would be responsible for his death.

Tuesday starts the Year of the Rat. Look for your birth year below to determine your sign and travel horoscope:

YEAR OF THE RAT (1900, 1912, 1924, 1936, 1948, 1960): You're careful about money, shop for good bargains. You may find the right trip in airline group tours to Europe, the Orient, South Pacific or air-sea tours to the Caribbean. As you enjoy spending money, good shopping in all these areas will be an added attraction.

YEAR OF THE OX (1901, 1913, 1925, 1937, 1949, 1961): You're clever with your hands; might enjoy studying weaving, painting, ceramics, photography or other crafts at San Miguel Allende or Banff art schools. Patience and an easygoing nature make you an especially good traveling companion.

YEAR OF THE TIGER (1902, 1914, 1926, 1938, 1950, 1962): Your sensitive nature lets you enjoy travel anywhere. As you're strong-willed, try to avoid situations where you might clash with older people or those in authority. Men born under this sign are especially lucky.

YEAR OF THE RABBIT (1903, 1915, 1927, 1939, 1951, 1963): Because you weigh decisions carefully, you pick the right vacation spots and get good value for travel dollars. Las Vegas, San Juan and other places with casinos will prove enjoyable for a few days. You need companionship, are not a good solo traveler.

YEAR OF THE DRAGON (1904, 1916, 1928, 1940, 1952, 1964): Good health and energy let you travel almost anywhere. Being somewhat soft-hearted, people con you easily, so exercise discretion in friendships you make along the way. Men born under this sign are especially fortunate.

YEAR OF THE SNAKE (1905, 1917, 1929, 1941, 1953, 1965): You're inclined to be the one who choses where to go, for you feel your own judgment is best. Because of your sympathetic nature, you'll be the one, too, who tries to help fellow travelers in distress.

YEAR OF THE HORSE (1906, 1918, 1930, 1942, 1954, 1966): With your love of entertainment and enjoyment of large cities, London, Paris and Rome especially attract you. Being independent, you travel well on your own, although you like companionship, too.

YEAR OF THE SHEEP (1907, 1919, 1931, 1943, 1955, 1967): Because of your interest in arts, Europe and the Orient have a great deal to offer you. Your compassionate nature can bring you unhappiness when you encounter poverty, but remember that when you travel it helps make jobs for other people.

YEAR OF THE MONKEY (1908, 1920, 1932, 1944, 1956, 1968): Travel is especially rewarding for you because you read and see a great deal, have a retentive memory. You're the inventive type, possess a genius for solving problems, can take care of yourself very well on journeys.

YEAR OF THE COCK (1909, 1921, 1933, 1945, 1957, 1969): If you're traveling alone, consider a guided tour. This is the way to see the most in the least time, and you like to be kept busy. You sometimes have a tendency to overspend, take along a credit card to get instant cash if needed.

YEAR OF THE DOG (1910, 1922, 1934, 1946, 1958, 1970): As a champion of justice, you're inclined to want to clear out all the evils you see in the world. When abroad, however, remember you are a guest, so withhold comments about things that displease. You inspire confidence, make friends easily while traveling.

YEAR OF THE BOAR (1911, 1923, 1935, 1947, 1959, 1971): A good knowledge of areas you'll visit makes globetrotting especially rewarding for you. You like to solve problems on your own, but abroad you'll often save time and energy if you ask for assistance.

World cruise adds attractions

Complimentary shore tours around the world are being offered to passengers on Pacific Far East Line's premier world cruise aboard the SS Mariposa this spring.

The 90-day voyage will depart the West Coast March 9, with the all first-class Mariposa visiting 23 ports of call in the areas of Polynesia and Melanesia, Australia and New Zealand, New Guinea, Indonesia, Malaysia, India, East Africa, South Africa, South America, the Caribbean and Mexico.

Among complimentary attractions provided during the cruise are gala dinner party evenings at the Maeva Beach Hotel in Papeete, Tahiti; and at the Curacao Hilton in Willemstad, Curacao.

Elizabeth R

"Elizabeth R," starring Academy Award winner Glenda Jackson, premieres on Masterpiece Theater, 10 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 28, in the first of six 90-minute episodes on the life of Queen Elizabeth I.

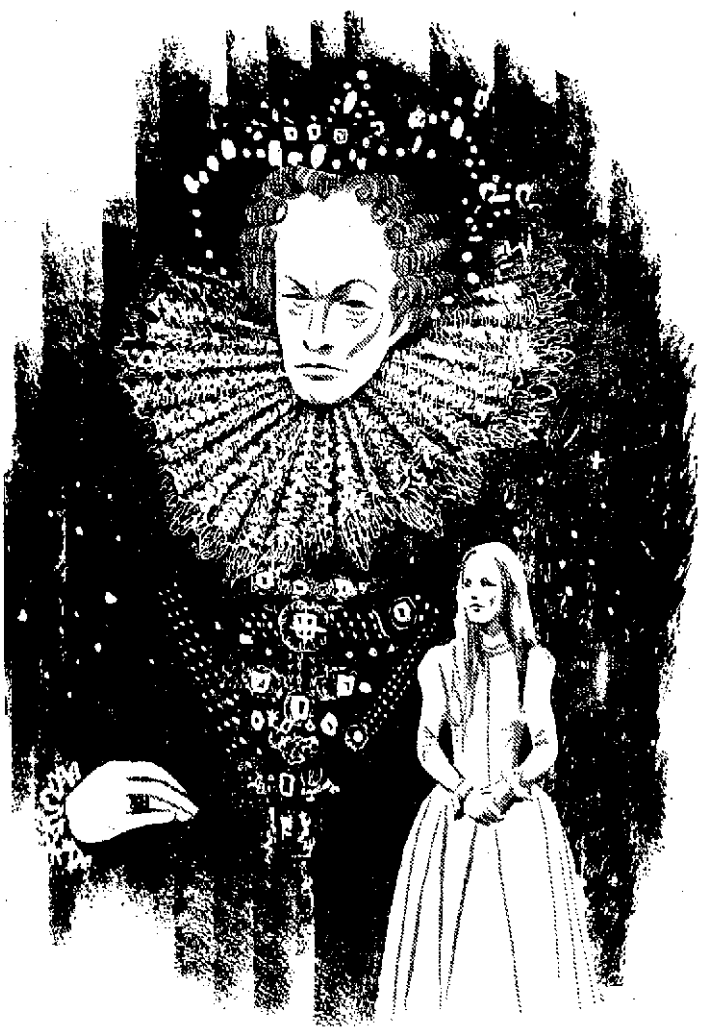

As with "The Six Wives of Henry VIII," the plays are written by different authors. Together they present a chronological picture of one of the most colorful periods in English history.

In each of the six episodes, we are introduced to a different face of Elizabeth R: as a young princess flirting with Thomas Seymour, husband of one of her father's former wives; as the 25-year-old monarch caught up in her great romance with the Earl of Leicester; as Europe's most eligible queen, fending off foreign suitors; as a shrewd schemer playing cat and mouse with her cousin, Mary Queen of Scots; as a heroine who inspires England to defeat the Spanish Armada; and as an aging dowager who begins her sad decline.

The first episode, "The Lion's Cub," was written by John Hale, whose screenplay for "Anne of a Thousand Days," written with Bridget Boland, won a nomination for the Academy Award and awards from the Writers' Guild of America.

Elizabeth is portrayed by Glenda Jackson, who won the 1970 Academy Award for best actress in "Women in Love," and was chosen as actress of the year by the New York Film Critics. Ronald Hines plays William Cecil, Daphne Slater plays Mary Tudor, Peter Jeffrey portrays Philip of Spain and Rachel Kempson is Kat Ashley, Elizabeth's governess. Four members of the cast of "The Six Wives of Henry VIII" continue in the same roles — Rosalie Crutchley as Catherine Parr, John Ronane as Thomas Seymour, Bernard Hepton as Thomas Cranmer and Basil Dignam as Gardiner, Bishop of Winchester and Lord Chancellor.

Alistair Cooke sets the scene and introduces the characters.

GLENDA JACKSON plays Elizabeth in the series "Elizabeth R," from the young Elizabeth of the first episode, "The Lion's Cub," to the dying 70-year-old queen.

DEMOND WILSON (r) helps Redd Foxx steady himself in scene from "Sanford and Son," 8 p.m., Friday, Ch. 4.

Redd Foxx: up front now

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

Comedian Redd Foxx began playing clubs about 30 years ago in New York. It was "a basement place uptown on Seventh Avenue called the Mimo Club." He did pantomime stuff, sang funny and clowned it up. By his own admission, he was more clown than comedian.

It was in the 1940s that he began to develop as a standup humorist, in Baltimore, "at a place called Gamby's." There was some burlesque stuff. There were always pretty girls around.

Slowly the name of Redd Foxx began to get around. Then, in the 1950s and 1960s, in Los Angeles and places within shouting distance, the name started gaining in impact. In some quarters he was regarded as a sort of "inside" legend for show business aficionados; a black comedian with an impish appearance, his wit was razor-sharp and deadly and very racy.

Now, suddenly, this wonderfully funny man has burst upon the national television scene to rave reviews and smashing ratings in a new NBC-TV Friday night series, "Sanford and Son," a comedy in which he plays an aging Los Angeles junk dealer with a 32-year-old bachelor son.

"SANFORD AND Son," made by the same production company that turns out "All In The Family," is simply a very funny show, and Foxx shows us what veteran comedy experience is all about. He gives a performance that is a joy to behold. And he's enjoying it.

"People everywhere been waving and saying hello to me," he said in an interview. "Kids on the street. People in the market. And after only one show, too. The thing's been phenomenal. It showed a lot of people watched."

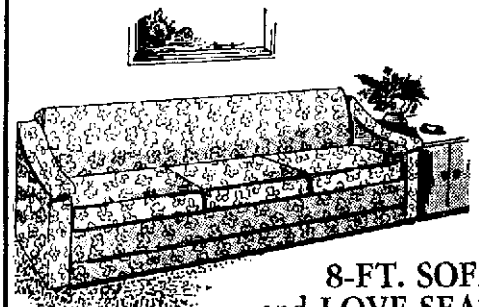

Sitting at a table with Demond Wilson, who plays the son with whom he has an abrasive but poignant relationshp in the show, Foxx said:

"Sometimes you get a

GEORGE ERES, Editor

PAN AND FAN MAIL

RE Catherine Jackson's letter of a few weeks ago concerning the death of Peter Duel: I, too, was deeply saddened by the news. And now, after having seen Roger Davis take over the role of Hannibal Heyes, I must say that I feel the show has suffered at the loss of Duel.

This is not meant to be a reflection on Davis' acting; he's an excellent actor and, in fact, I can't think of anyone who could have better handled what must have been a very difficult job.

But the fact remains that no one but Peter Duel could really play Hannibal Heyes; the character was so much his creation that when he died, a part of Heyes died too. Perhaps it's too early to judge something like this fairly, but I feel the show will be so much the less for his absence.

At any rate, how is "Smith and Jones" doing in the ratings? What are its chances for being renewed. In spite of the changes, I still enjoy the show and would like to see it come back next year.

Kris Fawcett,
Log Beach

(The "Alias Smith and Jones" ratings are not what you'd call sensational and being opposite Flip Wilson has not been in the top 40 shows. No decision on the show will be made for a month or so — reaction to Roger Davis' entry is being studied. The new schedule for ABC is expected sometime in March).

"MARCUS WELBY, M.D." . . . has scheduled, for March 7, Ch. 7, a drama of special interest to all parents and prospective parents on the subject of cystic fibrosis.

Called "A Taste of Salt," the story examines a family's reaction to the birth of a cystic fibrosis afflicted baby. It offers glimpses of the disease's symptoms, treatment and the parental psychological and emotional adjustment to the baby's inherited and incurable condition . . .

Volunteers in the Long Beach Breath of Life Campaign, to find a control for cystic fibrosis, should be particularly interested in this dramatic, human and hopeful family story . . .

Kay Zellmer, president,
L.B. Chapter, National C-F Research Foundation.

DR. SEUSS' LORAX

Another 'thunk-up' villain

Newest in the Dr. Seuss rogues' gallery of "thunk-up" villains is The Once-ler, who appears in "Dr. Seuss' the Lorax," animated cartoon filmed based on the author's current children's book, to be broadcast at 8:30 p.m., Monday, Ch. 2.

Actually, The Once-ler only almost appears since nobody, including his creator, Ted (Dr. Seuss) Geisel, knows exactly what he looks like. In the film as in the book, only his long, flexuous arms are visible as he hides behind the shutters of his lerkim and knits his thneeds.

Is there a reason for The Once-ler's invisibility, the author was asked. "Well, yes," replied Geisel with his Seussian twinkle. "When I began the illustrations, I discovered to my dismay that I didn't know how to draw a Once-ler. The Lorax was easy, because a Lorax looks like a Lorax and nothing else. And a Brown Barbaloot is, of course, your classic barbaloot in a brown suit. But a Once-ler?"

THE ECOLOGICALLY oriented Lorax points an accusing finger-type appendage at a Thneed, a not really necessary something made by a greedy Once-ler at the expense of some magical, beautiful wildlife known as Truffula Trees.

ALTHOUGH it is a children's fable in the familiar Dr. Seuss style of poetic sense-nonsense, "The Lorax" carries a theme and a message aimed directly at adults; a plea for the protection of man's environment against man's greed.

The Once-ler represents that avarice as he ignores the warnings of the Lorax and sets about chopping down all the truffula trees to manufacture the thneeds that bring wealth and power to him and his brothers and his uncles and his aunts.

If you don't have a thneed in your closet, you're missing one of the great whatchamacallits of the modern age.

But don't fret. By not owning a thneed, you're helping to save the truffula trees, not to mention the swomee swans, the barbaloots and the humming-fish — and that makes you one of the good guys.

A THNEED according to its inventor, The Once-ler, is "a fine something that all people need; it answers humanity's each and every need."

The Once-ler's thneeds are made from truffula trees, and as public demand (and The Once-ler's greed) increase, the trees decline until all that remains is one tiny seed.

What, exactly, is a thneed? "Well, it's not exactly anything — but on the other hand, it's exactly almost everything," explains author Geisel with typical Seussian logic.

A thneed is a shirt, a sock, a glove, a hat. It can be a hammock, a toothbrush holder, a canary nest or a windshield wiper. It is good in soup, cures backache, grooms hair and eliminates carburetor rust. Among other things.

The Trial of Mary Lincoln

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press

A little-known incident in American history, the sanity trial of Abraham Lincoln's widow, has been made into a one-hour television opera.

"The Trial of Mary Lincoln," will be seen at 8 p.m., Monday, Ch. 28, two days after the anniversary of the birth of the Civil War president — on National Educational Television's 212 stations.

New York born composer Thomas Pasatieri says he is pleased that selected audiences who have seen the opera reacted to it as they would to a play.

"I think the purpose of opera is entertainment," he says. "It's a show. People have to be entertained and moved. "I want people not to be aware of what they're hearing. I want them to be immersed in the theatrical experience."

PASATIERI, 26, has written nine operas, all produced except one. He is in the generation whose strongest entertainment force has been the movies.

Pasatieri said he thought in terms of film as he wrote "The Trial of Mary Lincoln." He says, "TV can do flashbacks, voice-overs, lap dissolves, and I tried to take advantage of all that."

When he received the commission from NET Opera Theater — the first it had given — to write an opera, Pasatieri got in touch with Anne Howard Bailey, who had written an opera libretto for him before and who has written some 450 TV scripts. She thought of three or four subjects and Pasatieri chose Mary Lincoln.

"I FEEL she is a contemporary subject. The pressure she felt, I think many women feel today. She was an intelligent, strong, personable, articulate woman.

"The concept was that the trial itself really unhinges her. It makes her have to think back over all of her tragedy. All of them are accusing her and she freaks out. I don't think she would have been judged today."

"Another reason I want-

Concentration on television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Associated Press

A studio contestant, about to start playing "Concentration" during a recent taping, suddenly became very nervous.

As host Bob Clayton moved with accustomed ease to simmer her down, the woman remarked plaintively, "I'd feel a lot more comfortable if I did this with my ironing board in front of me."

The remark helps explain what seems to be a mystery to so many television viewers with 9-to-5 jobs: the continued popularity of daytime game shows, panel shows and, of course, soap operas. The daytime shows, for most women, offer companionship.

"I don't think any of us feel as though our show is the Holy Grail," Clayton said. "I believe we just hope it will please and entertain people."

"CONCENTRATION" is, quite simply, a memory game, with two contestants competing to match numbers on a board of 30 squares — an adaptation of a child's game. Of course, it is fancied up with prizes and a guessing game involving a rebus. The remarkable thing about the game, which doesn't try for humor or even to stretch the viewer's intellect, is that it is now in its 14th year on the network. Some soap operas are older, but it is the dean of the game shows, an area in which a newcomer who survives for more than the first 13 weeks is counted as almost a hit.

Clayton, who has been with the program almost since its inception, was the central figure in a rare demonstration of the power and loyalty of the audience.

Hugh Downs had served for the first 10 years as quiet-mannered host of the show, with Clayton backstopping him as announcer and substitute host.

Downs stepped out of the series in 1969 and for some three months Clayton temporarily took over the hosting chores. When NBC decided to put announcer Ed McMahon into "Concentration," letters poured in from viewers, outraged at what they considered unfair tactics. Worse, the ratings of the show started to decline.

"OF COURSE I was upset and thought about leaving," Clayton said. "But I like the show, and I liked having a steady job. Anyway, after about six months, I was moved back."

The five-a-week series now is perking away comfortably — somewhere in the middle of the daytime list in terms of popularity and without too tough competition: reruns of old situation comedies on CBS and local programming on ABC stations and affiliates.

While some game-show hosts consider their jobs a sort of rip-off and busy themselves with other projects, Clayton makes a full-time job out of his: He spends one day just answering his mail.

Six shows are taped each week, with "Concentration" using a studio two days and "Jeopardy," another NBC game, using it another two.

"That extra show each week builds up so that we can occasionally take a break," Clayton said.

WHEN he is not guiding contestants through their paces, Clayton is likely to be flying around making personal appearances, presiding over ribbon-cuttings, addressing groups — "I'll do almost anything useful if it gives me a chance to talk about 'Concentration,'" he remarked.

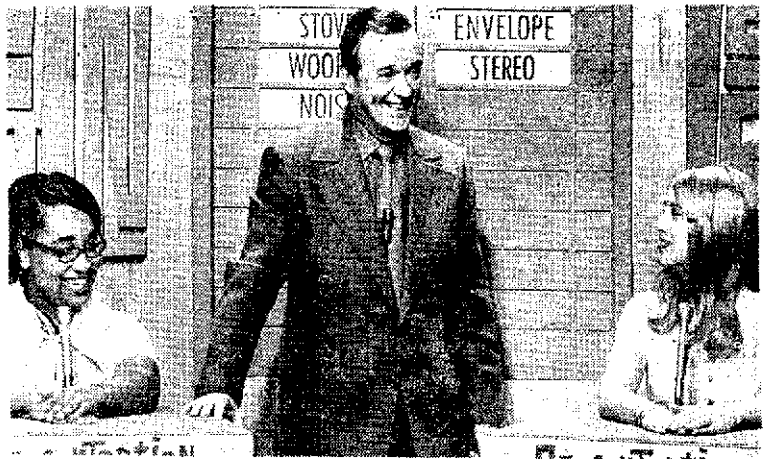

The job of being shepherd to contestants, usually persons who have had no experience with either cameras or microphones, is more complicated than Clayton makes it look.

One problem often is keeping the studio audience from blowing the game.

"Most of the people who come to see our show play it at home," he said. "Naturally they continue to do that when they are here and, often unconsciously, call out answers."

Prizes on the show range from gags — on a recent game the gifts matched up by contestants included "a candy kiss" and "an old flame" — to large and expensive items including jewelry, wardrobes of clothes, 1,000 books, mink coats, vacation trips, cash. Most are gathered by the show staff in exchange for program credits, the normal procedure on programs of this kind.

Clayton himself has been interested in show business since his teens — "I wanted to be an actor but I was perfectly terrible."

BOB CLAYTON, in studio with a couple of contestants, genially host the daytime television game show, "Concentration."

TV NOTEBOOK

The number of households equipped with one or more color television receivers increased to 32,800,000 (52.6 per cent of total TV households) as of Jan. 1, according to the National Broadcasting Company's latest quarterly estimate. During 1971, 5,200,000 homes acquired their first color receivers.

The NBC quarterly estimates are based on a variety of industry source data, including reports of color set production, sales, imports and dealer inventories.

CARROLL O'CONNOR, star of "All in the Family," has been voted the 1972 "Man of the Year" by the National Association of Television Program Executives.

Previous CBS Television Network stars who have received this honor include Ed Sullivan, Bob "Captain Kangaroo" Keeshan and Walter Cronkite.

REDD FOXX, star of "Sanford and Son," (see Page 1) was not always named Redd Foxx.

He was born Dec. 9, 1922 as John Elroy Sanford. It would be many years later that he would tell producer Aaron Ruben his real name and would lend it to his first television series.

John Sanford took the name "Redd Foxx" from a popular expression of the Forties — "foxy." And he had long been called "Red", as that was a popular name given by blacks to light-skinned black people.

"I added a 'd' to Red and an 'x' to Foxx, so I wouldn't be confused with a color or an animal," explained Redd. "And little kids remember the name easily, even if they can't always spell it right."

Now, all the names surrounding him in "Sanford and Son" have a special meaning for him. Fred Sanford is the name of his brother, who died five years ago. His son Lamont (Demond Wilson) is named for Lamont Ousley, a friend who he ran away from home with him when he was 13 to join a band. And the Rev. Tremble, a recurring character on the show, is named for Steve Tremble, another friend with whom Redd ran away.

ROBERT LOGGIA, the television, stage and film actor, has been signed for a regularly featured role on "The Secret Storm," daytime drama series seen Mondays through Fridays, Ch. 2. He will play Frank Carver, managing editor of the Herald, the fictional Woodbridge, N.Y., newspaper.

In addition to touring with national companies of "Picnic" and "Macbeth," Loggia has made guest appearances on well over one hundred television series. Most recently he starred in the series "T.H.E. Cat."

TRICIA TOYOTA, Japanese - American, has been named to the Ch. 4 news staff as a field reporter.

THOUGH the women's liberation movement boasts supporters in all professions and walks of life, it can't claim a champion in pretty blonde actress Elke Sommer. "Women's lib has all the charms of a pit full of snakes to me," Elke said. "I wouldn't know what I'd be liberated from," she said. "The American woman is the most liberated in the world."

KCET, Ch. 28, has received a $51,000 grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting to design a proposed series in association with the American Film Institute that would document the growth and impact of American motion pictures

Dr. James L. Loper, president and general manager of Channel 28, announced that development of the proposed "American Film Experience" series for the Public Broadcasting Service will be conducted in coordination with AFI's Center for Advanced Film Studies in Los Angeles.

THE "Arthritis Telethon," staged on Ch. 5 last weekend raised $264,532 — highest amount in 17 years.

NBC-TV's morning "Today" series will hit the road for the primary elections for the first time in its 20 years on the air.

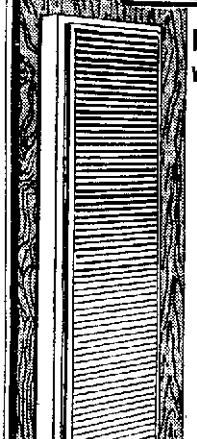

There will be full two-hour originations daily from six, and perhaps seven, key primary states. In most of these states, "Today" will originate for three consecutive days — "The appropriate Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday."

The first primary covered will be in New Hampshire, March 7 and 8.

AT CBS-TV, a children's news segment will be an added feature of the "Morning News with John Hart" starting Monday. The network says the segments will be "devoted to news for in-school children" and will utilize the Bill Brown Puppeteers "to do a Punch and Judy presentation with CBS news correspondent Marya McLaughlin discussing news topics with the puppet family."

The series will also step up features on consumer, health, arts and educational news.

Helen Hayes: 71 and still busy

By JACK GAVER
United Press International

Maybe Helen Hayes will slow down one of these years, but don't bet on it.

At 71, this "First Lady" of the theater, from which she has retired a couple of times in the past five years and in which she has worked since she was six years old, is up to her ears in television.

In January, she rehearsed here in a video version of Mary Chase's celebrated comedy, "Harvey," sped up to Toronto, Canada, for the tape recording of this production, was back in New York the next week for some location shooting for a new made-for-television movie and was off the next day to Hollywood for completion of the latter project.

And that isn't all. If this Universal movie shows promise when NBC broadcasts it as one of its two-hour "World Premiere" specials this spring, Miss Hayes is committed to a five-year contract for a weekly series to be spun off the original.

THE INVOLVEMENT in the television "Harvey," a 90-minute special on NBC at 8:30 p.m., March 22, was a natural follow-up to Miss Hayes' appearance in the recent Broadway revival in which she had James Stewart as co-star, as is the case with the video version. She didn't have to think twice about doing it.

But "The Snoop Sisters" was something else. That's the title of the television movie and its potential series offspring.

"It was months before I gave in," Miss Hayes said.

COMMUNICATIONS MISSION:

Get school, cable people together

United Press International

Ethel Booth is a woman who, after a lifetime of accomplishments that would satisfy most people, suddenly finds herself a missionary in a major, burgeoning field of communications. She doesn't need the work, but her mission is to bring educators and cable television operators together fruitfully.

Mrs. Booth, a middleaged widow and mother of two sons, has a list of credits in television and education that takes almost as long to read as "War and Peace." She was graduated from Barnard College at 18, and took a master's degree in teaching at Columbia University. In World War II, she was an officer in the Waves.

She has been a materials specialist for the Beverly Hills, Calif., Unified School District for five years, concentrating on developing programs for closed circuit television and film study. She has been an English and social studies teacher and high school counselor as well as a radio broadcaster and video producer. She has been active as a cable consultant, and a trustee of the National Television Academy.

HER CURRENT activities include videotaping reactions of students, parents and teachers to CBS-TV's "All in the Family" as part of a national media project "On how media can bring parents and children to closer mutual understanding."

"I seem to be a bridge person," said Mrs. Booth, "because of my combined background in television and education."

She said she had observed that people in education felt superior towards video, and her mission became clear. For three summers, the Television Academy, in conjunction with UCLA and Los Angeles public video station KCET, held a two-week teachers' institute, and Mrs. Booth headed up things twice.

"Cable TV became a logical extension of all this," she said.

MRS. BOOTH feels that both educators and cable operators must learn about each other. As for the potential of future local cable TV setups, she says: "The local originations are not going to be what we consider entertainment programming. But they will entertain people locally — they'll see themselves on TV." She likens the situation to that of small town newspapers in which people can see their own names in print.

"As for local cultural events," she says, "such stations can whet the public appetite in conjunction with things like live theater and even commercial television — it's not a matter of replacing them." And then there's the matter of educators:

"They should give the local cable operator a chance to see what he can do," she says. "There's no need to be snobbish or demanding, or turn things into a political football by demanding channels. Educators should use channels for their own image and help themselves, and not be suspicious of a guy just because he's making money. Don't draw battle lines. Try to stimulate cooperation and get something on the air."

Mrs. Booth has written: "The school administrator now faces the opportunity of having at his disposal a remarkable new educational tool. It can extend the potential of the conventional classroom to include an entire community, or small, specific segments of it. It can combine the best features of televised instruction with an important new involvement between teacher and student. . . . Schools should consider possibilities for the development of projects in cooperation with local CATV systems involving matching funds, for submission to government or private funding agencies."

YOUNG PEOPLE's Concert (2), 2:30 p.m. — 15th season premiere. Leonard Bernstein explores the musical meaning of Franz Liszt's monumental "Faust Symphony" — and into the complex and contradictory character of the composer as well — when he conducts and narrates a New York Philharmonic concert.

IVANHOE (2), 5 p.m. — Premiere. Eric Flynn stars in the title role of this 10-part BBC dramatization of the classic by Sir Walter Scott. Initial segment sets the stage for the battles and romances that characterize the story of a young knight returning from the Crusades.

ELIZABETH R (28), 10 p.m. — Premiere. Oscar-winning Glenda Jackson plays the title role in this 6-part BBC series, with each segment by a different playwright and looking at a different facet of the Tudor queen. Initial chapter features Daphne Slater as Mary, older sister of Princess Elizabeth, whose death takes Elizabeth out of the Tower of London and onto the throne.

SPECIAL

WATCH YOUR CHILD-The Me Too Show (4), 3 p.m. — Premiere. Preschoolers and their parents are shown how to learn through play, with gifted teachers and celebrity guests as storytellers. Lorne Greene guests during the initial week, with the Ritts Puppets regularly featured. (It's Your Bet moves to ch. 2.)

HE'S YOUR DOG, Charlie Brown (2), 8 p.m. — When Snoopy gets out of hand, in this Peanuts gang repeat, Charlie's urged to send him back for a refresher course in obedience. He gets help from Peppermint Patty.

EARTHQUAKE! (7), 8 p.m. — Jules Bergman takes viewers along the San Andreas Fault, and shows aftermaths of the quakes in San Francisco (1906), Tokyo (1923), Alaska (1964) and the San Fernando Valley (1071), plus rare films of quakes happening in Japan. Experts discuss possible means of controlling earthquakes, and warn that another severe shock in California is inevitable.

DR. SEUSS' The Lorax (2), 8:30 p.m. — This newest animated special is based on the author's current children's book, and narrated by Eddie Albert. The Lorax is a non-person, non-animal who "speaks for the trees" in a desperate effort to save his beloved "truffula" forest from extinction — and from threats by the Onceler who covets the trees to manufacture his thneed.

DICK VAN DYKE & the Other Woman (2), 9 p.m. — Van Dyke and Mary Tyler Moore showcase their singing, dancing and acting talents in this comedy-music reprise, with blackouts showing how their work in situation comedies prepared them for many of the problems of everyday life.

JOHNNY CARSON (2), 11:30 p.m. — Now bucking CBS movies instead of Merv Griffin, Carson brings the "Tonight Show" to Burbank for three weeks, tonight welcoming Sammy Davis Jr., Bette Davis, Carol Wayne and others.

Trial of Mary Lincoln

ed to write about Mary Lincoln was that I think operatic theater is basically about women." Elaine Bonazzi stars in the title role.

MARY LINCOLN was tried in Cook County Courthouse, Chicago, in May, 1875. The palintiff was her son, Robert. She was declared insane and placed in a private sanitarium. From there, however, she wrote to many influential people and was released in less than a year.

One of Pasatieris one-act operas, "The Women," won the 1965 competition at the Aspen Music Festival. This year, his operas will be performed in Finland and Germany.

Pasatieri already is able to make a living writing classical music. He says, "The commission are coming in. I'm turning down more than I accept. But my first free moment I'm going to do a film score. I think I could write some of my best music there."

SPECIAL

CHINA, Lost & Found (4), 8:30 p.m. — John Chancellor looks at the past and present relationships between China and the U.S. as President Nixon prepares for his trip to Communist China. Hour covers a period of about 250 years, from opium wars through World War II to the ping pong diplomacy of Chou En-Lai. Guests include Pearl Buck, John Stuart Service and John Patton Davies.

DOIN' IT! (28), 7:30 p.m. — Premiere. A 9-week series utilizes prose, poetry, dance and drama to probe present black economic, cultural and social situations. Opener exposes the current crisis taking place in penal institutions that is transforming black inmates into political revolutionary beings. Poetry from inmates is read by the Watts Prophets.

BORN TO KILL? (2), 7:30 p.m. — Lloyd Bridges is host and narrator for a look at the capture and training of Sea World's Shamu, the killer whale, and the psychological techniques that have enabled man to tame her, and make the killer a non-killer. Possible medical benefits from experiments with whales also are examined.

20TH CENTURY Follies (7), 8:30 p.m. — Alan King hosts a nostalgic, fond look at America's fads and foibles of the past, with help from June Allyson, Edgar Bergen, Milton Berle, Chubby Checker, Pinky Lee, Johnnie Ray, Diahann Carroll, Ed McMahon and former Dodger great Duke Snider. McMahon portrays W. C. Fields, while Checker revives the twist and King tells it like it was in the days of ice boxes, Shirley Temple dolls, the Sinatra craze and hula hoops.

"VIBRATIONS" is a new series on Ch. 28 which features top performers from all areas of music, among them (above) are Victor Borge, Benny Goodman, the Ballet Folklorico of Mexico, symphony conductor Pierre Boulez, Dave Brubeck and cellist Matislav Rostropovich.

Vibrations

The words and music of Cole Porter as well as the voice of famed opera singer Marilyn Horne headline the premiere show of the series, "Vibrations" Wednesday at 9 p.m., Ch. 28.

Singer Bobby Short, a Porter devotee, recalls the sounds of the composer who gave us "Begin the Beguine," "In the Still of the Night," and "Just One of Those Things," as he performs a medley of Porter works. Two songs, "Who Said Gay Paree?" and "High Flyin' Wings on My Shoes," have never been publicly performed.

On "Remembering" (a recurring Vibrations theme) the composer is the subject of reminiscing among Short, Vibrations host Robert Sherman, and Robert Kimball, editor of a collection of the composer's writings and memorabilia, entitled "Cole."

In "Making It," another Vibrations theme which views performers at varying points in their careers, host Sherman visits with Marilyn Horne and her husband, conductor Henry Lewis, who talk about their marriage and careers. Lewis, musical director of the New Jersey Symphony, conducts members of the orchestra as Miss Horne sings "Cruda Sorte," from Rossini's "L'Italiana in Algeri." He also directs a performance of Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll."

Added highlight is a performance by the Ballet Folklorico of Mexico.

The new series is described by its host as "a collage of musical ideas, reflections and futures." Future programs will feature Victor Borge, James McCracken, Benny Goodman, Dave Brubeck, Gene Krupa, Mstislav Rostropovich, Pierre Jobriath, The Mills Brothers, Lorin Hollander, Yip Harburg and Tom Paxton, among others.

The show is repeated on KCET Saturday at 6 p.m.

Mediterranean styling—model 3463. Contemporary and Early American styles available also. Your choice.

YOUR CHOICE OF THREE STYLES NOW $298

It's really a stereo in disguise! You'd never guess that there's a pull-out 20-Watt (EIA music power) radio-phono behind those doors. Or a six-speaker omni-dimensional sound system concealed behind the grille work (projecting sound in all directions). Or enough space to store 20 record albums. But there is. It's a sort of hide-a-stereo. Magnavox makes it for people who believe a great stereo should be heard but not necessarily seen. Also save on Color Stereo Theatres, Color TV, other Stereo Consoles and Component Systems, Radios, Tape Recorders and Monochrome TV during these Annual Sales.

The BIBLE Says

Question: Is the conscience a safe guide?

According to Rom. 2:15, the conscience is the mental faculty that judges conduct as being either right or wrong. When one does what he believes he should do, his conscience excuses (approves) his action. When one does what he believes to be wrong, his conscience accuses him of wrong-doing.

No one can act against their conscience and still please God. If one does what he believes is wrong, even though the practice is not actually wrong, he has violated his conscience, and sinned (Rom. 14:23). BUT it is also possible to believe a thing to be right, when it is wrong. In such cases the conscience will excuse sin, because it is believed to be right. Saul of Tarsus is an example. Saul thought he should "do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth" (Acts 26:9), and is an example of what Jesus meant when He warned his disciples, "the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service" (John 16:2). Certainly Saul sinned when he persecuted Christians, but because he mistakenly thought he was doing what was right, he had a good conscience all the time he opposed the Gospel (Cf. Acts 23:1).

The conscience functions on our understanding and conviction about what is right and wrong. If we mistakenly believe what is wrong to be right, our conscience will not condemn us when we do wrong. Everyone should live so the can have a conscience "void of offence toward God, and toward men" (Acts 24:16). But we must also know what the Bible says so we can be not only sincere, but sincerely right.

SPECIAL

OWEN MARSHALL, Counselor at Law (7), 10 p.m. — Peggy Lee, Oscar-nominated for her 1955 role of an alcoholic singer in "Pete Kelly's Blues," makes her first important dramatic appearance since that time — playing a retired singer who comes out of seclusion to defend herself of a plagiarism charge regarding the only song she ever wrote. Hoagy Carmichael plays a staunch friend who holds the key to her defense. Miss Lee sings the original title song, "Smile from Yesterday," over the opening titles.

4 The Flip Wilson Show, Barbara McNair, Roy Clark, Stiller and Meara. Flip, as swinging bachelor Freddie Johnson, almost gets a marriage license, but falls for the clerk (Miss McNair).
7 Alias Smith & Jones, Roger Davis, Ben Murphy, Walter Brennan, Michele Lee, Robert Middleton. Heyes tries to get revenge for a crooked poker game with a borrowed $50,000 pearl necklace and the help of an old friend. But the necklace gets stolen. (With this segment, Miss Lee becomes a series regular.)

CRITICS' CORNER

LOVE! LOVE! LOVE!, aired Feb. 8, Ch. 4; SECOND CHANCE, Feb. 8, Ch. 7; BUDAPEST CIRCUS, Feb. 7, Ch. 7; MARTY FELDMAN, Feb. 7, Ch. 7.

NBC's early Valentine for this season was a portrait of young love set to contemporary music . . . and it tried to be different in a low-key way.

Helen Reddy, Mac Davis and a group called Bread sang softly, sadly and romantically about love. Against this background, the cameras wandered far and wide to focus on six young couples, from puppy-love teens to young marrieds, from San Francisco to Philadelphia. There was lots of clutching and kissing, wandering around hand-in-hand and generally, the program had a pleasant quality of innocence about it. The free form, however, resulted in an hour that was so soothing that after about 30 minutes, it became soporific . . .

"SECOND CHANCE," seemed to be a woeful waste of acting talent.

Brian Keith played a successful stockbroker busily building an ulcer to the point he decided to drop out of moneymaking in order to rebuild a Nevada ghost town with people, like himself, who needed a new direction in life.

So far, so good. He populated the place with a former Las Vegas dancer who always wanted to be a teacher; a carpenter and barkeep who had served prison terms; an aging pro football player who wanted to work around horses. Elizabeth Ashley played Keith's city-centered wife; Juliet Prowse was the teacher and Rosey Grier the village blacksmith.

The idea was sort of engaging, but the story wandered off in all directions and towards the end it was so strangely edited, some essential part of the story seemed to be missing.

WITH television frantically searching for entertainment material, circus programs turn up frequently and, for the average viewer, they tend to look very much alike. That certainly seemed true with the Budapest circus. At least it was true up to the point when a trained hippopotamus trotted out, set off a toy cannon and played dead.

The rest of the acts included the usual lion tamer without shirt, animals, clowns and the like plus a television addition: the TV star. In this case, there were two, Bill Bixby and Brandon Cruz, who plays Bixby's son in "The Courtship of Eddie's Father." Young Brandon was shown gazing entranced at the ring and Bixby permitted himself to be shaved by an elephant . . . Bill and Brandon got free trips behind the Iron Curtain. But it would be nice if one circus show did not look so much like the one before.

"The Marty Feldman Comedy Machine" bore all the earmarks of a pilot film, apparently for a series that was abandoned somewhere along the line.

It was a strange, inconclusive jumble that seemed to be distantly related to "Laugh-In" but was devoid of comedy. There were many sight gags, such as a fountain that squirted on Felman's head no matter where he moved and an Egyptian casket that opened to show a wrapped mummy talking on a wall telephone.

There were some sketches that didn't get off the ground—a man who had seen so many poorly dubbed foreign films that his speech was out of synchronization. There was an awful one about an instant beard-growing contest.

Feldman was completely wasted . . .

—Cynthia Lowry, AP

HELEN HAYES

71--and still busy

"They kept sending me scripts. It was an interesting idea, but, my goodness, the thought of signing for a possible five years!

"What impressed me was the fact that each time they sent a new script, there was an improvement in the treatment. Finally, I guess they just wore me down."

"THE SNOOP Sisters," has Miss Hayes playing a writer of detective novels. Mildren Natwick, one of Boadway's best-loved character actresses and a long-time Hayes friend, plays her widowed sister with a daughter. The sisters are incorrigable meddlers in various real-life criminal mysteries.

They are assisted, if that is the word, by their chauffeur, played by Art Carney, and that is enough of a tipoff as to the zany nature of the enterprise.

"They wanted me to be available to start filming the series right away," Miss Hayes said. "But I did manage to take a firm stand against that. I've been planning for some time to take a month's vacation beginning June 1 that consists of a ship's cruise tour of the northern waters of Europe.

"I'm not retiring from that."

good feeling about what you're doing. We have so much freedom in this kind of show. We have a chance to even censor things ourselves that we think might be offensive to blacks or whites. We — Demond and me — can insert things we feel all right."

FOXX SAID he stayed off television "a long time because I felt things weren't honest. We try to humanize everything. We want to give a half hour of entertainment — and honesty through our characters. I think many families of all races can identify with us and our feelings."

In the show, the son and father have a universal running conflict. The son wants to get out of the family business and into better things, away from his father, he says. But, as Wilson said about his character, "He doesn't really want to leave home. They can't live without each other." Nonetheless, Foxx, as the father, takes no chances in the series, faking illnesses like heart trouble to keep his son close by.

There had been reports that, after starting with a fairly abrasive relationship between the two, the show would get softer in this area. But, said Wilson, "It's not gonna get namby-pamby." And, adds Foxx, "I got to have my (fake) heart attacks and somebody's gotta push me."

THERE WERE also reports that NBC-TV had been looking for a property for Foxx for some time, but the comedian says it's news to him: "I've been here since 1951 and never had a role. If NBC was looking for me, they could've found me. Now I've bought a home in Las Vegas, and I have to come back here to work."

Why does he live in Las Vegas? "'Cause you can look out the window and see a hundred miles."

Foxx got his film break in the movie "Cotton Comes To Harlem." The executive producer of "Sanford and Son," Bud Yorkin, and the producer, Aaron Ruben, saw him in it and got together with him for the series.

"I had to go to New York to find a picture," said Foxx, referring to the "Cotton" film. "My image here fitted in with the party records I made. Now," he smiled, "if the show's a hit and all those albums come out again, reissued — whoosh — there goes my reputation."

Not a chance. Whatever happens with the show, he's in the front rank now.

INSIDE THE TUBE

Landaus knock on the wrong door

By BILL MAHAN

Martin Landau and Barbara Bain (old "Mission Impossible") are about to be seen on the tube together again. NBC and Universal have paired them in an upcoming movie of the week titled "Savage Report," along with Barry Sullivan, Louise Latham and Will Geer. The film was made as a spin-off for a series and Barbara is excited about doing another series.

The Landaus have been married 15 years, and I'm not going to go on about how ecstatically happy they are for fear we'll read about the divorce tomorrow . . no kidding, being married and working together is tough on most people, but Martin and Barbara seem to thrive on it.

Barbara Bain is an intelligent actress. She's surefooted and confident, with good reason to be. Whatever happened between Paramount TV and the Landaus was Paramount's loss. "Mission Impossible" has never regained quite that same dash. The whole issue kept her out of work for over a year, but that's all behind her now, and hopefully we'll see her weekly, if not on "The Savage Report," then something else.

HOWEVER, at lunch in the Beverly Hills, Barbara seemed destined to be frustrated once again. She didn't get a drink, she didn't get coffee, and she couldn't order a small salad.

She just laughed. "These things happen. The other night Marty and I were going to a dinner party at a home we'd never been to before. Marty drove and I gave him directions. When we arrived at the house there were no cars parked in front."

Interrupting her (as always) I said, "We've done the same thing -- get all ready and go out on the wrong night."

"NO," she said, "I was positive it was the right night. We figured we had come this far, so we might as well go to the door. Marty rang the bell and the maid answered and ushered us right in. She didn't speak English. After planting us on the couch she motioned that our hosts would be down momentarily."

"Didn't you wonder about no one else being there?" I asked.

"DID we," she sighed. "But it was too late. We couldn't just get up and walk out. Finally after about 15 minutes a strange man and woman entered the room and looked at us puzzledly. That's when we knew we were in the wrong house. Marty introduced both of us and explained what had happened.

"OH, THEY were marvelous. They'd seen us on "Mission" and they wanted us to stay. Their son came down and met us and they showed us all their fantastic paintings. It really was quite a pleasant time."

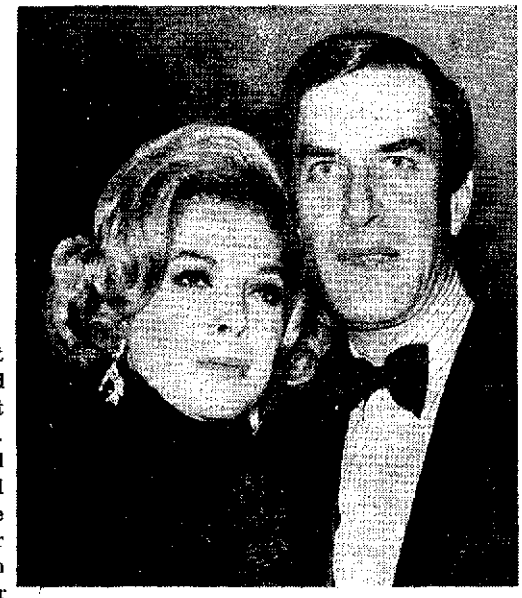

"Did you stay very long?"

"Only about 15 or 20 minutes. I made a phone call and found out I had written down the wrong street. We were late for the dinner party, but we met some lovely new people."

"Why did you have to wait so long for the people to come downstairs?"

"Well, they were as confused as we were and they weren't dressed or ready for company. They thought they'd made a mistake and we were someone they'd invited and then forgotten about. All in all the whole thing was quite confusing."

It was. But I'd like very much to be sitting in my house and have Barbara Bain and Marty Landau drop in unexpectedly and confuse me.

THE LANDAUS . . . Unexpected callers

NATIONAL ACCIDENT DIVISION OF ACADEMY LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY—COMBINED WITH ITS AFFILIATED COMPANY OVER ONE BILLION, SEVEN HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS INSURANCE IN FORCE

Advertising Supplement to INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM FEBRUARY 13, 1972

NOW, from our Accident Division you get tax free:

$1,000 cash a month

each and every month····EVEN FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE.

This is not a misprint. If you qualify, you get protection which pays you at the rate of $1,000.00 CASH a month beginning the first day and for your full stay in a hospital (other than a sanitarium, rest home or government hospital) due to any accident. Even if you're confined only for one day, you still get $33.33.

It covers all kinds of accidents. When you slip, stumble, fall, get burned, hit by anything, run into anything--any unintentional act or event. Yes, you are covered at home, at work, at play--24 hours a day.

And what's more--

This policy is both GUARANTEED RENEWABLE and NON-CANCELLABLE for Life.

1. Use your policy as often as you need to--you own it, it can never be taken away as long as you pay your premium on time. Your premium can never be raised; your benefits can never be reduced.
2. YOU GET CASH...use it for any purpose; pay bills, buy groceries, pay rent, etc. When you are hospitalized your everyday living expenses still go on. Help meet them with the TAX FREE cash this policy provides. You are paid the full amount even though you collect other insurance, compensation or benefits from any source--including MEDICARE.
3. YOU GET CASH WHILE YOU ARE HOSPITALIZED FOR ANY ACCIDENT, ANYTIME, ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD. You DON'T have to be hurt in any particular kind of accident such as: Auto, Pedestrian, Bus, Traffic, Train, etc. All Accidents are covered, At Home, at Work, at PLAY--TWENTY FOUR HOURS A DAY.

You get a full month's coverage for $1.00. Send no money. When you receive your policy, read it carefully. Only after you agree it does everything we claim, send in your dollar. Remember for each day you are in the hospital, you get $33.33. Yes, for one day or a Lifetime.

No agent or salesman will call or bother you. You are buying directly from the Company through the mail and the savings are passed on to you. That's how this policy can be offered at such a low cost!

Compare this with others. We welcome comparison because this policy pays from the first day, we can't pay any sooner. It pays for a lifetime, we can't pay any longer. Remember, the benefits are $1,000.00 a month for Life and the cost is only $5.00 a month, or if paid in advance, $55.00 for a whole year.

You are under no obligation. Fill out the application and mail it today. Don't wait until it's too late. Policy issued age 1 through 80 if you qualify. This offer must be limited to only one policy for each person.

Sincerely yours,

William A. Charles

CALIFORNIA GUIDE

Largemouth bass hotspots are the San Diego area lakes of El Capitan, Mirador, San Vincente, and Otay Reservoirs . . . also Wohlford Lake. Best bass waters in the north are Shasta, Camanche, and Oroville Lakes. Plug fishing recommended from spring to fall. Best winter spot, October to March, is Clear Lake . . . then fish this lake from March through June using minnows or small lures.

Trout fishermen should visit Owen's Lake in the south and Eagle Lake in the north. . . . troll with flashers and spoons. Fish the upper Sacramento River using flies, eggs, and spinners in season.

WELLS REPORT

The Morning of the Moon

"This is your Automobile Club," the recorded voice on the telephone said for the twelfth time. "All the emergency service lines are temporarily busy. Please do not hang up. You will lose your place in line."

I gazed out of the window where a wet, white fog oozed and slimed over the house, grasping the neighborhood and sucking its vital juices. I knew what it was doing because somewhere out there on my driveway, obscured by that white vileness, was my car with the vital juices already sucked out of its battery.

The second hand on the wall clock whirled faster than it had any right to. I glanced furtively around the room trying to figure out where the cat was hiding. The telephone repeated its recorded message.

Monday morning.

I couldn't find the cat. I knew from experience it would be out of the line of normal sight. It would be crouching under the furniture, or up high in a bookcase.

The phone vibrated with a real, live voice.

"Thank you for waiting," the young woman said as if I might have had a choice. "May I help you?"

I told her about my dead battery, gave her my name, rank and serial number and that of my wounded automobile and huskily pleaded for help. She said a truck would be on its way.

"When?" I asked, watching the whirling clock.

"In anywhere from 10 minutes to an hour or so," she said. "It's Monday morning."

I knew, I knew.

"Can't you please hurry?" I asked. "I have an important meeting."

"We have a lot of calls on Monday morning," she said. "We'll get help to you as fast as possible."

Monday morning.

That is what caused the thick fog, the dead battery, the whirling clock. The cat knew about Monday morning, too. She was of no mind to be thrown outside to face Monday morning. That is why she was hiding.

I got down on my hands and knees and peered under the furniture for her. Monday morning, I thought as I searched for her, is not just marked on the calendar, it is marked on the soul. For every past Monday in his life, a man bears a little scar on his soul. Each Monday morning, a new notch is cut. It heals over by Tuesday, but all day Monday it bleeds and throbs.

I could feel it hurting. It felt something like I rather imagined peritonitis must feel.

I checked the whirling clock against my wristwatch. The wristwatch was keeping its pace right up there.

I was going to be late to staff meeting. It did not really matter, of course. Monday morning staff meetings, if they are efficient, always end up putting over the important decisions until the Wednesday or Friday morning staff meetings. But Monday morning staff meetings are a test of character. The people who show up on time, having proved their own character, tend to suspect those who are late or absent entirely of nursing hangovers, or of being out somewhere frantically seeking a new pusher to replace the one that got arrested over the weekend.

Personally, I have always suspected the people who show up on time for Monday morning staff meetings of sacrificing their daily shower to their mad haste. That is why, when I come in a little late, I always put at least one empty chair between me and the people who were on time for the meeting.

There are a lot of excellent reasons for being late to Monday morning staff meeting. For one thing, you are busy in your own office answering phone calls because it is Monday morning and your secretary called in sick.

While I was mulling over these matters, the Auto Club truck pulled up in front of the house. I went out and gave the driver my card, and he started my engine.

I had driven three miles on my way to work when I remembered the cat. It was still in the house. Oh, well, I thought, let it stay there.

A man has to choose his battles carefully on Monday morning. □

LONELY LUKE LAMENT

or

"In the Long Run, You're Probably Better Off to Send Your Love a Valentine."

By DICK EMERY

They called him Lonely
Luke because he violated
all the laws of courtesy and simple tact and what to say and how to act.
HE SENT HIS LOVE
NO VALENTINE!
No paper lace!
No crimson twine!
No sentiments
in prose or ballad!
His love put nettles
in his salad!
She wished him thorns without the roses, made his kinfolk
turn their noses!
Lonely Luke!
Too dumb to know what had cut him down so low!
His socks unraveled at the toe,
his hair fell out,
he lost his dough.
Never patted,
never kissed!
How sad this lone misogynist!
Too tight to swap
a dime or two for any Valentine of blue
or pink or purple, red or green or something pretty in between at any frilly shopping place where Valentines of paper lace awaited—"Ah!"— the Prudent Shopper who does all things
the way it's proper.
Luke thought: "My Love,
all woebegone,
scatters petals
on the lawn!
One by one
they fall like snow:
'He loves me? Yes!
'He loves me? No!'"
But while Luke kept that thought on top, his Love was weeping not a drop.
With purposeful and sly intent, she skipped to meet a Proper Gent
who'd looked ahead
as Gents should do and bought a Valentine of blue
with lace below and hearts above and sent it to Luke's Light-o-Love.
Sadly, sadly, and with pity
we must say to end this ditty:
SHE TOOK THE VAL-ENTINE HE BRANG!
INTO HIS ARMS
HERSELF SHE FLANG!

Helen Hayes — first lady of the American stage.

Roger Vadim — an authority on fems.

General Moshe Dayan — lost an eye.

But does Nixon say nix to chopsticks?

Mario Lanza — Caruso of the Air Force.

"All in the Family" — TV's spoof breaks sound barrier on bigotry.

Q: Who gave Miss Helen Hayes the title, "The First Lady of the American Stage"? — Mrs. Beth Parsons, Pittsburgh.

A: General Foods. They were sponsoring Miss Hayes in a radio network show in the late '30s when the ad agency handling the series invented that billing to give them a peg on which to sell her presence on the show.

Q: Lover boy Roger Vadim, the director who has married some of the most voluptuous girls in the world — what is his idea of perfect-sized breasts? — Ruth Waldo, Columbus.

A: "A happy compromise between Jane Russell and Twiggy," says Vadim.

Q: Isn't it true that the heroic Gen. Moshe Dayan actually lost his eye in a kibbutz free-for-all and not on the battlefield? — A. Abrams, Miami Beach, Fla.

A: Untrue. Dayan, a member of the tough Jewish defense force, the Haganah, was imprisoned by the British in 1939. After two years he volunteered to fight with the Australians during the invasion of Syria (then under Vichy French control) — was seriously wounded and lost his left eye.

Q: Does President Nixon go for Chinese food? And does he plan to take a White House chef with him to China so "he won't be hungry an hour later"? — Gertrude Nolan, Washington, D.C.

A: "I would be surprised if the President did have a chef accompany him," Herb Klein of the White House staff advises. "Though at this writing I can't say for sure. With regard to diet, I do know the President is not particularly fussy and that he enjoys all kinds of food, particularly Chinese and Mexican. He does not have particular preferences to specific dishes. Incidentally," the President's director of communications adds, "Henry Kissinger mentioned to me that he had very much enjoyed the food he was served when he was in Peking."

Q: Is this fact or legend? That Mario Lanza faked the record that got him an audition — and fame? That he palmed off a Caruso record as one of his own? — Laura de Cordova, Astoria, N.Y.

A: It's true. But it wasn't a Caruso record Lanza substituted. It was a Red Seal disc recorded by a lesser known Met opera star, Frederick Jagel. It happened in 1943 when Mario (real name Alfredo A. Cocozza) was at the Marfa (Tex.) Air Force base. Sgt. Peter Lind Hayes, scouting for talent for an Army show he'd written with Pvt. Frankie Loesser, asked to meet and hear the draftee known as the "GI Caruso." Mario begged off, claiming laryngitis, but suggested that Hayes listen to a record "he just cut." Peter heard it, liked it and immediately transferred Cocozza to temporary assignment with his outfit — later giving the ex-GI a role in "Winged Victory." After which Mario flew to fame.

Q: When we caught the opening show of "All in the Family" I remember an announcement apologizing for the dialogue even before the program started. Can you tell me exactly what was said? — Mrs. T. Sherwood, St. Louis.

A: "The program you are about to see," the voice cautioned, "is 'All in the Family.' It seeks to throw a humorous spotlight on our frailties, prejudices and concerns. By making them a source of laughter we hope to show — in a mature fashion — just how absurd they are." Time, as well as the success of the program, proves that it did, indeed, break the sound barrier on bigotry.

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of Southland Sunday, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill. 60611. He will answer as many questions as he can in his column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible. □

Can we conquer the symptoms of hypertension, control heartbeat, relax muscles or change skin temperature through mental processes? Medical men are finding that we can ... in a new "medicine" called

BIOFEEDBACK

At a meeting of the Biofeedback Research Society in New Orleans last November, an eminent Detroit psychologist let it be known that a patient in his clinic had conquered the symptoms of hypertension through mental processes — without drugs.

The man was not young. His treatment had been a form of education in blood-pressure control, along with behavior therapy. Though one case does not make a medical revolution, there was a crackle of excitement as the doctor spoke, for the announcement may have marked the beginning of a new treatment for a wide variety of diseases, from psychiatric complaints to stress ailments like colitis and gastric ulcers.

The technique, known as biofeedback, uses electronic instruments to amplify changes in the body (such as occur in blood pressure, heart rate, muscle contractions).

The changes instantly trigger signals in the external instruments, such as a sound or a light, which on repetition can allow a person to identify the cues of internal changes — the first step in learning to control them.

For thousands of years Eastern mystics and yogis have demonstrated remarkable control over mind and body, while we Westerners have tended to dismiss them as charlatans. They were buried alive for hours and dropped their pulse to the vanishing point or demonstrated that they could listen during their sleep.

However, today in the West, a number of prestigious laboratory clinics are training people to control their heart rate, lower blood pressure, change skin temperature, relax certain muscles, or produce certain brainwaves — and thus to control, without drugs, cardiac arrhythmias, symptoms of insomnia, migraine and tension headaches.

This does not mean feedback is a panacea for organic disease. Even in the course of psychosomatic illnesses there seems to be a point at which organic damage may not be reversible.

Although doctors in the field are cautious, biofeedback promises to return us to a more holistic kind of medicine in which the patient will acquire more responsibility for, and power over, his own health.

Biofeedback puts the emphasis back on training, rather than a "miracle pill" or surgery, and indicates that the mind itself can be trained to do most of the things that mind-changing drugs are used for.

The principle is simple. You learn to throw a ball by visual and neuromuscular feedback. You feel your arm move, see where the ball went and correct your arm next time. In a similar way, an instrument can detect minuscule internal changes of which you are not aware in such processes as blood flow or brainwave patterns. By instantly showing you these changes it can help you recognize the cues and learn control.

Although it is similar to conditioning, most feedback does not offer an explicit reward for a correct response. It merely indicates to the learner when he has entered the desired state.

After much practice he is able to feel and attain this state without machines. We accept this kind of sensorimotor learning throughout life, for it is the way we learn to walk, talk and control our muscles — but the exact internal mechanisms for learning are not understood.

Until very recently, we assumed we were at the mercy of our involuntary nervous system. This notion helps to shape the self-concept most of us have, and it has been encouraged by medicine and psychology. Physiologists a decade ago believed that we were regulated by two distinct nervous systems: one was the great outer brain that gives us voluntary control of muscles.

The other, lower brain, is called "autonomic" or "vegetative." It regulates survival functions in the viscera, the heart, through emotional responses. These functions were held to be involuntary throughout the West — until the advent of biofeedback.

Most people think they know how to control the voluntary muscles of their faces, arms and legs; but feedback instruments promise to greatly expand their powers. A dramatic innovation may come from the use of muscle feedback to train people how to relax.

Whenever muscle fibers contract, very small bioelectric potentials can be picked up by a metal disc electrode placed on the skin over the muscle. These infinitesimal potentials (around a millionth of a volt) are fed into an amplifier known as an electromyograph — or EMG machine.

This fancy bit of hardware, which can be condensed to the size of a cookie box, incorporates circuitry that filters out irrelevant signals, amplifies the muscle potentials by about a million times and activates the signal — whenever fibers contract. The relaxing person can then "hear" the most insignificant changes in his muscle tension.

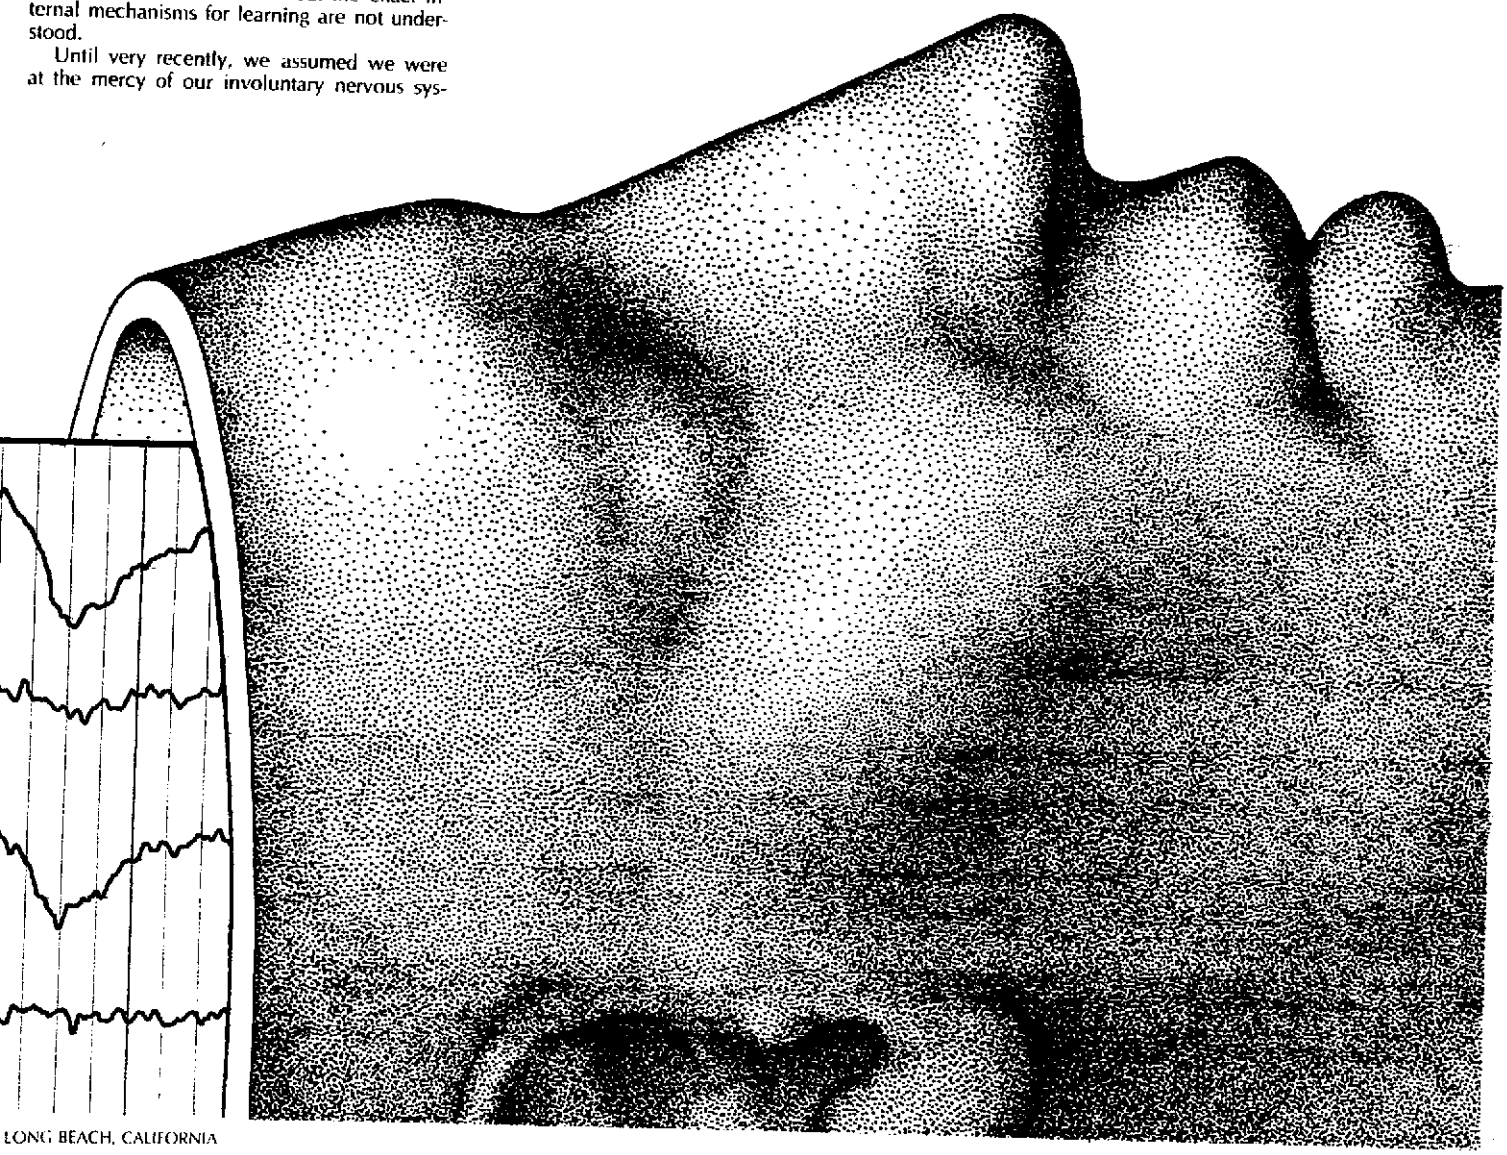

In the early 1960s at the University of Colorado Medical School, two young psychologists, Thomas Budzynski and Johann Stoyva, began exploring the possibility of EMG feedback for headache sufferers and insomniacs. They began by testing healthy students.

During each of 16 sessions, the volunteer would lie on a comfortable bed, wearing earphones, with three electrodes strapped to his forehead. These were attached to the amplifier — EMG. Every time the forehand muscle contracted slightly, the person heard a tone in the earphones — the more he contracted the muscle, the higher the pitch; the more he relaxed, the lower the pitch. "Keep the tone down," the volunteers were told. Within 20 minutes they approximately halved their original muscle tension.

What did they do? They lay and listened. If they tried too hard to relax, they usually found they were tensing and heard the high-pitched tone again. As they said later, they simply "let go."

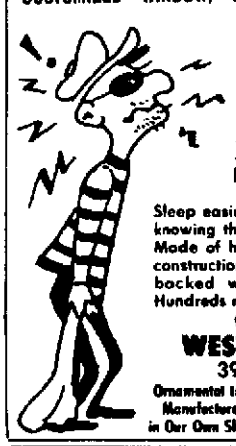

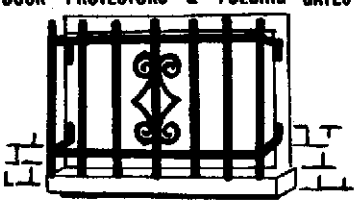

Deep relaxation can be a profound experience. Some people have felt as if their relaxed arms were floating away from them, or as if their bodies had become as heavy as a bag of sand.

Although EMG feedback can be used for any muscle, the forehead muscle is particularly crucial. If a person can relax that muscle, he will usually relax his scalp, neck and upper body.

Budzynski and Stoyva had picked this muscle for their studies because it usually contracts when people are agitated or tense, although most people are not aware of it. Moreover, chronic tesnion in the scalp and neck muscles is responsible for severe tension headaches.

The pervasive effects of deep relaxation have been used by psychiatrists since the turn of the century.

Recently Dr. Budzynski and a number of other therapists have begun using EMG feedback to induce relaxation relatively rapidly. With his process, Budzynski reports that he has liberated a 22-year-old girl from an unbelievable list of phobias, including panic attacks, fear of heights, fear of crowds, fear of riding in cars, and claustrophobia.

When systematically confronted with the fear images in a relaxed state, she gradually lost her intense feelings about them. It is almost impossible to remain highly anxious when deeply relaxed.

Insomniacs have also come to the laboratory in Denver for lessons in falling asleep. First they learned to relax by using EMG feedback. Then they were wired to an electroencephalograph machine (EEG) and given feedback until they could generate the slow brainwaves observed in the onset of sleep. With this training people who had taken four hours to fall asleep were dropping into slumber twice in a 20-minute lab session.

"I think doctors are going to lend patients an EMG machine instead of handing out sleeping pills in the future," says Budzynski.

In Seattle, Dr. George B. Whatmore employs EMG feedback to treat patients with serious psychosomatic illnesses, some of them so ill that they had been hospitalized.

He theorizes that symptoms as different as colitis, backache, depression, circulatory illnesses and skin eruptions may all originate in sustained tension among groups of involuntary muscles.

Whatmore places a sensor on the skin over muscle groups, and informs the patient whenever he is tense. He has given prolonged feedback training to patients, sometimes lasting more than a year or two, and has made follow-up studies of some of his patients for as long as 15 years.

Although his theory is controversial, it may help people to understand how body habits may bring on psychosomatic illnesses. For example, a person who is mildly angry may brace his body as if ready for a fight; yet the movements are so small that he does not realize he is tensed for action.

At the University of California, in Berkeley, psychologist Curtiss Hardycka reports success in liberating more than 100 exceedingly slow readers from their main hangup — subvocalization, or silent mouthing of words.

Seated in a comfortable chair in an informal laboratory, with an electrode over the Adam's apple, the person would simply read a book for an hour. However, whenever he mouthed a word silently, his larynx would tense and a noise would switch on. He would try to keep the noise off.

The rasping irritation of the noise was so unpleasant that slow reading children and adults would learn to abandon their habitual subvocalizing in about 45 minutes.

Not only do people learn muscle relaxation, but they are beginning to learn to control constriction and dilation of blood vessels with EMG feedback. The throbbing pain of a migraine is thought to come from the pressure in enlarged blood vessels in the head, which transmit each pulse of blood from the heart.

By mentally altering the temperature (and blood flow) in their foreheads and hands, patients who have come to the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kan., seem to have learned to prevent headaches.

Even though it seems plausible that headaches and insomnia can be overcome by "mental" training, most people are taken aback to hear that they can similarly learn to control their heart rate and blood pressure.

But there are reports of people who are doing it. The current clinical programs are limited and experimental. Still patients with serious cardiac disease are learning through feedback to control their symptoms.

Dr. Bernard Engel, a psychologist, has been collaborating with cardiac specialists in training patients who suffer from a dangerous irregularity of heart beat — PVC, premature contraction of the left ventricle, the main pumping chamber of the heart. It is an arrhythmia that often follows a major heart attack.

Feedback training may be fundamentally tedious, and may require a long time, but unlike drugs it gives the patient a sense of mastery over his own body.

Seekers of internal peace, of head trips, inner happiness, kids in need of serenity and in search of salvation have trooped to the laboratories that do research in "EEG feedback."

The EEG machine, an electroencephalograph, is an amplifier system that receives very small shifts in the electrical potential that occur within the brain and are detected by electrodes on the surface of the head.

The changing patterns of the brain waves are not understood, but seem to represent continuous shifts within brain cells from positive to negative charge. The bioelectric shifts, mightily amplified, drive a row of inked pens on old-fashioned laboratory machines.

Each pen, moved by a signal from a part of the brain, swings up when the charge is negative and down when it is positive. As a continuous sheet of graph paper slides beneath the oscillating pens, the up-and-down pen movements are traced out as brain waves.

Thus brain waves are an aritfact of the way we record brain activity — a convenience, not a replica of nature.

EEG feedback began in the 1960s in a number of laboratories -- for different purposes. The man who is primarily associated with alpha feedback is the observant and pensive Joe Kamiya, a psychologist at the Langley Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute in San Francisco.

Kamiya became something of a pop hero to kids who hoped to groove their way into an instant satori.

While trying to extract dream memories from inarticulate laboratory subjects at the University of Chicago, Kamiya began to ask himself how people ever learned to describe their inner experience in language.

Taking a long shot, he decided he would find out what people described when they produced a particular brain-wave pattern. The alpha rhythm was particularly convenient, and Kamiya's fist task was to teach his volunteers how to recognize alpha and sustain it.

He pasted electrodes on their heads, connected them with the EEG machine, on which he had set a filter for the person's particular alpha frequency, so that their alpha would automatically ring a soft bell.

Although his first subjects were not meditators, or hip people, he found that they could quickly learn to keep the bell on by sustaining their alpha. Or, on instruction, they could turn it off.

It may sound easy, but many adults find EEG feedback exasperating at first. After considerable anticipation, volunteers in the typical experiment are finally seated in a soundproof chamber with electrodes pasted around their scalps, and their only task in the quiet is to keep a tone on.

The harder they try, the less they hear the tone. It is the typical Zen paradox. What does one do? One person whose quest for alpha was successful reported: "I try to forget I'm trying and let myself drift, and the moment I formulate what is happening, in order to remember, to tell it to the experimenter, that moment my experience fragments and the tone ceases."

What was the alpha experience of Kamiya's volunteers?

Briefly, it was a vast range of mildly pleasurable and usually innocuous reveries and feelings that are often described as a "passive alertness."

Laboratories around the country subsequently offered an array of descriptions. Tranquility was common, but not universal.

On Long Island, in the laboratory of Lester Fehmi at Stony Brook, artists and musicians reported they could enter states of intense creativity by sustaining alpha.

In more than a decade of research, Dr. Kamiya found that most of his volunteers were delighted and rested by their stint of alpha feedback. But he and other scientists have

The ADOBE and the BULLDOZER

Another heritage falls prey to the jaws of the mighty bulldozer

ON a warm midday in October, 1971, a yellow giant bulldozer bit into a small hunk of history on a hillside overlooking La Puente Valley.

An hour later, the machine had demolished Grazide Adobe, the product of love and labor in a calmer era.

The home was an eight room wedding gift from Francisco Grazide to his bride, Isabel Rowland, in 1875. Grazide had come to the valley from his native France, and discovered, as did many French and Basque newcomers, that the lush hills and temperate climate suited his talents as a sheep rancher.

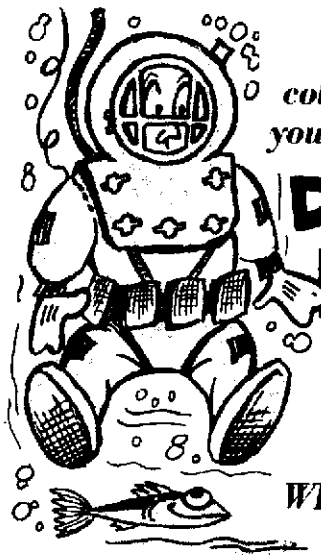

He called in local Indian workers who made the materials for his house from the land of his ranch. From a mixture of soil, straw, oil emulsion from tarpits back in the Puente Hills, and water from the spring near the building site, they made adobe bricks which measured 14-by-30-by-4 inches.

They mixed the muck with hands and feet, poured it into wooden frames and spread them in the sun to cure. Two moons later they weighed between 80 and 100 pounds each. The Indians hauled them into place, piling up four-foot-thick walls of such insulation and durability that they withstood the attacks of weather and vandals for nearly a century.

The lady of the casa, Senora Isabel Rowland de Grazide, the daughter of pioneer settler John Rowland II, brought as her dowry 400 acres of the southern part of Rowland Rancho. Grazide began as sheep rancher and later turned viniculturist. Together they made the home a family and social center in a setting of stately trees and formal gardens. Their son, John, inherited the ranch in 1920, added a second floor, and made it a second generation home for two decades.

In the 40s the ranch became a thoroughbred horse farm. In 1960 the L. Whaley Co. of Long Beach bought the property for subdivision. Then came the vandals' invasion. They applied graffiti, smashed windows and doors, and left the house, in its last hours, a skeletal shell of its one-time charm.

When the Mighty Bulldozer finished, the Southland lost one more remnant of a gracious heritage. □

THE ODDS ON SUCCESS

By Raymond Schuessler

The man who is successful is usually one who knows the "odds." If he knows the percentage on every decision, he is bound to succeed more often than he fails. He will marry more successfully, make more money in business, have fewer accidents, win more often in sports and carry home most of the loot from the race track.

Scientists who have made a life study of mathematics agree with the theory of odds. Their insight into the complex problems of chance has made researchers and industrialists of all types call on them for help and advice. Also a few gamblers.

Professional gamblers don't gamble; they play the odds, or percentages, and the rigid structure of mathematics permits them to pick up the money in the long run.

A gambling house is quite willing to operate on a favorable advantage of 5 per cent and can do enormously well with this slight edge.

The American Stastical Association cites a couple of interesting "probability" problems. Suppose you are in a room of people and you want to bet that at least two of them have a birthday on the same day and month. How many people do we need in the room to make this probability more than 50 per cent? 100? 1,000? the answer is only 23!

Again, if three cards are drawn at random from a shuffled deck, what is the probability one is an ace, a 10, or a 2? They are better than even at .553. With such knowledge how can the gambling house lose?

The odds for throwing a "double six" or any other point in dice are known to many practitioners of the art of "crap shooting." The great French mathematician, Pascal, was once commissioned by a Parisian sportsman to find out why he was losing so much money betting opponents he could throw "box cars" once in 24 casts of the dice. Pascal pointed out that the probability was 1 in 36 and the odds, therefore, were 3 to 2 against the thrower. Pascal, incidentally, invented the first type adding machine in 1677.

There's more evidence that odds aren't always what they appear to be. Suppose a friend offered to bet that in 10 tosses of a coin he could turn up 3 successive "heads" at some point in the toss. Would you take such a bet? Well, if you did and continued to take it, you would lose your shirt. The answer is that it will happen on the average of once in 8 tosses, and your canny friend would be getting an extra edge of 2 tosses as a bonus.

But if a coin is tossed five times and comes up heads each time, you may hear: "The odds favor it coming up tails." The odds favor no such thing. They are exactly the same for the sixth toss as they were for the first — even money.

The probability of getting any number on a die is one-sixth or 1 out of 6. The probability of getting the same point on another die is squared, because each side has 6 chances. So, if your point, for example, is 4, it's 36 divided by the different number of ways you can hit a 4 — or 12 to 1. Any successful dice player knows all those figures by heart and bets accordingly.

Almost everyone who plays poker has similar facts at his fingertips. You don't need to be told your chances of drawing a "royal flush" are pretty slim. But if you want to know, it's 649,739 to 1, while on 4 of a kind they drop to 4,164. (The perfect bridge hand of 13 spades occurs once in 635,013,600 chances.)

The chances are better for getting a "flush." The odds are only 508 to 1 against you. A "straight" comes even easier, at 254 to 1. You can easily figure your chances of filling a "straight" or a "flush" by counting the number of cards that will do it against the number of cards remaining in the deck. It's 47 to 8 on the first, 47 to 9 on the second.

However, if it's an "inside straight" you're after, it's 47 to 4 — a bet hardly worth taking unless the table is likely to contain, at the very least, 12 times as much money as you are likely to bet. And then you may lose because there's the chance a "straight" can be beaten.

Take a die. Roll it 10 times and copy down the number each time. The odds aganst your rolling the same numbers a second time are fantastic — over 60 million to 1.

Even if the odds are against you to begin with — as they usually are in gambling — you can bet them by (1) knowing the proper odds, and (2) playing into them.

Recently at a Las Vegas club, a player won $40,000 at the card game called "21."

By a device known as "counting" — i.e., remembering the used cards (since the deck isn't shuffled after each hand) the player was able to bet with the odds and thus win a fantastic amount of money. This device takes not only a knowledge of odds, but a phenomenal memory. □

BIOFEEDBACK

(c) 1971 New York Times Co.

found that while some subjects groove, others merely fall asleep.

Dr. Thomas Mulholland, a psychologist at the Veterans Administration hospital in Bedford, who has experimented with EEG feedback since 1961, does not see alpha feedback as a gateway to expanded consciousness but as a potential diagnostic tool.

Mulholland has used feedback to evaluate visual attention, a technique that may be used in diagnosing brain-damaged veterans and children with perceptual problems. He has been interested in the fact that a person can watch pictures projected before him or keep his eyes on a light while maintaining alpha rhythms, but at the moment he focuses his attention and his eyes on something alpha vanishes.

Thus disappearance of the alpha rhythm could be a means of knowing when a person was paying visual attention.

In Mulholland's laboratory, and wherever EEG feedback is studied, unpaid, uninvited volunteers go to great lengths for the opportunity to tune into alpha. One experimenter was awakened at 2 a.m. by a student from California offering to be a research subject.

Around New York University one occasionally sees a student striding through Washington Square wearing a headset with earphones — listening to a tone signifying alpha. Compact, portable, battery-run instruments are abundant. Unlike the costly lab instrument, a home model may sell for $129.

There is a lot of quackery in this field. Advertisements for the gullible even use feedback terminology without feedback instruments, like this one for a weight-reduction system:

"With alpha control you receive perfect balance and your excess weight drops off."

The better instruments are usually byproducts of research, and some are costly. Purchasers usually fail to realize several important facts:

First, feedback, like exercise and dieting, becomes effective only when experienced for a prolonged period.

Moreover, inexpensive instruments are a technical compromise, and a person may be getting feedback for eyeball movements, blinks, or some brainwave pattern when he thinks his feedback is for alpha. Despite such drawbacks, the devices are a hot seller among an introspective generation.

The first people to take full advantage of feedback technology will have to have some small spirit of persistence. They may use EMG feedback as an aid to sleep, or to introspection, or to creative tasks.

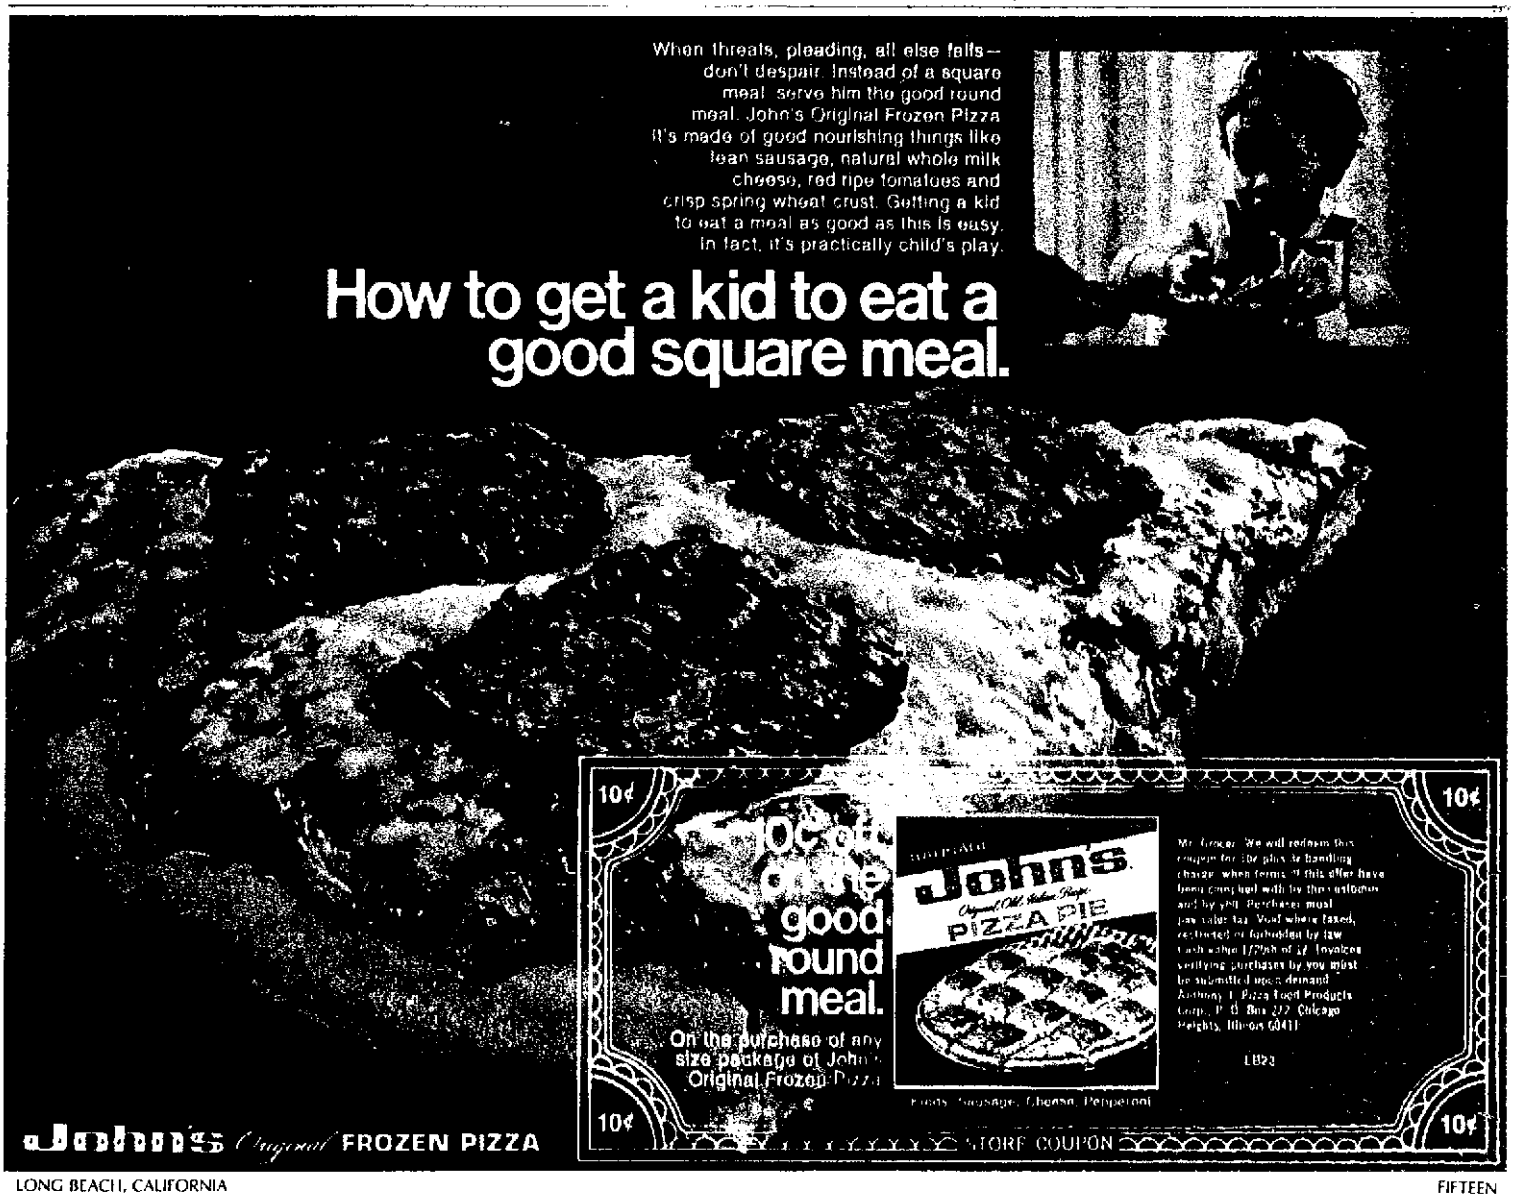

People with cold feet from poor circulation may use temperature feedback, which has worked for at least one case of Reynaud's disease. Some people will use instruments that will awaken them during nightly dreams, giving them access to the mirrored hallways of their own usually forgotten nighttime fantasies.

"In five years," predicts one researcher, "there will be biofeedback centers all over the country, in which people can learn all manner of mind and body functions."

Medical people are not all so optimistic about the future of feedback training in the clinic, and many consider it a fad. Even enthusiasts admit that it is costly in time. In addition, many patients would rather not take responsibility for their own improvement, while others simply do not respond to these techniques.

Certainly, many doctors and patients will not want to undertake more holistic treatment, with its inevitable implications for changing a person's life patterns and habits. Nonetheless, prophets of the future of human consciousness see biofeedback as one small step toward greater autonomy and awareness.

The children of the future may look back on us as little more than Neanderthalmen, crude creatures who were unable to control our feelings, our physiology — and unable to play upon the instrument of the brain. □

KEN RUSSELL

By Rex Reed

Like an Utrillo watercolor, the sleepy seaport town of Portsmouth, England, looked peaceful. A few weeks after I left, it probably was peaceful. But when I was there, Ken Russell was in town. He was storming up and down the lazy cobblestone streets in knickers, boots, outsize tinted granny glasses, a black Dracula cape and a stone crucifix, brandishing an evil cane with an ivory dog's head handle, and frightening the horses.

Small wonder. He's England's resident mad genius, the director of "Women in Love," "The Music Lovers" and "The Devils." Everything he touches is surrounded by controversy. He is respected by studio heads, who spell his name "RU$$ELL," and savagely mauled by critics, who call him a maniac because his films are filled to capacity with excessive sex and perversion. Recently he did some mauling himself when he showed up on British television and physically assaulted Alexander Walker, London's leading film reviewer, for his acid dismissal of "The Devils" and, according to Russell, "also because he deserved a good thrashing." He's not dull.

And now a soothing about-face with a musical family picture, "The Boy Friend," which MGM rushed into release before the color was dry. Is this cherubic monster turning soft? "Don't be insulting," he said, glaring. "I haven't begun to shock people yet. I'm just doing this for therapy."

Russell had agreed to let me visit his closed set without a blood test despite the secrecy surrounding the project because I was one of the few American critics who liked "The Music Lovers." He likes the people who like his movies and hates the ones who don't. (He hadn't yet read my review of "The Devils," which made me throw up.) But like most egomaniacs, he didn't surprise me when, after a brandy and a sour English lunch that tasted like boiled socks, he asked me point-blank about "The Devils" before I visited the set.

"You give critics ammunition. You must've known you were setting yourself up when you showed Louis XIII shooting French Huguenots dressed like blackbirds dropping dead in the water while the soundtrack played 'Bye Bye Blackbird...' Not to mention the masturbating nuns, people being burned alive and closeups of torture. You gave the Catholics alone enough ammunition to gun you down for the rest of your life."

He blanched and grabbed a steak knife. I waited for him to stab me to death. His eyes rolled back and his breathing stopped. "The church has always been appalling. I'm an ordinary, run-of-the-mill sinner who only pays lip service to the church, but I was trying to tell the truth about how it uses totally illiterate people to seduce everyone through terror. It has always been like that and it's like that now and the masses have always gone along with it. America is full of narrow-minded bigots who are terrified of any criticism of the church. They forced me to make 23 cuts before it could be released in America and the ones who made the biggest fuss were atheists — movie moguls at Warner Brothers who give some of the wildest orgies in Hollywood. Hypocrites! Some of my best scenes had to be cut. I had a great scene in which the nuns tore down the cross of Christ and stuffed his toes into their orifices. It was glorious stuff!" He cackled with glee.

Director Ken Russell on set of "The Boy Friend."

I asked him about the reports in the British press about the nuns actually getting raped on the set. "It was pretty gory, but they knew what they were getting into. I never force my actors to do anything they don't want to do, but English extras are the lowest form of animal, the dregs of the underworld, and they manhandled two of the girls a bit harshly and the whole orgy scene got out of hand. Some of the electricians were running off the set from nausea. Then Actors Equity got into it and there was a fracas in the papers. But actors love me."

Glenda Jackson tells it differently. She turned down the lead in "The Devils" because she claimed she had foamed at the mouth enough for Ken Russell in "Women in Love" and "The Music Lovers" and this time he had gone over the boundaries of sanity and good taste. "Utter nonsense," he balked. "I'm glad she wasn't in it. She's not a very good actress, she's very cold and intellectual. No emotion. She says she doesn't want to play the same parts, yet she did Queen Elizabeth on TV like a boring schoolmistress, and followed it up in a movie playing the same part. Giving a ghastly performance, from what I hear." Graciousness and charity are not his strong points.

Nor is humility. "I make great pictures," he would say. "I want to shock people until they turn blue. I want to kick them in the crotch." Or "My film on photographers for TV probaby influenced 'Blow-Up.' People steal from me constantly." Or "I know 'The Boy Friend' will be one of the greatest musicals of all time."

Whatever "The Boy Friend" is, it is not erotic and it won't go unnoticed. On the way back to the set, he said he decided to make it "to prove to people I'm not totally depraved. I love the innocence and charm of musicals. When I was in military school, I led all the cadets in a Carmen Miranda number in drag. I made all the cadets dress up like Carmen Miranda in drag. I often dance around naked to phonograph records. I was a dancer once in a stock company of 'Annie Get Your Gun.' I could jump enormously high, but I came down like a ton of bricks.

"Then I became a director and devised a new way to make dreary biographies of dead people. I did 35 films for TV for very tiny budgets. I couldn't afford period costumes for more than six extras. I had no way to build Paris in my film on Debussy. In the one on Delius, I only had three people in a room. In the one on Isadora Duncan, I couldn't afford musicians, so I used an old Betty Hutton record. Those films inspired my imagination and now I know how to make a small budget look like 20 million dollars on the screen. For 'The Boy Friend,' I only have 24 girls instead of 300, but the Busby Berkeley musical numbers and dream sequences in the movie will knock you out. I'm directing it like a tacky stageplay in the provinces that is being visited by a big Hollywood director. You see the big fantasies as he visualizes them in his head. It will be fantastic!"

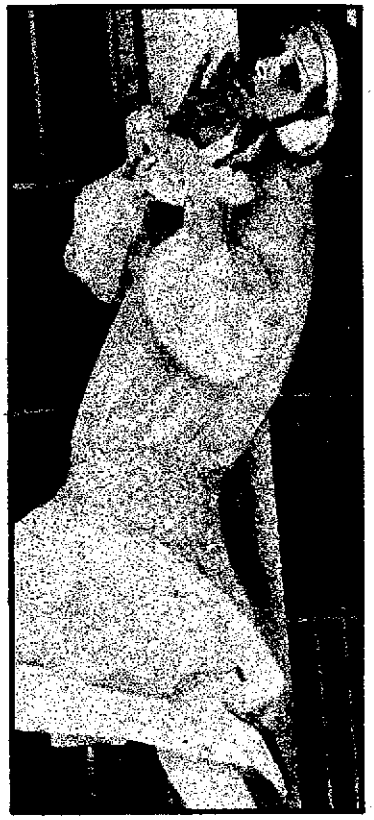

We arrived at the Theater Royal, a condemned music hall marked for demolition where Edmund Kean used to play Othello at the seashore. "They're going to tear it down when the movie is finished and turn it into a supermarket." It wasn't much different from most sets, except the actors were dirtier, with Band-aids on their knees. Up on the stage I saw the executioner, the evil torturers, King Charles and a couple of demented monks from "The Devils," in tights and Esther Williams bathing caps, dressed like starfish. (Russell uses the same actors over and over because they know him well enough to do anything he asks no matter how outrageous, and the costumes for all of his films are designed by his wife, Shirley.) Two flappers covered in green, blue and silver spangles were decked out like tap-dancing Christmas trees, and tinsel waves moved on-stage in rhythm before a gigantic papier-mache sunburst. "Everybody onstage for the beach number!" yelled Russel, like Mickey Rooney in "Babes in Arms."

There were grinning jellyfish, plum-colored palm trees and terpsichorean doll-babies in straw hats crusted with jeweled seashells, stomping and hoofing, rocking and swaying, like inmates of an asylum putting on a benefit to buy new shock-treatment equipment. "Show your teeth, boys — jellyfish have teeth!" shouted Russell. Out beyond the opera boxes and gold-leaf statues like pornographic madonnas, under an electric cable strung from an oil lamp chandelier, sat Twiggy. An emaciated rag doll with a face painted on like a candy box. The all-singing, all-dancing star of all this pandemonium, she seemed unruffled.

"I met her three years ago," said Russell, "and she said 'I'm sick of modeling, I want to do a film.' So one night I was at a party and some bloody journalist came up and said 'What's all this about you doing 'The Boy Friend' with Twiggy? Is it true?' I was so drunk on champagne I just said yes to get rid of him, and the next day MGM rang up and said 'What the hell are you doing? We've owned the rights to that for 15 years!' and when we stopped yelling at each other, they said would I really like to do it and I said yes before I knew what I was getting into. Honestly, that's how it all came about."

In the five months it took Ken Russell to make "The Boy Friend," I am told it was not Twiggy who nearly caused everyone involved to have 17 nervous breakdowns, but her Svengali-like manager-cum-boyfriend, Justin de Villeneuve, who discovered her washing hair in a beauty parlor at the age of 14 and created, packaged, promoted, publicized and exploited her into a pop phenomenon. It was Justin who teased and rudely antagonized the world press into a state borderng on hysteria by protecting Twiggy as though she was Elizabeth Taylor's wedding ring, and it was Justin who, at one point, even threatened to withdraw her from the film halfway through completion unless Russell promised to pay him more money and guaranteed to star him in a movie version of Thomas Hardy's "Tess of the D'Urbervilles." Russell turns purple with rage at the mention of Justin, who was banned from the set the day I was there, but he was very complimentary about all 92 pounds of Twiggy. "I'm going to make her the greatest thing since Marilyn Monroe," he said modestly.

Since that famous interview in which she said she thought Hiroshina was a Japanese boutique on Madison Avenue, some folks have come to think of Twiggy as frivolous. But she was working hard. She chewed the ends of her hair, her feet red and swollen. "It's been risky, but she danced eight hours a day for eight months and she hits all the notes and makes me cry," said Russell. "She'll be a bloody star."

"Oy don't know wot oy'm doin' 'alf the time," said the bloody star.

Panavision cameras moved in. Christopher Gable, who played Tchaikovsky's boyfriend in "The Music Lovers," chewed bubble gum in blue jeans and an Edwardian coat, doubling as choreographer and Twiggy's co-star: "All right girls," he said, addressing the clumsy jellyfish, "keep in step. Ready now — one, two three . . ."

I headed out of town, the jazz of the Twenties swing band fading in the distance. The last I saw of Ken Russell, he was sitting in a velvet chair, knitting a sweater. □

SEW UP THIS DEAL

By Steve Ellingson

The most exciting thing about sewing is the quick effect a girl can get for very little money: $10 worth of red wool can become an eye-catching coat worth all of $65. That extra yard of fabric can give you two skirts, maybe three — skirts being what they are today. A husband or beau can be greatly impressed when the lady of his life appears for an evening out in a beguiling dress that she has made that very day. So today — we dedicate to all girls who sew, the handsome sewing-center cabinet pictured here with 20th Century-Fox actress Karen Huston.

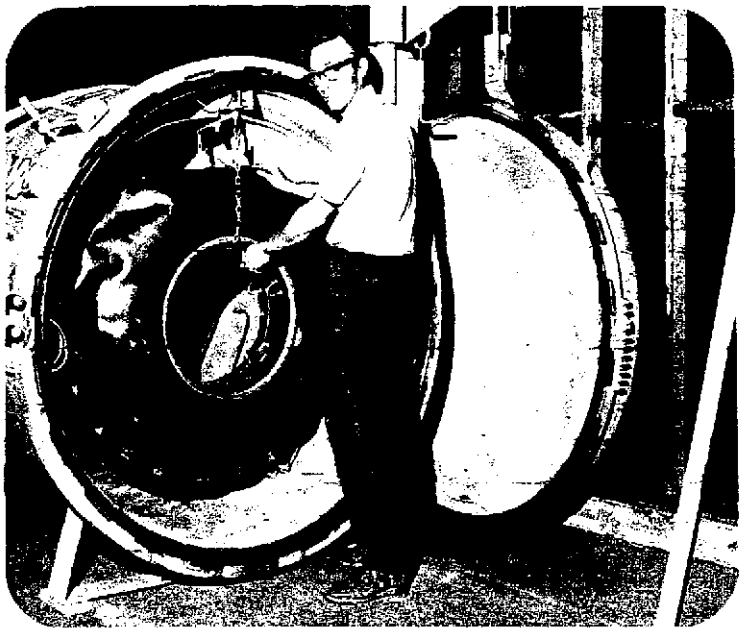

The cabinet is good-looking, efficient, easy-to-build and literally loaded with benefits. It contains, in an orderly way, all of the 101 notions and tools every seamstress owns. The roomy drawers are ideal for fabrics, trim and dozens of miscellaneous items. On the inside of each door you have places for scissors, thread, patterns and other sewing tools, all plainly visible and within easy reach. The top folds out to give you a large cutting and work surface, yet when the top is folded down the entire unit requires but little floor space. Invisible casters make it mobile so it can be easily glided to any part of your home where you wish to work.

The entire cabinet was made of birch plywood, but of course you may use any one of the other fancy plywoods now on the market. Easy-to-understand, step-by-step directions are included, along with photos showing the various stages of construction. The cost? Very little when you build it yourself.

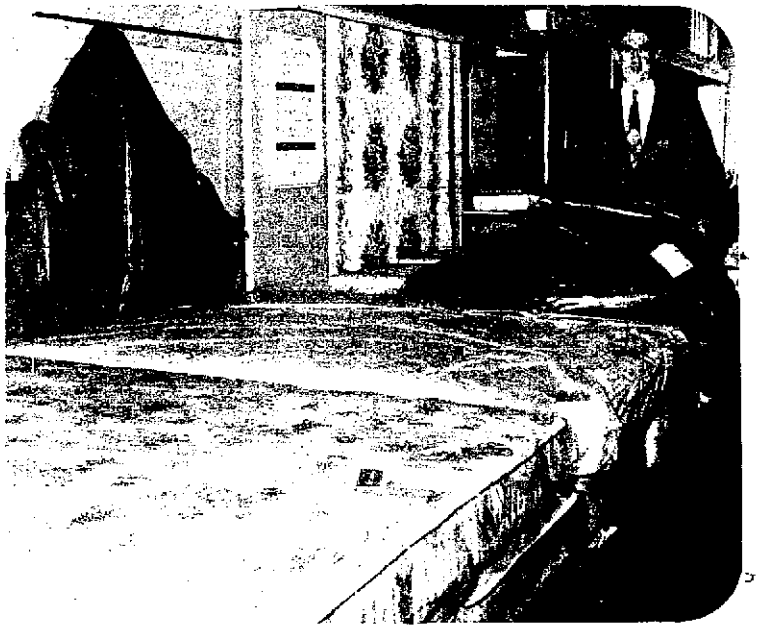

To obtain pattern number 454 for building the sewing cabinet, send $1 (add 25 cents per pattern for airmail delivery) to:

Pictorial Highlights of the Week

It's not a rocket to the moon or a decompression chamber that Bob Zinge is operating. This huge device, by means of heat and pressure, bonds pre-cured tread to tire casings at Johnny Gillette's Retread Plant. This process is referred to as Bandag cold retreading. The monster will recap all sizes, from passenger car tires to big earth movers and do it well enough to make Gillette retreads known for the quality they keep. Modern equipment and experienced personnel is the combination that has made Johnny Gillette Tire Co. so successful these past 20 years. The plant, retail store and auto service center is located at 3910 Cherry Avenue in Long Beach.

Unless you're a teenager with a bottomless stomach, I suggest you skip lunch today if you plan to dine this evening at Nino's, 3853 Atlantic Ave., in the Bixby Knolls section of Long Beach.

Nino's is the kind of beloved Italian restaurant which people recommend to their friends with such high praise as: "It's absolutely the best. You won't believe there can be such flavors in food until you try Nino's. And be prepared to eat course after course . . ."

Nino's isn't a big place. It's just the right size for a traditional Italian family restaurant. It's attractively decorated with a wishing well and murals depicting scenes in Italy. But it isn't fancy or pretentious.

It's busy on week nights as well as weekends, because hundreds of people — including actress Loretta Young, who dined there not too long ago — are convinced that its owner, Vincenzo Cristiano, is a wizard of the culinary arts.

My wife, small daughter and I think they're right. We had an enormous dinner recently at Nino's. Even after we'd reached capacity, we tried to eat a bit more, because each morsel was so fresh and scrumptious. The dinners, $2.75 to $4.45, include a two-dish antipasto of marinated vegetables jardinere with olives and other spicy goodies; big bowls of steaming minestrone, salad with Italian dressing or bleu cheese; entree, hot garlic bread, beverage and a superb peach melba dessert.

VINCENZO CRISTIANO
Wizard with Six Hands?

Vincenzo, working as though he has six hands, prepares everything to order, which is why each dish has so much sparkling flavor. Born in Naples, Italy, he received his training in fine restaurants there. He opened Nino's in 1957, aided by his wife Inge, a native of Germany.

The restaurant is named for their oldest son, Nino, who began working there as a kitchen helper when he was a small boy. Nino is now 19 and studying to be a physician. His place at the restaurant has been taken by his tall brother Mike, 14, who works energetically at his father's side.

Nino's entrees range from spaghetti with tomato sauce or butter sauce, $2.75, to linguini with clam sauce, ravioli with meatballs, manicotti, fettucinni Alfredo, chicken Italiano, chicken cacciatore, gnocchi, veal Milanese, veal parmigiana, veal Caruso and veal scallopine (prepared three different ways). Also featured are a la carte items for smaller appetites, fine wines, fabulous pizza and even six-course pizza dinners.

Closed Tuesdays, Nino's serves from 4 p.m. on.

CRAIG NICKOLOFF
Love That Halibut!

Caricatures by Larry LaVoie

IN A RECENT COLUMN about Nik's Restaurant, Cherry Avenue at Wardlow Road, I rapturized about the quality of its deep-fried shrimp.

I didn't exaggerate. But I made it pretty clear that you'd have to go a long way — maybe to South America or Africa — to find shrimp of comparable quality. And I indicated you'd have to pay a heckuva lot more than the modest $2.15 Nik's charges in its colorful coffee shop.

Shrimp lovers arose everywhere and praised the truth in that column. Some reminded me that they enjoy Nik's shrimp so much because they happen to know that those delicacies — neither too large or too small — are breaded individually by the cooks and dipped affectionately in fresh shortening for a brief bath at an extremely high temperature.

I also heard from a few dissenters. They didn't disagree with my words about the shrimp. They were dismayed because I hadn't written one word about Nik's halibut.

I know now that halibut lovers are quite biased. They believe only in halibut — first, last and in-between. They have the highest praise for Nik's halibut steak, because it is the center-cut northern variety, luscious in flavor, grilled so expertly that each slice is moist and tender.

Those halibut lovers also emphasized that Nik's halibut, $1.90, costs less than the shrimp, adding: "Where else can you find something this good at that price?"

So I went over and tried Nik's halibut. Now I'm a believer, too. Henceforth, when my wife and I dine at Nik's, she's going to have halibut, I'll order the shrimp — and we'll share 50-50.

Nik's is owned by Carl Nickoloff and his father Nick who opened it in 1957. They are aided by Carl's sister, Genevieve Angdahl; Carl's 20-year-old son Craig and an unusually well-trained staff of waitresses and cooks directed by manager Bob Madrano. Craig, who is majoring in geography at Cypress Junior College, works parttime as a night cook..

Open for breakfast, luncheon and dinner, Nik's serves its sea foods, steaks, veal cutlets and spring chicken with soup du jour or a delightful salad, baked potato or French fries and splendid hot rolls with butter. Every day, including Sunday, the restaurant has an old-fashioned special entree, $1.75 on the dinner, $1.25 at luncheon. The entrees, fresh and savory, range from pot roast and chicken-fried steak to sirloin tips, pork chops or perhaps sea bass or beef stew. □

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Circumstantial evidence has linked a fungus-caused eye disease with turtles.

Medical researchers at the University of Miami (Fla.) say there is a high incidence of fungus-caused ulcers of the cornea in south Florida as well as other southern climes including Southern California. The cornea is the clear front portion of the eye.

Fungi, next to viruses, are said to be the most frequent cause of corneal ulcers. And up to 80 per cent of fungal ulcers are due to one particular fungus — Fusarium solani.

Meanwhile, a researcher affiliated with the Lerner Marine Laboratory of the American Museum of Natural History has reported trouble in raising loggerhead turtles so that he can study their migratory behavior. The turtles have been developing severe eye and shell trouble. The disorder was finally traced to the fungus Fusarium solani.

The thought now is that the wind may blow fungus spores into the air, and perhaps this has something to do with the human disease of the cornea.

The fungus that infects human eyes is a mutant of the fungus strain that infects turtles.

Research is continuing, according to a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

When it comes to pets, it appears healthier to keep dogs rather than cats or turtles, according to Dr. Richard L. Parker of the Center for Disease Control.

Dogs appear to be decreasing in importance as reservoirs of rabies, he says. But wild animal reservoirs apparently are increasing.

A lot of rabies exposure in recent years has resulted from bites by foxes, skunks, raccoons and bats. Raccoon rabies, first detected in southern Florida, has now moved north into Georgia, spreading at the rate of one county a year, Dr. Parker discloses.

Only recently has it been found that a disease called toxoplasmosis can be transmitted to humans through handling cats, he says. Extent of the danger is not yet known.

Pet turtles appear to be sufficient cause for concern in the transmission of salmonellosis, a disorder characterized by gastrointestinal symptoms.

His report is in Internal Medicine News.

The Zen macrobiotic diet, labeled a health hazard by medical authorities, has no connection with Zen Buddhism, according to a letter to the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Philip Kapleau of the Zen Center in Rochester, N.Y., says he himself has written about the "dangers and errors of this diet" and has spoken out against it on college campuses during seminars on Zen Buddhism.

"I have taken great pains to point out that the Zen macrobiotic diet has no connection with Zen Buddhism," he says.

It takes Indians and Eskimos longer to sober up than it does for Caucasians, new medical research shows.

Reason: Slower metabolism.

Dr. D. Fenna and associates of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, administered an alcohol preparation intravenously. He found that it required the same amount of alcohol for all three races to become intoxicated.

But the Indians and Eskimos could metabolize alcohol only two-thirds as rapidly as Caucasians, according to a report in Canadian Medical Association Journal.

A good case exists for warning the public of the danger of drinking alcoholic beverages and taking aspirin at the same time, according to a report in the British medical journal Gut.

The hazard: The combination may trigger bleeding inside the gastrointestinal tract, say researchers at the University of Aberdeen, Scotland.

This finding has been reported before. The new development is that additional research supports earlier investigations.

Apparently there is no association between dangerous internal bleeding and the drinking of alcoholic beverages, the report says. But if aspirin is taken, the combination of the drug and alcohol shows a highly significant synergistic (harmonious) effect in bringing about possible bleeding episodes.

A combination drug has once again proved to be an effective agent against acne, report British researchers.

The combination agent includes trimethoprim, an antibacterial compound, and sulfamethoxazole, a sulfa drug.

In England, trade names for this combination include Bactrim and Septrim.

The report is in British Journal of Dermatology. □

Q. Isn't there a very good possibility that President Nixon will reassure his reelection by pulling out all U.S. troops from Vietnam by September of this year and thus get the North Vietnamese to release our prisoners of war?—M.R., Bethesda, Md.
A. That possibility has been mentioned many times. Should the President manage it, he will pull the political rug from beneath his Democratic opposition.

Q. Recently when I was in Palm Springs I heard much gossip about Vice President Agnew, Frank Sinatra, Eva Gabor and Barbara Marx. What is the relationship between these four people?—T.L.S., Indio, Calif.
A. Vice President Agnew has become an intimate friend of Frank Sinatra. He house-guests at the Sinatra compound on the grounds of the Tamarisk Country Club near Palm Springs. Sinatra, as many interested people recognize, cannot live a womanless life. Two of his many female friends are Eva Gabor, the actress, and Barbara Marx, wife of Zeppo Marx, one of the Marx brothers.

Sinatra has introduced these two lovelies to Agnew, who finds the Sinatra life style most conducive to enjoyment.

Q. I keep reading from time to time about an Australian journalist named Wilfred Burchett. Can you brief me on him?—N. L. Simon, Bangor, Maine.
A. Burchett, an Australian newspaperman, served as a correspondent from the London Daily Express in World War II. He wrote about British forces in India, sailed with the U.S. Navy in the Pacific, defected to the Communists during the Korean War. Recently he was stationed in New York where he covered the United Nations for various foreign publications. Because of his Communist associations he was restricted to within a 25-mile radius of the United Nations. Burchett has been welcomed in Peking, Hanoi, and other Communist capitals, now makes his home in Paris.

Q. Who said: "Among a people generally corrupt, liberty cannot long exist"?—Ben Cohen, McLean, Va.
A. British statesman Edmund Burke.

Q. In the India-Pakistan war, the East Pakistan guerrillas were called the Mukti Bahini. What does Mukti Bahini mean?—Veronica McCory, Victoria, Tex.
A. The words mean "freedom fighters."

DULLES, CLARISSA AND SIR ANTHONY EDEN.

Q. My history professor informs us that John Foster Dulles, Secretary of State under President Eisenhower, hated Sir Anthony Eden, Great Britain's Prime Minister. Is that so?—Evelyn Richardson, Tempe, Ariz.
A. John Foster Dulles and Sir Anthony Eden hated each other, and Clarissa Eden, the Prime Minister's wife, despised Dulles even more.

Q. Is it on the level that big business in Texas owns Lieut. Gov. Ben Barnes outright and is determined to make him governor?—Dan Price, Bartlesville, Okla.
A. In Texas the bloom is off the Barnes peach. Texans are somewhat curious to learn how Barnes, whose salary as Lieut. Gov. has been $3800 a year, is now worth, according to him, $267,721. Texas, of late, has been publicized for flim-flam businessmen and politicians who use each other to foster their greed for power and money.

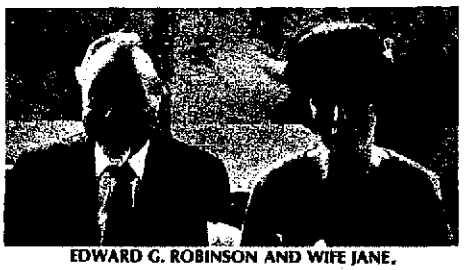

Ben Barnes is a protégé of Lyndon Johnson and John Connally who like many Texas politicians started out as poor boys and ended up as millionaires.

Perhaps the same happy fate will overtake Ben Barnes if Texans can overlook his role in the Sharpstown Bank scandal in which Frank Sharp accused him of accepting a bribe, an allegation which Barnes denies. In any event, Barnes now stands tainted in the aftermath of the bank's insolvency.

Q. Can you identify the woman for whom Red Skelton gave up his wife of 26 years?—Melvin Welch, Marion, Ind.
A. Skelton has been seeing a good deal lately of Lothian Toland, an attractive Palm Springs secretary —but she was in no way responsible for the Skelton marital breakup.

Q. I read that Chuck Colson and Bob Haldeman of the White House palace guard have scheduled Sen. Charles Mathias of Maryland and Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas for the purge. If this is so, why would these hatchet men want to destroy two fellow Republicans?—E.L., Washington, D.C.
A. Supposedly, fanatic Nixon supporters, not necessarily Haldeman and Colson, although they have been frequently mentioned in the case, want Mathias and Dole purged—Mathias because he has supported Nixonian legislation only 50 percent of the time, and Dole because allegedly he has not spent enough time on the Senate floor defending Nixon from Democratic attacks. President Nixon has enlarged his White House staff to a point where it is now the largest such staff any U.S. President has ever put together. One result is that he cannot keep track of what some of his staff men do and say in ostentatious display of their personal loyalty to him.

Q. Was John L. Lewis, former president of the United Mine Workers, ever a Nazi agent during World War II? Can this possibly be true?—Alfred Wright, Pittsburgh, Pa.
A. Lewis was never a Nazi agent. American oil interests, however, hoping to keep the U.S. out of World War II and desirous of maintaining oil sales to Germany, accepted Nazi money in an attempt to defeat Franklin D. Roosevelt in his 1940 bid for reelection. Lewis played ball with at least one of these oil men, then subsequently resigned as head of the CIO when Roosevelt was reelected. An excellent book on the subject of German espionage in the U.S. during World War II is The Game of the Foxes by Ladislas Farago (McKay), author of Patton.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON AND WIFE JANE.

Q. How old is Edward G. Robinson, the Hollywood star? And what does he intend to do with his fabulous art collection?—Evelyn Weiss; Los Angeles, Calif.
A. Robinson, at least 78, will probably leave his $10 million collection of French impressionist paintings to his wife, the former Jane Adler.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

EDITED
by LLOYD SHEARER

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

THE DANGER OF LYING When the U.S. Government decides to withhold information from the people, it employs two main methods (1) it declares all the documents pertaining to the information, top secret, secret-sensitive, or confidential, or (2) it simply lies to the people.

The Pentagon Papers is an example of the first method, the government's explanation of why it sent the Enterprise and a destroyer escort into the Bay of Bengal during the India-Pakistani war is an example of the second.

The case of the Pentagon Papers in which some 48 volumes were needlessly overclassified is too well-known to bear repetition.

The announcement covering the Enterprise is less well-known. The reason given to the public last December for ordering a portion of the U.S. Seventh Fleet to the Bay of Bengal was to evacuate U.S. citizens from Dacca in East Pakistan.

That was a most unimaginative cover story. Following the evacuation of 114 Americans from Dacca by British RAF transport planes, there were at the time, according to the Indian government, only 47 Americans remaining in Dacca -- 17 U.S. officials and the other 30 mostly missionaries. All 47 could have been flown out in one plane. They did not need to be rescued by a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier.

The true reasons for ordering the Enterprise and its destroyer escort from Vietnamese waters into the Bay of Bengal were:

(1) A show of force against the Soviet navy also cruising the Indian Ocean.

(2) The diversion of Indian aircraft from the Pakistan fronts.

(3) Possible diversion of the Indian aircraft carrier Vikrani from blockade and air strike missions against East Pakistan.

(4) Possible evacuation of Pakistani troops from the port of Chittagong.

(5) A demonstration of solidarity with the People's Republic of China which also sided with Pakistan against India.

Why the U.S. Government felt that the people should not be told these truths is difficult to determine. Perhaps the Administration felt that a war-weary public ought not be informed of a possible confrontation of U.S. and Soviet naval forces in the Indian Ocean.

When a government consistently conceals its true motives from the people, it risks their mounting skepticism. It is regrettable but true that neither the Johnson Administration nor the Nixon Administration has inspired the American public with trust and faith in their government.

After eight years of mounting doubt there is a great danger that the people's confidence in their government's credibility will eventually vanish.

Surely, in the past eight years the public has been more generously informed by its press than by its government. (See Jack Anderson's article on page 6.)

NEW LABELS The Federal Trade Commission announces that effective July 3, 1972, all wearing apparel in this country, domestic and imported, must bear permanent labels which clearly disclose cleaning and washing instructions for those products requiring them.

DICK CAVETT (L) AND JOHNNY CARSON WILL COMPETE WITH FILMS SUCH AS "NIGHT OF THE IGUANA," WITH AVA GARDNER AND RICHARD BURTON.

TALK REPLACEMENT Starting tomorrow, CBS-TV is retiring from the field of late-night talk shows. Conceding victory to Johnny Carson on NBC and Dick Cavett on ABC, the CBS programmers have replaced Merv Griffin, their entry in the talkfest sweepstakes, with 100 old MGM feature films.

According to Oscar Katz, programming vice president at CBS-TV, talk shows lose their audience as the night wears on but late-late movies suffer a lesser attrition rate.

CBS-TV currently has a stock of 160 old feature films, enough to last for 18 months with two or three replays. Each of the MGM films costs about $30,000, with the new list including such hits as An American in Paris, Night of the Iguana, Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, and of course, an overwhelming majority of "dogs."

KINSEY REPORT, SWEDISH STYLE A young Swedish doctoral candidate at the University of London has compiled what may be the Swedish equivalent of the Kinsey Report.

In researching her thesis on sex in Sweden, Rosemarie Eliasson interviewed 1300 young people in Stockholm about their sex lives. The results were not so very startling, considering Sweden's reputation for sexual permissiveness, nor so very different from what an updated Kinsey Report might reveal in America.

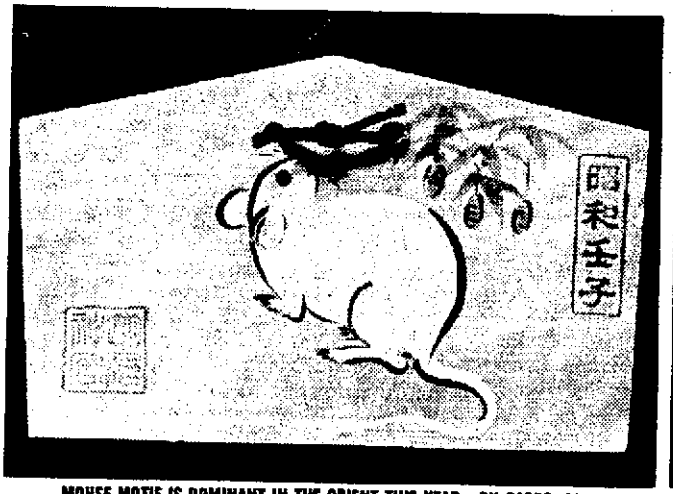

Miss Eliasson found that young Swedish men frequently engage in casual sex. Young Swedish women, however, are more exclusive about their partners, prefering to wait for someone they care about. Still, few wait until marriage.

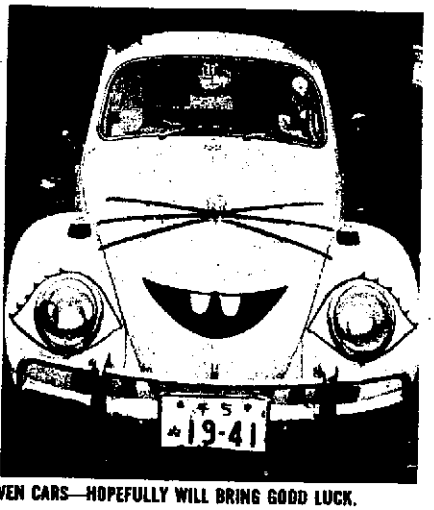

As for sex education, 60 percent of the young people interviewed by Miss Eliasson admitted that they never talked about sex with their parents.

THE PRICE OF GAS If you think gasoline prices are high in the U.S. (they're highest in Hawaii -- 45 and 49 cents -- and Alaska -- 60 and 61 cents), glance at this list of European petrol prices. Bear in mind, however, that the imperial gallon used in Europe is 20 percent larger than the American.

MOUSE MOTIF IS DOMINANT IN THE ORIENT THIS YEAR—ON CARDS, CALENDARS, EVEN CARS—HOPEFULLY WILL BRING GOOD LUCK.

YEAR OF THE RAT In this country many persons believe strongly that the imaginary belt encircling the heavens is divided into 12 parts called signs of the zodiac. They are Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius and Pisces. If you were born under one of these signs, the theory suggests, you are blessed or cursed with particular characteristics.

In the Orient, the mythology of the ancient Chinese zodiac involves animals: rat, cow, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, chicken, dog, and pig.

This year, 1972, is the Year of the Rat--the first year in the traditional 12-year cycle of the Chinese zodiac. Last year was the Year of the Pig; next year will be the Year of the Cow. Each year offers special traits to those born within its orbit.

According to legend, the Year of the Rat is a year of good fortune, which is why the Chinese expect President Nixon to meet with exceptional luck on his Chinese venture later this month. Nineteen hundred and seventy-two is also a leap year with special good luck for travelers, treaty-makers and those about to marry.

Centuries ago the presence of mice in an Oriental home was interpreted as a sign of happiness and prosperity. It was believed then that no mouse would make his abode in any place except where he could find a plentiful supply of food and obtain decent shelter.

If a mouse left his abode, the residents of the house considered it a warning that the house or its occupants would soon meet with famine, destruction, or pestilence. Toy mice have traditionally been placed in Oriental homes as luck charms.

If you were born in the Year of the Mouse, you are presumably honest, industrious, frugal, timid, alert, gentle, open and well-liked.

President Nixon was born on Jan. 9, 1913, the Year of the Pig. The Chinese, however, do not expect to lead him to the slaughterhouse. Quite the opposite. For him and Mrs. Nixon they will roll out all their red carpets.

SKI PATROL In Austria, there are now more ski accidents than auto accidents per year.

During the 1969-70 ski season the Austrian slopes recorded 88,000 injuries -- compared with 68,000 per year on the highways.

This poses an economic as well as a medical problem for the Alpine country. Austria earns $328 million a year from skiing, but pays out $11.2 million to Austrians injured in ski accidents. The 2 million foreign skiers who visit the country annually must of course bear their own medical expenses.

"We are experiencing a development now," reports Carl Krois, sports director of the Austrian National Tourist Office, "that parallels early auto traffic. At first there was no need for stop signs or policemen. But soon there may be.

"No one wants to encumber the enjoyment of skiing with rules," Krois continues, "but certain safety measures must be introduced to avoid chaos."

Among the safety measures discussed by the Austrian Tourist Office are police ski patrols, traffic signs (in English, German and French), and breathalizer tests, with the same limits for skiers as drunken drivers.

Other ski countries will undoubtedly follow Austria's example as the number of skiers doubles to 90 million worldwide by 1995. Eventually, the experts predict, there will be codified rules of the slope just as there are rules of the road.

Jack Anderson, with Mrs. Anderson and six of their nine children, on the grounds of their Bethesda, Md., home where he works during the mornings. He maintains a staff of investigative reporters in Washington.

Why I Blew The Whistle

by Jack Anderson

EDITOR'S NOTE: Newspaper columnist Jack Anderson, who exposed the U.S. role in the recent Indian-Pakistan conflict, has been with PARADE nearly 20 years and is today its Washington Bureau Chief. Readers will recall such articles in these pages as "Congressmen Who Cheat," "The Great Highway Robbery," and "Let's Retire Congressmen at 65."

Like all investigative reporters, Anderson is provocative and controversial. Many government officials and politicians of both parties object to his ferreting out secrets they would rather keep hidden.

In this article, Jack Anderson tells why he believes the people have a right to know.

PARADE welcomes the opinions of its readers. Tell us what you think of Anderson's views and in a future issue we will present a cross-section of the comments.

A tireless muckraker, Jack Anderson is responsible for important exposés.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Do you feel as an American citizen that you have the right to know about an impending war?

This question is pointed up by the secret documents I got out of the White House. They tell a chilling story. While Americans sang of peace on earth last December, grim men sat in guarded rooms in Washington, Moscow and Peking making life-and-death decisions. The world might have awakened on Christmas morning, not to jingle bells, but to the roar of nuclear warfare.

When I became aware of the developing confrontation, I was determined to inform the American people. The only way this could be accomplished was to rip the secrecy labels off the details. For the dangerous drift toward Armageddon, during the second week of December 1971, was classified top secret.

Two third-class powers, India and Pakistan, were fighting over the fate of East Pakistan. Just offstage, the world's three great powers—China, Russia and the United States—began making moves in a far more dangerous game.

On Dec. 7—30 years to the day after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor—a message was received in the situation room in the basement of the White House. It was stamped "Top Secret Umbra." Umbra means the darkest part of a shadow. In U.S. intelligence circles, it is the symbol for the darkest of secrets.

This cable warned that three Soviet ships—a destroyer armed with missiles, a seagoing minesweeper and a tanker—had passed eastward through the Strait of Malacca to join other Soviet warships in the Bay of Bengal.

China rumblings

Intelligence reports brought into the White House other evidence that the Soviets were supporting the Indian thrust into East Pakistan. There were simultaneous rumblings out of China that the Chinese might intervene on the side of Pakistan.

It was a situation that the U.S. was better equipped to observe than to alter.

On Dec. 8, Henry Kissinger, the President's foreign policy czar, told a strategy meeting grimly: "We may be witnessing a state [India], backed by the Soviet Union, turning half of Pakistan into an impotent state and the other half into a vassal." He warned the assembled policymakers that they must consider the long-range consequences.

They began planning at once to counteract the Soviet ploy. On Dec. 10, a decision was made to send an American flotilla, led by the carrier Enterprise, into the Bay of Bengal. The ships, called Task Force 74, were to make "a show of force." It was suggested the flotilla would divert Indian ships and planes from the war with Pakistan and, thereby, relieve the pressure on President Yahya Khan's beleaguered forces.

Forces alerted

The risks were apparent. On Dec. 10, the commander of the Seventh Fleet flashed the secret word that the "primary air threat would be from IAF (Indian Air Forces) aircraft . . ." The next day, Washington warned Task Force 74 that it "must be alert to the possibility of provocative and irrational acts by hostile forces."

Adm. John McCain, the Pacific commander, asked for and received permission to maintain aerial surveillance of the Russian squadron.

Not long afterward, a new Soviet

IT'S NATIONAL JELL-O® SAVES YOUR BUDGET MONTH.

BRAND GELATIN

For about a quarter of a dollar a serving, a whole main course.*

If your budget is shaky, serve something shaky: Jell-O® Brand Gelatin.

It's less than 4¢ a serving plain, and you can fill it with vegetables and either tuna or ham and cheese.

Jell-O.

It can make a main course, instead of just following one.

Molded Chef's Salad, about 20¢ a serving*

1 package (6 oz.) or 2 packages (3 oz. each) Jell-O® Brand Lemon Gelatin
2 teaspoons salt
2 cups boiling water
1 cup cold water
3 tablespoons vinegar
1/8 teaspoon red pepper sauce
¾ cup thin ham strips
¼ cup thin process American cheese strips
½ cup shredded lettuce
¼ cup finely sliced onion
1 small tomato, cut into thin wedges
½ small green pepper, cut in thin strips

Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add cold water, vinegar, and red pepper sauce. Chill until thickened. Fold in remaining ingredients. Pour into a 5-cup mold. Chill until firm—at least 6 hours or overnight. Unmold and garnish as desired. 5 cups or 5 servings.

Tuna Salad, about 25¢ a serving*

1 package (3 oz.) Jell-O® Lime Gelatin
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
2 teaspoons vinegar
¾ cup cold water
1 can (7 oz.) tuna, drained and coarsely flaked
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
½ cup chopped dill pickle
¼ cup diced celery

Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add vinegar and cold water. Chill until thickened. Fold in remaining ingredients. Pour into a 1-quart mold or loaf pan and chill until firm. Unmold and garnish as desired. Makes 3½ cups or 4 servings.

WHY I BLEW THE WHISTLE

squadron, including two guided-missile destroyers and a pair of submarines, set sail from Vladivostok for the troubled waters.

The scene was set for another Gulf of Tonkin incident. In the secret documents, the parallels are frequent and frightening.

Meanwhile, other moves were taking place on the ground. The White House situation room learned the Chinese were gathering weather reports along the China-India border, an unusual move indicative of military interest.

The Chinese were a worry to the Russians. In remote Kathmandu, Nepal, in the Himalayas, the Soviet military attaché warned the Chinese attaché that Chinese intervention to aid Pakistan would be met with massive Russian force.

The same day, U.S. intelligence reported: "According to a reliable clandestine source, President Yahya Khan claimed . . . today that the Chinese Ambassador in Islamabad had assured him that within 72 hours the Chinese army will move towards the [Indian] border."

CIA hears Mrs. Gandhi

Back in New Delhi, the Central Intelligence Agency picked up a remark by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi "that she had some indications that the Chinese intend to intervene along India's northern border . . ."

Soviet forces, meanwhile, had been massed for months on the border of China's remote Sinkiang Province, where the nuclear test range is located. The Soviets might welcome an excuse to drive into Sinkiang and destroy China's nuclear works.

There was a hint of this in an ominous, secret intelligence cable from New Delhi on Dec. 13. The Russian Ambassador to India, Nikolai M. Pegov, was quoted as assuring Indian officials "that a Soviet fleet is now in the Indian Ocean and that the Soviet Union will not allow the U.S. Seventh Fleet to intervene. If China should decide to intervene, said Pegov, the Soviet Union would open a diversionary action in Sinkiang."

Jack Anderson has been working as a reporter in Washington since 1947. His column, in 600 U.S. newspapers, brings him 200 to 300 letters a day. Many offer him news tips.

As it happened, the Pakistan army crumbled, and the brief war came to an end. But for a few days, the world stood on the edge of another world war and the American people were never told about it.

Through my sources, I had followed the developments. I felt someone should blow a warning whistle. So I sought documentary evidence, available only in secret papers, of what was going on. It seemed a matter of peace or war, of life and death. Certainly, the public had a right to know.

Too often in the past, the price of secrecy has been bloodshed. Lyndon Johnson campaigned on a peace platform in 1964, saying he did not intend "to send American boys to do what Asian boys should be doing." Not until seven years later did we learn from the Pentagon Papers that Johnson had been making opposite plans in secret.

Public misled

We also learned seven years too late that the public was misled about the Gulf of Tonkin incident. Johnson's announcement that North Vietnamese torpedo boats had staged an unprovoked attack upon a U.S. destroyer led to a Senate resolution which was repeatedly cited, thereafter, as legal authorization for prosecuting the Vietnam war. The truth remained classified.

In 1961, The New York Times learned of the preparations for the Bay of Pigs invasion, but the story was suppressed in the name of national security. Later, a bitter President Kennedy realized that the press could have saved him a major disaster. "I wish you had run everything on Cuba," he told the paper's late publisher Orville Dryfoos.

Warnings hidden

During the Korean War, the people weren't told of repeated Chinese warnings that China would intervene if U.S. troops crossed the 38th Parallel. There was no public opinion, therefore, to restrain Gen. Douglas MacArthur from sending his troops to the Yalu. This brought Chinese "volunteers" flooding across the river into Korea.

The American people, whose sons must do the dying when the government's policies lead to war, are entitled to know all the dangers. Certainly, the government has the right to classify information that might jeopardize the national security. But the government has badly abused this right.

The classification system gives the executive branch the absolute authority to make whatever it pleases a state secret. Neither Congress nor the courts can declassify documents. Our leaders use this power to control the flow of news to the people. Thanks to freedom of the press, they can't stop newspapers from publishing the news. So they try to cut off undesirable news at the source. The classification system is used, in short, as a censorship system.

There are more than 20 million documents locked away in government file cases under a variety of secrecy labels. Only a tiny portion—perhaps one percent—directly relate to national security. The rest are classified to protect the bureaucrats and safeguard our leaders from public scrutiny.

Many citizens were appalled at the spectacle of their government's secret papers being spread across the pages of newspapers. What right did I have, many have demanded, to declassify papers?

Under the license granted the press by the First Amendment, I have the right, and probably the duty, to expose government secrets.

Risks are small

For all the risks in a Constitution that gives freedom of the press priority over the government's secrets, the newspapers' handling of both the Pentagon Papers and my revelations indicate that the risks are minimal.

The gravest breach of security the government could find in the Pentagon Papers was the account of "Operation Marigold." This was a confidential peace initiative in 1966 in which the U.S. communicated with Hanoi through a Polish diplomat. Yet this information was spelled out at length in President Johnson's memoirs.

As for the so-called Anderson Papers, no government official has even claimed there was a significant breach of security. I took the utmost care in releasing classified information in my possession. References to the government's intelligence sources and other military details remain tightly guarded.

For about 25 years I have tried to break down the walls of secrecy in Washington. But today the walls are thicker than ever. More and more our policymakers hide behind those walls.

Free press vital

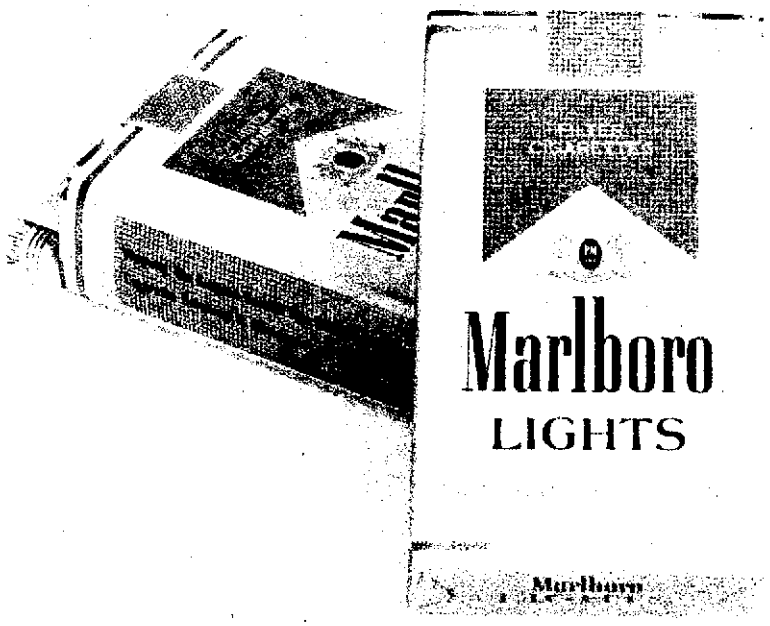

Only the press can stand as a true bulwark against an executive branch with a monopoly on foreign policy information. It has all the authority it needs in the First Amendment. As the late Justice Hugo Black put it so eloquently in his last opinion:

"The government's power to censor the press was abolished so that the press would remain forever free to censure the government. The press was protected so that it could bare the secrets of government and inform the people. Only a free and unrestrained press can effectively expose deception in government. And paramount among responsibilities of a free press is the duty to prevent any part of the government from deceiving the people and sending them off to distant lands to die of foreign fevers and foreign shot and shell."

Follow the Leader

She's the girl all other girls want to be like. Sure of herself, fun to be with—every day. No matter what day it is.

She's the kind of girl who uses Tampax tampons. They don't tie you down like belts and bulky, old-fashioned pads. Internally worn Tampax tampons are so comfortable, you can't even feel them when they're properly in place. And, of course, they're totally invisible.

Tampax tampons. Just the thing for girls on the go. Girls like you—the leaders.

My Favorite Jokes by Robert King

EDITOR'S NOTE: Robert King was once a concert clarinetist. He graduated from New York's Juilliard School of Music and played with the New York Philharmonic. He explains the leap from clarinet to comedy: "People laughed a lot when I played." Actually he started doing comedy in the Navy, and though he branched out to acting in the movies (The Out-of-Towners, The Projectionist), and in musicals, comedy is his forte. He appeared on the Carson, Frost, Griffin, Douglas shows, and at clubs such as Harrah's at Lake Tahoe; the Caribe Hilton, Puerto Rico, and Palmer House, Chicago.

King appreciates those certain situations in which the comedy business can be very comical indeed—for instance when the comedian waits around for the nightclub owner's approval. King says, "A friend of mine was playing at a very famous nightclub. Before the show the owner passed by and said to him, 'Hey kid, you funny?' The comedian thought he was kidding and said, 'Of course not.' After he finished his routine he went out front and sat down. The nightclub owner passed by again and said, 'Kid, I like ya. Ya keep your word.' "

Herewith some of King's favorites:

My niece was about 4 years old and she was playing in the kitchen with the boy from next door who was the same age. The boy said to my niece, "You want to wrestle?" My niece said, "I can't wrestle, I'm a girl." The boy said, "Oh, well, you wanna play football?" "I can't play football," she said, "I'm a girl." "Well, do you want to throw the baseball around?" And my niece said, "How many times do I have to tell you—I'm a girl?" The boy said, "Oh, all right. Wanna play house?" And she said, "O.K. I'll be the father."

The mugger was going to beat him up. So the guy said to the mugger, "Can I give you a check?" But the mugger said, "Think I'm stupid? I don't even know you.".

I was working in Florida. Everybody talks about how everyone else retires there—you know the ambulances meet the planes, etc. I heard a conversation between an elderly man and woman. She said, "So, Irving, you want to take a walk to the corner?" He said, "Yes. That's a good idea. And while we're there we'll pick up a shower cap for Sylvia." She said, "Listen, why should we do everything in one day?"

Here I am at nearly 230 pounds. This snap is bad enough, but at least I wasn't in my maternity slacks.

It sure was a great day when this was taken. I had finally reached 132 pounds. And were my sons proud!

You can see in this latest photo that I'm not one of those people who loses weight and gains it right back.

Before...after...and wow!

I looked up JoAnne Lawrence three years later and look what I found.....130 beautiful pounds.

by Ruth L. McCarthy

The first time I met JoAnne Lawrence was right after she had lost 98 pounds. And it was like interviewing a young woman who had just been named Miss America! Life for her was suddenly full of compliments, invitations, admiration and excitement.

But it wasn't always that way. JoAnne had been married at 16 and for the next 12 years did very little but live in maternity slacks. Not because she was pregnant all the time, but because she had managed to eat herself up to 230 pounds.

She'd tried all kinds of crash diets and reducing pills, but nothing seemed to work. As JoAnne said: "When you swallow those pills, they're gone. It's the same with liquid diets. You drink them, and they're gone. It's not like having something you can chew on."

Then one day, in desperation, she made a doctor's appointment (one of many) about her weight problem. But in his waiting room, she picked up a magazine and saw a story about a woman who'd lost a tremendous amount of weight with the help of Ayds® Reducing Plan Candy. When JoAnne looked at the woman's fat picture, she said: "That's me." Then she looked at the slim picture and thought: "If she can do it, so can I."

JoAnne didn't even wait to keep her appointment. She went directly to a drugstore and bought some vanilla caramel Ayds. She followed directions, taking one or two before each meal with a hot drink, and JoAnne said they actually helped curb her appetite, so she ate less. Without drugs, too. She went from 230 pounds to 132 on the Ayds plan.

I'll tell you, the crew that photographed JoAnne as she told her story was absolutely amazed at the beautiful transformation. That was in 1968.

This summer, out of curiosity, I went back to see if JoAnne Lawrence had let herself go —or if she'd stayed in line. The answer is in the photographs on this page.

Not only does JoAnne measure up better. She's down two more pounds. Quite an achievement when you know that the football season in Texas is her greatest threat. JoAnne is an avid fan. From September to January, practically six days a week, she watches every game on TV or from Austin's own bleachers. And she fights the butter popcorn and soda pop battle with Ayds.

When her sons see that she's gaining a few pounds, they call her Sam. And that's as good as any referee's whistle. Says JoAnne, "Without the help of Ayds, I could gain weight just on the smell of food." But she hasn't.

Bravo, JoAnne! You've certainly showed us all that the fat hasn't come back.

"Oh, teacher! Me, teacher . . ." a student on the very edge of his seat pleads for recognition because he wants to be called on.

The teacher calls on someone else and the student, frustrated, feels defeat. These are two of the 3000 photos in thesis project.

Faces Reflect Classroom Blahs

by John G. Rogers

It's late on a Friday afternoon and two teachers at a faculty meeting show the strain and emptiness at week's end. An earlier intense interest has faded.

IOWA CITY, IOWA.

A 31-year-old science teacher—working at the University of Iowa for his Ph.D. in education—aims at stirring up the entire U.S. public school system with a brand-new kind of doctoral thesis. It's a picture book that's bitingly critical of the American public schools.

"I want us all to take a new look at our schools," says Michael J. Sexton. "They're depersonalizing the pupils and teachers alike. Many of the teachers aren't teaching—they're just surviving classroom and administrative pressure from day to day. The teacher who talks about innovation and creativity in September can be seen in January crying, 'Let's get these kids out of the hall.'"

A teacher's photos

Mike Sexton seeks to demonstrate his point through photographs that he took during a year spent as a teacher in a Denver junior high school. They speak for themselves:

- Two dedicated teachers display intense interest in early day classes. Then you see strain and emptiness on their faces at a Friday afternoon faculty meeting.
- A boy sits alone on a sill by a grated window. The grating is part of security but it and its shadows emphasize cold institutionality.
- Tension grips a principal's face as Teacher works to explain lesson, but is she getting through to this student? Photographer-teacher is asking for a new look at our schools.

Is he lost? Are schools trying to fit the child of 1972 into a 19th-century environment of confinement and rigid, meaningless schedules?

he threshes out a problem, gripping a telephone with both hands.

Sexton made more than 3000 photographs in Denver. He explains: "Teaching class, I began to wonder whether I was getting through to any of those youngsters. There'd be expressionless faces, dropouts, all kinds of problems. I began to think of school not in terms of classwork but in terms of the people involved—both faculty and kids. And one way of presenting their problems seemed to be through pictures of them. You sometimes hear of a father telling a child, 'Just wait till you get out in the real world!' Well, believe me, a public school is 'the real world.' I've tried to show all the problems, frustrations, long hours and disappointments."

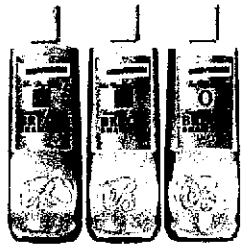

Iowa education Prof. William G. Monahan, supervisor of Sexton's novel thesis project, hopes it will become a commercially available book that would be valuable as a supplemental textbook in schools of education. "If Mike can stir up only a few people toward putting more humaneness in our schools, he'll have done a good job."

Some parents and teachers have seen samples of Sexton's picture book thesis. Says Mike: "Quite a few teachers have thanked me for taking an interest in their problems. Some parents have denounced me as a mere destructive critic and then gone back to their real interests—things like cookie sales. Well, I admit I don't offer any solutions. But I do point out problems and I do stress that we all should be worrying about them."

Her family has a lovely house, balanced meals, stylish clothes- and Pin-Worms!

It's a medical fact that Pin-Worms can attack any family—rich or poor, young or old. Medical authorities say that at least 1 out of 3 persons examined are infected by the troublesome parasite—without knowing it. Even worse, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread through the whole family.

Pin-Worms can happen to anyone. How can you tell if Pin-Worms have infiltrated your family? The most obvious signs will come from children—nose-picking, fidgeting and scratching to overcome the tormenting rectal itch.

What can you do about it? Fortunately there is an easy-to-take medication that gets rid of Pin-Worms. It's called Jayne's® P-W® tablets. Ask your pharmacist. He'll tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that gets Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

Young women of Belgrade where abortions are legal and cost $10. In Eastern Europe, abortion is the chief method of birth control.

More Abortions Than Babies In Eastern Europe

by Connecticut Walker

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA.

Legalized abortion may be relatively new and perennially controversial in the United States, but throughout Eastern Europe it is accepted, old stuff—the single most widely practiced method of birth control.

A Budapest specialist in family planning claims that for every 100 live births in Hungary there are 150 officially reported abortions.

In Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia the rate is roughly 130 abortions per 100 live births.

Partly as a result of this high incidence of abortion, the natural population growth in all these countries except Roman Catholic Poland is declining or rapidly approaching the zero mark.

There are three major reasons why most European women choose abortion before contraception: (1) they are ignorant of and therefore largely distrust contraceptives, (2) the supply of contraceptive devices is limited, (3) the relatively early legalization of abortion in their countries.

Abortion is 'easiest'

According to Dr. Milan Tomic, a Belgrade gynecologist, one reason why he performs so many abortions is that "the people in Yugoslavia are convinced that abortion is the easiest way to free a woman of unwanted births." In Belgrade for every child born there are four abortions.

"The Yugoslavs," Dr. Tomic explains, "were under Turkish influence for a long time, and many of the Turks' attitudes about women still remain. Many men in this country believe 'women should be kept barefoot in summer and pregnant in winter.' "

Some Yugoslav women, as incredible as it is, have experienced as many as 40 abortions during a lifetime. While such cases are admittedly rare, the average woman may experience two, three or four abortions before she reaches menopause or begins to use any contraceptive device successfully.

Contraceptives free

Dr. Marta Husar, director of family planning at Belgrade's Gynecology Clinic, 90 percent of whose doctors are women, points out that after their abortions, patients spend their three-day recovery period learning about contraceptives. "They are fitted free of charge and are encouraged to return every three months for a checkup." But not enough do.

Yugoslavia legalized abortions 20 years ago, four years ahead of Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Romania. "Our idea," explains one Yugoslav official now in Washington, "was to limit the population to a point where our resources and economy could support it. Overpopulation, we realized early in the game, simply meant misery and unemployment for large portions of the people. Generally, it is the ignorant and least educated who multiply the most rapidly. I'm sure that's true in America, too, where so many of the least educated find themselves on welfare, supported by the taxes of others.

"In Yugoslavia," he adds, "we've had to export workers to West Germany, Switzerland, and other countries because our economy could not support them."

No sex education

In 1963 Yugoslavia set up councils for family planning to discourage abortions and to encourage the use of contraceptives. Their distribution of information and contraceptives, according to Dennison Rusinow, a leading U.S. expert on Yugoslavia, was "uneven and inadequate."

Even today sex education there is not accepted as a necessary part of a child's education. Moreover, physicians who are general practitioners are not allowed to prescribe "the pill." Gynecologists and obstetricians insist that this service is their exclusive domain.

Although the majority of Eastern European women who receive abortions are married, the number of under-19-year-olds who apply for that service is increasing rapidly.

"More and more young women are coming to the cities to work or study," explains Dr. Tomic. "Soon these 15- or 16-year-olds find themselves pregnant. In the villages at their age they would probably get married. In the cities they seek an abortion. It costs somewhere between five and ten dollars."

Pork with Chinese Flavor

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Keep in step with the headlines and serve your family a dish that is Oriental in flavor. You will be keeping in step with your budget, too, because this dish is as economical as it is delicious. One pound of pork, prepared this way, will make four generous servings and the flavor is so good that we know you will keep the recipe for future use.

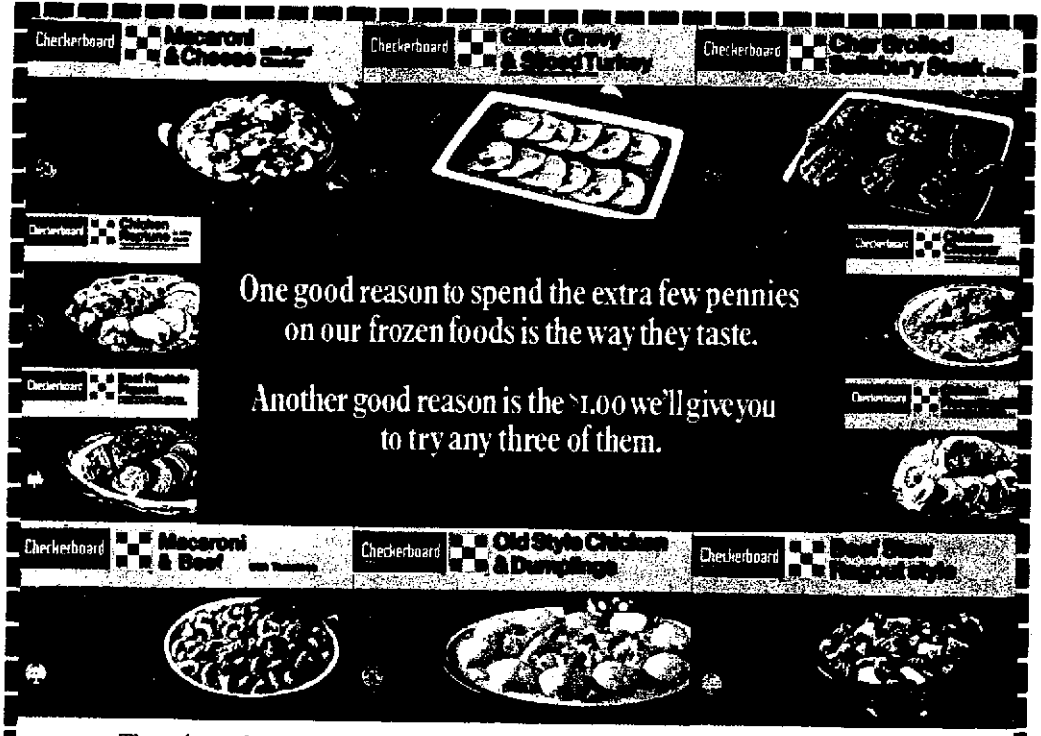

Pork and Fried Noodles Oriental

- 8 ounces medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)
- 6 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 pound lean pork, cut into 2 x 1/2-inch strips
- 1 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon ginger
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce

Cook noodles according to package directions, until tender. Drain in colander. Rinse in cold water; drain again. Heat 1 tablespoon of the oil in large skillet; tilt to coat evenly. Add egg and tilt again. When egg is set, remove; cut into strips. Set aside. In same skillet cook pork in 2 more tablespoons of the oil until browned, stirring often to brown on all sides. Add celery and onion; cook about 2 minutes. Add chicken broth. Combine cornstarch, salt, pepper, ginger and soy sauce; stir into pork mixture. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and boils 1 minute. Remove from skillet. Heat remaining oil in skillet. Add cooked noodles; cook over medium heat, lifting with spatula occasionally until lightly browned. Turn noodles into serving dish; pour pork mixture over top. Garnish with egg strips. Makes 4 servings.

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

There's nothing wrong with trying to save money while you're taking care of your family. Unless, of course, you're trying to save it at the supper table. Because that's the one place you can't afford to skimp.

And just to prove that a few extra pennies can make a big difference in the kind of food you serve your family, Checkerboard Foods is going to spend $1.00.

You see, our frozen foods are made better and taste better than anything else around. So they cost a little bit more. And to convince you to spend that little bit more we're going to spend a little more ourselves.

All you have to do is stop in at the frozen foods department at your grocer's and pick up any three of the following ten 12.5 oz. to 32 oz. Checkerboard Foods products: 12.5 oz. Chicken Chasseur, 28 oz. Beef Stew, 28 oz. Chicken & Dumplings, 13.5 oz. Beef Roulade Piquant, 28 oz. Gravy & Sliced Turkey, 28 oz. Macaroni & Beef, 14 oz. Chicken Neptune, 30 oz. Salisbury Steak & Gravy, 15 oz. Chicken Florentine and 32 oz. Macaroni & Cheese.

Then send us the net weight portion of the package label (which appears on the lower left hand part of the label) from any three of our 12.5 oz. to 32 oz. Checkerboard Foods products and we'll send you $1.00. That way you'll not only be getting the best frozen foods there are, you'll also be getting paid to try them. This offer is not good on any of our 5 oz. to 7 oz. bag entrees.

Send coupon to: Checkerboard Foods, Checkerboard Square, Department 251, P.O. Box 1107, St. Louis, Missouri 63188.

Empty shelves in Miami, Fla., result from ban on detergents containing phosphates.

How Will It All Come Out In the Wash?

by Josh Eppinger III

The current controversy over detergents may become America's longest-running soap opera.

What's coming out of the wash is clean clothes. But what's going in has the Federal Government flipping and flopping, counties and states passing stiff regulations, soap companies sweeping shelves and revolutionizing production methods, and housewives baffled by conflicting testimony.

It all has to do with phosphates—an integral element in detergents—and how much they pollute lakes and rivers. Environmentalists claim phosphates stimulate the growth of green and slimy algae, plants that rob the water of oxygen and cause bodies of water to age prematurely.

Villain defended

There has been a change in the soapy script. Phosphates, the acknowledged villain in the piece, has found a defender—no less a one than U.S. Surgeon General Jesse Steinfeld.

Nevertheless, Procter and Gamble and Colgate-Palmolive—two of the biggest soap companies—shuffled out of Buffalo, N.Y., and Miami, Fla., at the beginning of 1972 with all their phosphate products. Legislation adopted there in Erie County and Dade County bans all detergents containing phosphates.

This recent move away from phosphate products is spreading. The New York State Legislature has passed a law banning all phosphate detergents starting June 1, 1973. Connecticut has decreed that detergents may contain no more than 8 percent phosphates after Feb. 1 and Michigan has fixed a limit of 8.7 percent starting July 1. Indiana will allow no more than 12 percent after July 1. Most detergents now contain about 48 percent phosphates.

How is it that washday miracles have become environmental disasters? The introduction of phosphates in the late 1940's created conditions in the wash water enabling the cleaning agent to work more efficiently. However, they also released large amounts of foam which clogged treatment plants and home septic systems with suds which would not dissolve. When these suds were channeled into lakes and rivers, and these waterways began to look like yesterday's wash water, environmentalists became alarmed.

Reductions asked

Two years ago, one of President Nixon's top water pollution fighters declared that "drastic reductions" of phosphorous and other nutrient materials being discharged into national waterways are "required by the earliest possible date."

Some soap companies, reacting to the Administration's statement, scrambled for a substitute element and began producing detergents using nitrilotriacetic acid, or NTA. Thus, in 1970, housewives had a choice between the old reliable phosphate products, detergents containing the new NTA, and non-phosphate products.

New concern

Housewives were bombarded with ads not only advocating whiter-than-white virtues but ads proclaiming the new unselfish concern for the environment as represented by non-phosphate products. (Though some consumers did switch to these new products, the non-phosphate share of the market never rose above 7 percent.)

But Mrs. Irving Ackerman of Miami, Fla., was one housewife who was not going to wait for the soapsuds to settle. In January, 1971, she was upset about what was happening to the sparkling waters surrounding her lakeside condominium. She organized a group of fellow residents to revive the dying waters lapping at their Point East community.

Calling themselves the "Pollution Revolution," Mrs. Ackerman and troops gathered evidence pointing to phosphates as the culprit and collected 10,000 signatures on a petition calling upon Dade County to ban all phosphates in detergents. It took just two months to translate their concern into legislation.

Mrs. Ackerman, the wife of a retired insurance executive, says "We realized that here in Dade County we had a real opportunity to save the environment. Most of us are from the Northeast and Midwest where the feeling exists that it's too late to do anything about the quality of air and water there. But here, we had a chance to make our stand."

The stand made by Mrs. Ackerman and others was nearly washed away last September when the Nixon Administration reversed its position on phosphates. Top health and environmental officials banned the substitute NTA, attacked the borates, carbonates and silicates which were being used in non-phosphate detergents, and hailed phosphates as the safest chemicals to get clothes clean.

One of the principals in the reversal, Surgeon General Jesse Steinfeld, said, "My advice to the housewife at this time would be to use the phosphate detergent." He also said that some of the non-polluting products contained caustic substances that posed a threat to children who might accidentally swallow or rub the granules in their eyes.

The Federal spokesmen agreed the best solution was for areas with algae problems to build sewage treatment facilities capable of removing phosphates. This stand did nothing to clarify the issue for the housewife — still up against the grocery wall.

The government's flip-flop also left officials thoroughly confused. One New York State pollution director remarked, "The water may recover from the phosphorous, but the environmental effort cannot absorb much of this confusion."

Jesse Steinfeld, U.S. Surgeon General, advises housewives to use phosphate detergents.

As for Mrs. Ackerman, and others responsible for placing anti-phosphate laws on the books, there's no confusion. "We can't go wrong by eliminating phosphates from detergents," she says. Mrs. Ackerman also points to the Dade County ban as dramatic proof that citizens can be heard, that they do have control over the quality of their lives. "If there's one thing I learned from the year-long battle—and I'd love to shout it from the rooftops it's that you as a person do count. You can do it."

The Great Soap Opera looks to have a long run. Stay tuned for upcoming episodes that will ask the questions: Will the old-line detergent makers drown the newcomers? Are phosphates really the problem polluters? What's best for the family washing machine? And what's best for the country?

Five of these Betty Grable pictures were taken before 1946. One was taken in 1971.

"A lot of people tell me I don't look 31 years older than the picture of me at the top left. I think they're just being nice. I don't know how much older I look, but I can tell you it's hard for me to believe I am 31 years older.

"It's hard for me to believe because, quite frankly, I take care of myself. How? Well, nothing really out of the ordinary. I exercise regularly, eat the right foods, and I get enough rest. And I do one more thing I consider important. To make sure I get enough iron and vitamins, I start every day with a Geritol tablet.

"That's right. A Geritol tablet. Geritol is one of the good things I do for myself."

To Sheriff Pete Pitchess
With appreciation for his dedicated public service and with every good wish from his friend,
Richard Nixon

President Nixon with Peter J. Pitchess, now in his fourth term as Los Angeles Sheriff, and frequently mentioned as the likely new chief of FBI.

Who Will Succeed J. Edgar Hoover?

by Lloyd Shearer

WASHINGTON, D.C.

At this time next year who will be director of the FBI?

It's an even-money bet that J. Edgar Hoover won't.

Hoover will reach age 78 next New Year's Day at which time he may turn out to be the oldest non-legislative employee on the Federal payroll. Surely, few men have ever served this government longer or more industriously.

Hoover's employment record spans six decades. He worked first for the Federal Government in 1914 when he ran messages in the Library of Congress.

In 1917 he entered the Justice Department as a file reviewer, became in 1921 assistant director, under the famed detective William J. Burns, of the Bureau of Investigation. In 1924 Hoover was appointed acting director. Eleven years later in 1935 the name of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice was changed to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Ever since, the names—FBI and J. Edgar Hoover—have been synonymous.

It is no secret in Washington that many Administration officials, especially those in the Justice Department, would like Mr. Hoover to retire. They believe he could live out his remaining time financially secure, writing books, consulting various Congressional committees, betting on the horses, particularly at Del Mar in Southern California, and in general living the life of a respected, venerated elder statesman.

If President Nixon wins reelection, Hoover's retirement is a probability, although Nixon will continue to spiel about Mr. Hoover remaining in the saddle so long as he can sit without falling.

Should Muskie, Kennedy, Humphrey, Jackson—any Democrat win the Presidency, J. Edgar Hoover is out, and he knows it.

Met with Mitchell

Who will replace him? One name frequently mentioned, particularly in Nixonian circles, is Peter J. Pitchess, Sheriff of Los Angeles County. Pitchess admits reluctantly that he has confabbed here of late with Attorney General John Mitchell but insists, "the talks have had nothing to do with the FBI."

Pitchess, who will be 60 on Feb. 26th but looks 50, is a tall, rugged, handsome ex-FBI agent, 1940-1952, who has won four consecutive terms as sheriff of the sprawling county, starting in 1958.

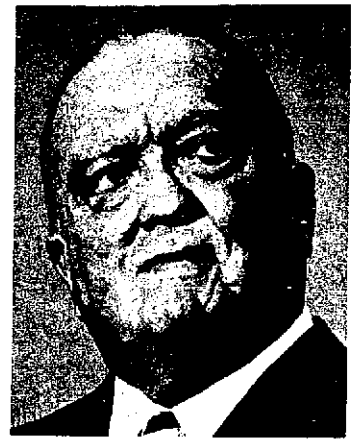

Born and reared in Salt Lake City, where his Greek immigrant father worked for the Union Pacific Railroad as a personnel man, Pitchess was orphaned at 10. Passed around by various relatives, he helped as a teenager to support himself by digging copper in the mines of Bingham, Utah.

"It took me nine years," he explains, "to get through seven years of college—working on the outside on and off—and even then I don't think I would have gotten through law school if it hadn't been for my wife.

"Athena—her maiden name was Takis—she's also of Greek extraction—quit the University of Utah in 1936 to put me through law school. We were married in 1938. Our 34th wedding anniversary is later this month, Feb. 27th, a day after my birthday."

J. Edgar Hoover's employment by the Federal Government spans six decades.

A friendly, unpretentious, open man—the opposite of the grim, tight-lipped FBI prototype frequently caricatured by the script-writers—Pitchess joined the FBI in 1940, subsequently worked out of the agency's offices in Washington, El Paso, Kansas City, and Los Angeles. In 1952 he was supervisor in charge of the FBI's criminal division in Los Angeles when he resigned to accept an appointment as undersheriff of Los Angeles County.

Warm and friendly

A Democrat-turned-Republican—"I switched during the Truman Administration"—Pitchess now commands the fifth largest law enforcement agency in the nation. A member of the Greek Orthodox Church, he generates a warm kinship with minorities, has an excellent knowledge of the FBI, and best of all, the ability to communicate with people and press on friendly terms.

Whether he would accept directorship of the FBI if it were offered to him, he himself doesn't know. "It's the sort of job," he admits, "no man is anxious to take but few in our field could resist."

If Nixon and Mitchell decide on Pitchess, say, over such suggested nominees as Byron White, associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court; Alan H. Belmont, formerly an assistant FBI director and now at the Hoover Institution of Stanford University; Evelle Younger, Attorney General of California; and Thomas Reddin, former Los Angeles City police chief—they can be assured that Pitchess will never suffer from an "emperor complex."

That is the charge repeatedly leveled against J. Edgar Hoover by those detractors who find him a remote, inaccessible High Lama.

'Why I smoke Vantage.'

I read the papers.
I watch TV.
I hear the things some of them are saying about smoking.

All I know is that I enjoy smoking and I don't plan to quit. Last year, maybe the year before, I did get on to one of those low 'tar' brands. Worked at it for a solid month.

Trying to pull flavor through one of those cigarettes was like sucking on a pencil.

So I went back to my old brand. What's the good of smoking if you can't get flavor through a cigarette?

Only it wasn't the same thing, my old brand. All those critics made me feel guilty about smoking them.

That's about the time Vantage came out and did I latch on to them!

First off, they tasted good. Like my old cigarettes.

And then, frankly, all that the critics say about 'tar' and nicotine has to make an impression.

Fact is, they don't make me feel guilty about smoking Vantage.

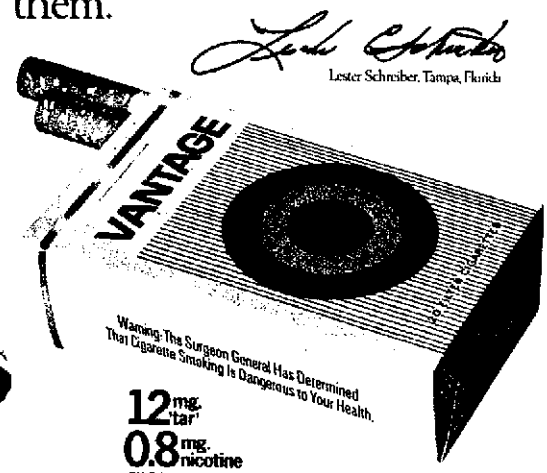

I mean here's a cigarette that's got a whole lot less 'tar' and nicotine than my old brand and I'm still getting good rich flavor out of them.

They're always telling people to stop smoking or to cut down on 'tar' and nicotine.

But how about telling a guy like me, who likes smoking, how to cut down on 'tar' and nicotine yet still get some enjoyment out of a cigarette.

Will every smoker like Vantage? All I can say is to try them.

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Under 30

The people in the U.S. most dissatisfied with their jobs are black workers under 30.

Then come all workers under 30 who have some college education.

The third most dissatisfied group are women under 30.

These are the conclusions of a study conducted by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Why are all these young people unhappy in their work? Mostly because they find their jobs dull, monotonous, unchallenging.

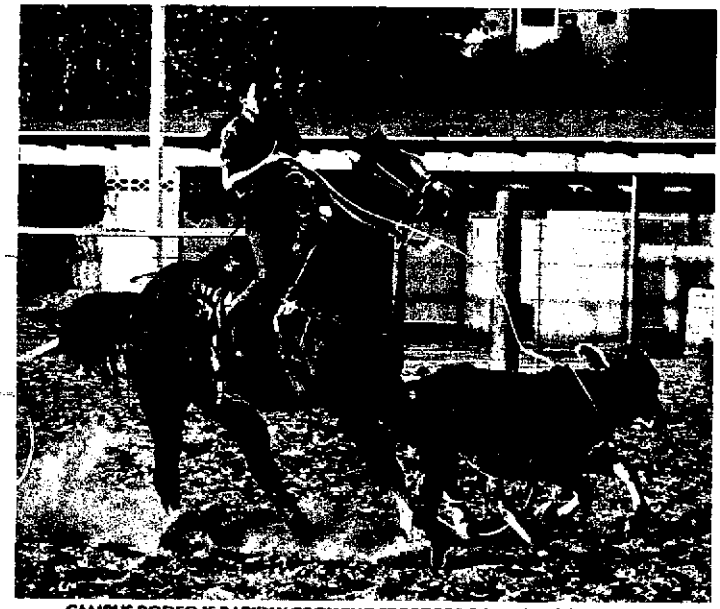

The result, according to a recent article in "Manpower," the official monthly journal of the U.S. Department of Labor's Manpower Administration is that "turnover rates are climbing despite rising wage levels. Absenteeism has increased as much as 100 percent in the past ten years in the automobile industry. Workers talk back to their bosses. They no longer accept the old authoritarian ways. In short, workers themselves are telling us the same things about their feelings and needs that academicians, psychologists, and philosophers told us in the past."

What do young workers want?

"The overall survey shows that the chance to do meaningful work and to achieve and grow on the job is of great importance to the average American worker — perhaps even overshadowing financial considerations. It also appears that this chance is sadly lacking in the average job."

What's the answer?

At this point there is none. As more of American youth becomes better educated, its members seek out white-collar jobs. In many cases these are even less satisfying, less fulfilling than blue-collar jobs, which is why so many young women under the age of 30 are dissatisfied with their occupational lot in life.

CAMPUS RODEO IS RAPIDLY GROWING SPORT FOR BOTH GIRLS AND BOYS.

Take Trigger to College

Rodeo riding is not just a dying art practiced by aging cowhands. It's also a growing intercollegiate sport in which thousands of students participate annually.

"About 3000 students go out for rodeo every year," reports Del Higham of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association, "mostly in the West and Southwest, but as far north as Michigan and south to Louisiana."

There are anywhere from 14-20 rodeos yearly in each of the NIRA's eight regions. They feature six events for boys—calf roping, ribbon roping, bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, bulldogging, brahma bull riding — and three for girls — goat tying, barrel racing, breakaway racing.

"The big rodeo schools," Higham continues, "are Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo, Calif.—national champs for the last two years—the University of Arizona, the University of Nebraska, Montana State where our national championships are held in June, Colorado State and Utah State. But our biggest growth is in the junior colleges.

"It's an expensive sport for college kids," Higham points out. "You have to own a horse, traller, and gear which represents an initial investment of about $6000 plus $400 to board the horse during the academic year.

"Most college rodeo buffs," he explains, "grew up on farms or ranches. Some of them go to college primarily to ride in rodeos. We try to emphasize academics — the NIRA requires a C average of all its participants. When they leave school, most of the college cowboys enter agriculture or farming, but the best of them keep going right into pro rodeo. For them that's the big time—just as pro football is for college quarterbacks."

Coed Notre Dame

Latest in the long list of men's colleges going coed is Notre Dame.

For 129 years the Roman Catholic University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind., has admitted only men undergraduates to its hallowed halls. Segregation exits next fall with the admission of 325 undergraduate women.

For the past five years Notre Dame has permitted women from nearby St. Mary's College to attend courses on its campus. A proposed merger of the two schools, announced last May by Notre Dame President Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, was blocked by financial and administrative problems. Now Notre Dame is openly soliciting applications from women to join its 6300-man undergraduate student body. The school hopes to enroll 1000 women by 1976.

Attention Teachers!

Jobs for teachers are few and far between these days, but the Department of Defense, according to William F. Coakley, chief of overseas recruitment, has 600-700 openings at its overseas dependent schools.

For the 1972-73 school year the Defense Department needs teachers of physical science, math, industrial arts, special education and male physical education, as well as school nurses. Those chosen will staff Army, Navy and Air Force elementary and secondary schools in 28 countries abroad. Most of the openings are in Europe, but applicants must be willing to accept assignment anywhere in the world.

Requirements are: U.S. citizenship; 21 years of age; a B.A. with 18 hours of education courses; a teaching or nursing certificate; and two years of recent experience as a teacher, counselor, librarian or administrator.

The starting salary for a teacher with a B.A. is $7585 with additional increments for advanced degrees. Appointment is for a one-year term, renewable each year.

Applications are available until the Feb. 28 deadline from the Department of the Army, Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Dependents Schools Teacher Recruitment Branch (DAPE-CPC-RT), Room 1A 658, the Pentagon, Washington D.C. 20310.

illness or an accident . . . the worries and bills . . . not just for the hospital and doctor but the household expenses and all the extra needs of the family during those difficult times.

It's to help meet these needs . . . to provide the cushion of extra cash, that N-BF Life Insurance Corporation created the Extra Cash/Plus Plan that pays you extra cash when you need it most . . . extra cash you can use any way you wish . . . tax-free extra cash that you don't have to account for to anyone.

Without extra cash to pay the extra bills, the extra expenses, you could leave the hospital without the money to meet your regular household expenses and all the extra bills . . . with debts you can't pay.

A steady flow of extra cash paid from 1st day in hospital

But with extra cash benefits day after day, week after week, month after month paid by your Extra Cash/Plus Plan, you can have a steady flow of extra cash to meet your extra needs.

Your extra cash benefits begin the very first day—there's no waiting period—and benefits are paid for as long as hospitalization continues, even up to 25 months—more than two full years—for each new stay in the hospital for sickness or accident. PLUS: you get extra benefits for up to 30 days when you or a covered family member must be confined to the intensive care unit and you're paid for the first 30 days of convalescent or nursing home care following hospitalization—all at the same low premium.

Your Extra Cash/Plus Plan pays you directly in addition to everything you receive from any other insurance company—even Blue Cross and Medicare. You're paid your full extra cash benefits even if other insurance pays all your expenses.

All of your unmarried dependent children residing in your home may be included under this plan between the ages of 1 month and 19 years. Both you and your wife—if neither has been hospitalized for sickness for more than a total of seven days in the past two years—are eligible for coverage. There are no other qualifications!

Generous benefits at 65 and over paid in addition to Medicare

If you're over 65, or when you become 65, because Medicare will pay many of your medical and hospital expenses, your Extra Cash/Plus Plan will pay you $300 a month for the first two months you're in the hospital and then $600 a month for the next 23 months. And you get up to $300 extra benefits for up to 30 days of intensive care, and convalescent or nursing home benefits for up to 30 days following hospitalization.

No health questions, no investigations, no red tape

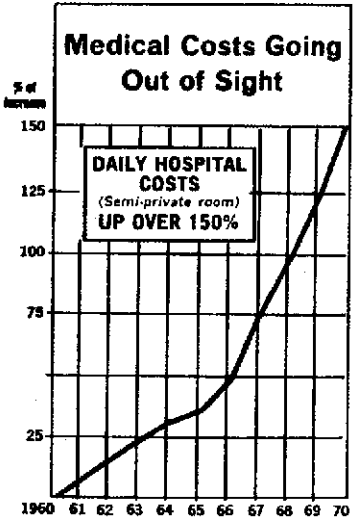

Your policy will be issued to you on your application without the usual fuss or bother of health questions, examinations, investigations and other red tape.

These few customary exclusions help keep your premiums low: conditions resulting from declared or undeclared war or act of war; psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder; confinement in a hospital or convalescent facility contracted for or operated by the U.S. Government for treatment of members or ex-members of the Armed Forces. Even maternity is covered when both husband and wife are insured.

Regardless of your age or size of your family, your first full month is only $1

You get all these benefits now plus a 5% increase in your extra cash benefits each year for five years—a total increase of 25%—to keep up with the rising costs of everything you have to buy. And you get this protection for yourself and your entire family for even less than you'd think. Regardless of your age or the size of your family, your first full month's protection is only $1. You pay only these low monthly rates* according to each adult's actual age at the time of each renewal (when both husband and wife are covered, the husband is the policyholder).

LOW MONTHLY RATES*

Age	Policyholder	Spouse
19 - 44	$4.50	$4.00
45 - 54	5.50	5.00
55 - 64	6.50	6.00
65 and over	8.00	7.50

For only $2.00 a month more you can cover all your children—no matter how many—who are unmarried, dependent on you and are between one month and 19 years old. And, every addition to your family is automatically covered at one month of age with no additional premium.

NOTE: And once issued to you, your policy can never be cancelled or your rates changed no matter how old you grow, no matter how poor your health becomes, no matter how many claims you make unless we refuse to renew or change rates for all policies of the same classification in your entire state.

How can the rates be so low for so much protection?

The answer is simple. The Extra Cash/Plus Plan was created by the National Ben Franklin Life Insurance Corporation (a nation-wide leader in low cost group plans for veterans, and others) for mass enrollment of Parade readers throughout the United States. And because no salesmen call on you and all sales costs are kept very low, you get the most protection for the lowest possible rate.

Generous Benefits if You Are 65 or Over . . . Pays in Addition to Medicare!

Medicare payments are great and will pay many of your medical and hospital expenses but can fall far short of your money needs when a prolonged hospitalization hits you.

26 Important Questions Answered...

1. What is the Extra Cash Plus Plan?

The Extra Cash/Plus Plan is an entirely new, low-cost plan that pays extra cash direct to you from the very first day when you or a covered family member are hospitalized for sickness or accident.

2. What are my chances of having to go to the hospital?

1 out of 7 people do each year. Yes, one out of two families could have a loved one in the hospital this year. It could be your wife, your children or you. Think of the additional bills you will have if hospitalized. You could count on up to $15,000 with Extra Cash/Plus!

3. $15,000.00? How come Extra Cash/Plus offers so much coverage at so low a cost?

Because of mass enrollment throughout the country and because no salesmen will call, sales costs are kept to the barest minimum with savings passed along to you in lower premiums!

4. What will you pay for my Wife?

Same big benefit as yours, $600 a month (under age 65); up to 25 months. This means up to $15,000 for each of your wife's hospital benefit periods too!

5. Are maternity benefits included?

Yes, unlike many companies, National-Ben Franklin pays $600 a month up to 25 months for your wife's hospital confinement for pregnancy, (and its complications), which begins while both of you are insured. No separate charge!

6. Will Extra Cash/Plus take care of our children?

Yes, we pay up to $7500—$300 a month up to 25 months for any of your children's hospital benefit periods. Each new baby is covered automatically after 1 month and through age 18. Yes, one low premium will include coverage for all of your children—no matter how many.

7. When does my family protection begin?

Every eligible family member is covered immediately for any accident or any illness that begins after your policy is issued.

8. Does Extra Cash/Plus cover nursing home care?

Yes, and not many do. Regardless of age, it pays up to $300--$10 a day for 30 days (each hospital benefit period) for confinement in a nursing home or hospital convalescent unit, which starts within 7 days of a 3-day (or more) covered hospital stay.

9. What is the 25% cost-of-living raise?

A hedge against even higher hospital costs! Each person's original benefits will increase 5% for benefit periods which start after the end of the 1st year of his coverage. Similar increases for 4 more years. This means 25% more cash for you at No Added Cost!

10. Does the "intensive care" feature of Extra Cash/Plus really Double my benefits?

Yes, for adults under 65 Extra Cash/Plus pays $20 a day up to 30 days each benefit period. Up to $600 are added to your hospital income dollars, a total of $1200! (Other generous benefits for other age groups). Even regular recovery room service is covered after 24 hours.

11. Do my children get the "Plus" benefits too?

Yes, Up to $300 additional for Intensive Care; up to $300 Nursing Home Care. Cost-of-Living Raises bring children's $300 benefits to $375 after 5 years.

12. What if I have other insurance?

Extra Cash/Plus pays in addition to your group coverage, Workmen's Comp, Medicare, Blue Cross, and any other company's policies.

13. Who gets the cash?

You do. No payments to the doctor or hospital unless you say so. It's all yours.

14. All mine? No taxes?

No taxes.

15. Just who can get Extra Cash/Plus?

You and your wife—Each, who has not been hospitalized for sickness for more than a total of seven days in the past two years, are eligible. All of your children under 19 are eligible even if they have been hospitalized.

Here's Why–National-Ben Franklin Extra Cash/Plus Policy is Your Best Protection for the Lowest Cost.

16. Why is Extra Cash/Plus so attractive to Senior Citizens? What features in Extra Cash/Plus are designed to serve those over age 65?

At age 65 Extra Cash/Plus pays you up to $14,400 . . . for up to 25 months (over 2 years!) for each hospital benefit period. $300/month, first 2 months; $600/month for 23 months more. The $600 benefit means more money when you need it most–when your Medicare stops.

17. Do we get the "Intensive Care" feature?

Yes, 65 or over, $10 a day for 30 days, up to $300, is added to your hospital income payment.

18. What is our Total Cost-of-Living Raise for age 65 or over?

Your original benefits will increase up to a total of $375 for each of the first two months and $750 a month thereafter.

19. What am I paid for less than a month?

You're paid 1/30 of your monthly benefits for each day of confinement from the 1st day.

20. How often can I be hospitalized and still collect my full Extra Cash/Plus benefits?

As often as necessary for as many different injuries and ailments as occur. Later confinements for the same condition will be treated as continuations of the original confinement–then, after 12 months free of hospital or convalescent confinement for that condition, you will again be entitled to a new full 25 month benefit period.

21. Can my premiums be changed or can my policy be cancelled?

Your policy can never be singled out for change or cancellation because of claims or poor health. Rate schedule changes or cancellation could only occur for all policies like yours in your class and state upon proper notice; nothing of the sort is foreseen. You're Safe with Extra Cash/Plus.

22. Will I receive my money promptly?

Yes. Your claim will be handled promptly and your tax-free extra cash will be sent directly to you to use any way you wish!

23. What About "pre-Existing" conditions?

Even these are covered when hospitalization begins 2 years or more after protection starts.

24. What few exclusions are there?

Only a few–to help keep your rates low. Conditions resulting from declared or undeclared war or act of war; psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder; confinement in a hospital or convalescent facility contracted for or operated by the U.S. Government for treatment of members or ex-members of the Armed Forces. Even maternity is covered when both husband and wife are insured.

25. How much does my first month cost? How much do I pay after that?

You pay only $1 for your first full month's coverage regardless of how old you are or the size of your family. After that you pay only the small monthly premium for your age group.

26. Whom should I list on the Enrollment Form?

We recommend you include every eligible member of your family. Remember, though, at least one parent must be covered to include any number of your children under their low rate offered during this Enrollment Period. The premium for family coverage is so low you can't afford not to have the added protection.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

THE COMMISSAR PUTS HIS DOUBLES THROUGH A FINAL SERIES OF REHEARSALS.

THE PREMIER? ONE MOMENT, PLEASE. I'LL SEE IF HIS EXCELLENCY IS FREE.

IN HIDING PLACES NEAR THE SECRET SCHOOL FOR IMPOSTORS, THE DRAGON LADY AND HER PICKED CREW OF CONVICT BURGLARS, FORGERS AND WIRE TAPPERS AWAIT THE RESULTS OF THEIR PREPARATIONS.

HE'S PRETENDING TO BE THE PREMIER'S MINISTER OF DEFENSE...

YOUR EXCELLENCY, THE GENERAL STAFF AND I HAVE MET AND WE CAN NOT ACCEPT YOUR DECISION...

GENERAL, MY DECISIONS ARE NOT TO BE REVIEWED BY YOU AND YOUR CRONIES!

EXCELLENT, NUMBER FIVE! NOW YOU ARE INDEED THE DICTATOR OF SEVERAL MILLION PEOPLE. HOW DO YOU LIKE IT?

AS YOU HAVE SAID— I AM THE PREMIER! I LIKE IT VERY MUCH!

CUT IN NOW, HASSAN!

NUMBER FIVE, LISTEN TO ME CAREFULLY. TURN YOUR BACK SO THE EXPRESSION ON YOUR FACE WILL NOT BE PICKED UP BY THE CLOSED-CIRCUIT T.V. CAMERA.

TAPED TO THE UNDERSIDE OF YOUR TOP DESK DRAWER THERE IS A LETTER. SLIP IT IN YOUR POCKET WITHOUT BEING SEEN. READ IT WHEN YOU ARE ALONE... CLICK...

2/13

...AND IF YOU'LL REMEMBER MY MOTTO THAT THERE'S NO SUBSTITUTE FOR PERFECTION, YOU CAN BE THE STRONG MAN IN THAT REGIME FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE! THAT'S ALL.

I'LL BEAR THAT IN MIND, COMMISSAR. GOOD NIGHT.

IT'S HIM AND HE'S GOT THE ART WORK THE WOMAN HAD YOU FORGE, ABDUL....

ON STATIONERY BEARING THE SEAL OF THE KINGDOM THAT NUMBER THREE IS TO TAKE OVER...

"...ONCE WE HOLD THE REINS OF POWER, WHY SHOULD WE TAKE ORDERS FROM SUCH AS THE COMMISSAR? WE CAN RULE!"

"NUMBER FIVE IS TO BE FEARED. PERHAPS ASSASSINATION..."

HA! DO THEY THINK THIS OLD LION HAS FOUGHT HIS WAY TO THE TOP ONLY TO BE BROUGHT DOWN BY MANGY JACKALS?!

YOU GOT SOME PLANS ON WHAT T' DO WITH PROF. CREEPY, "DADDY"?

IT ISN'T NECESSARY, ANNIE! HIS FUTURE IS IN HIS OWN GREEDY HANDS—HEAVEN HELP HIM!

OLIVER WARBUCKS HAS STUNNED ANNIE AND HONEST TOM BY REVEALING THAT THE "PRICELESS TREASURES" STOLEN BY PROF. CREEPY WERE MERELY CLEVER IMITATIONS....

I KNOW CREEPY'S A CREEP!—BUT YA CAN'T HELP FEELIN' SORRY FOR THE BUM—

AND WHAT HAPPENED TO THE PROFESSOR IS PRETTY PITIFUL!

A CROOK WHO TRIES TO DUPE HIS FENCE WITH FRAUDS IS A LOW-DOWN DISHONEST THIEF!!

WHAT A SHAMEFUL WASTE OF TALENT FOR A MAN WITH WARBUCKS' ABILITY TO SPEND HIS LIFE MAKING MONEY HONESTLY!!

AND TAKE YOUR JUNK WITH YOU!!

YA MEAN IT AIN'T A SIGN O' WEAKNESS —LIKE PROF. CREEPY SAYS—T' MAKE AN HONEST BUCK, MR. WARBUCKS?

I DON'T THINK SO, HONEST TOM! WHAT MOST CROOKS DON'T SEEM TO REALIZE IS THAT IF THEY INVESTED AS MUCH TIME IN BEING LEGITIMATE—

—AS THEY DO IN FIGURING OUT WAYS OF HOODWINKING THEIR VICTIMS THEY COULD WIND UP IN THE CHIPS INSTEAD OF IN THE SOUP!
